VERWOERD FUNERAL

Mourners Segregated

PRETORIA (Reuters)—Thousands of mourners, segregated according to their color, watched as the coffin of assassinated Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa was borne into a vast amphitheatre for his state funeral today.

Non-white mourners sat in a separate block of seats from whites as eight senior military officers carried the coffin into the open-air amphitheatre, in a blazing sunshine.

The non-whites included Paramount Chief Kaiser Matanzima, chief minister of the Transkei—first of the Bantustan or Negro areas set up under Verwoerd's apartheid policy.

Many other Negro dignitaries and representatives of the Indian and colored (mixed race) communities were also there.

The block of seats for the non-whites was close to the covered area where members of the Verwoerd family, cabinet ministers and other prominent whites sat. It formed part of the circular seating arrangements at the amphitheatre.

This arrangement conformed to Verwoerd's thinking on race questions that non-whites should be "separate but equal."

Waiting inside the theatre was his widow, Mrs. Betsie Verwoerd, pale but composed, wearing a simple black dress. The theatre was draped in black crepe.

In a front row of seats reserved for important mourners sat Ian Smith, leader of the white - supremacist Rhodesian regime. He looked pale and drawn. With him was his personal bodyguard.

CROWDS GATHERED

Dense crowds, gathered along the 3½-mile route of the funeral procession, stood at attention while the national anthem was played.

Most of them listened to the service with bowed heads.

Most people in the crowds were white but groups of Negroes, Indians and coloreds (people of mixed race) were also there.

'LOST MAN BUT NOT MESSAGE'

PRETORIA (Reuters) — The orator at the state funeral for assassinated South African Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd declared today: "We have lost the man but thank God we have not lost the message of his life."

Rev. J. S. Gericke, moderator of the largest of churches in South Africa and a close personal friend of Verwoerd, described the dead prime minister as "a man of God."

"No attack from outside . . . nor assassination can destroy the message of the testimony and the actions of a man of God," he said. "Even death cannot detract from it — it becomes the possession of generation after generation.

"Dr. Verwoerd's legacy is a determined nation," he said. "His people will face the world and the future with the same determination and good will which were the guiding principles of his life and work."

Fishermen Lose Vote

ALERT BAY (CP)—Neville Shanks, New Democratic Party candidate for Comox in Monday's provincial election, said Friday 500 commercial fishermen will be unable to vote because the government has refused to establish an advance poll in this area.

Socreds Fear Liberals Most, Says Perrault

By AB KENT
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — A cheering Liberal rally Friday heard provincial leader Ray Perrault describe the Social Credit government as "rich, sweet and overfed."

The Socreds fear Liberals as the real enemy in Monday's election, he said.

The organized event in North Vancouver's Canyon Gardens was Mr. Perrault's last major campaign effort. About 250 attended.

Before a crowd containing prominent B.C. Liberals, other candidates and a cheering section of red and white-clad Perrault girls, the Liberal leader derided Premier Bennett's overflow rally in Vancouver Thursday.

The premier had singled out the Liberals for attack in what Mr. Perrault called the Bennett and Bonner circus performance at the Orpheum Theatre.

REAL ENEMY

"But the premier has identified the real enemy—the Liberal party," the leader said.

"Nobody shoots at a dead duck and the Liberal party and its candidates are very lively birds indeed."

Mr. Perrault praised the record of the Liberal group in the legislature, naming veteran Gordon Gibson, who sat at the head table during his speech, Pat McGeer who introduced him to the rally, Fernie member Harry McKay and Alan Macfarlane of Oak Bay.

Mr. Bennett accused the government of trying to liquidate all opposition and end the policitical system in B.C.

"There must be strong opposition to keep this vibrant system alive."

TRAINED SEALS

In his most acid criticism of the government during this campaign, Mr. Perrault said the premier had called out his "carnival troops" to battle at the Orpheum.

"This circus is very strong in the trained-seal department," he said.

"Some were rising on signal, which proves some Social Crediters are willing to stand up for anything."

The Liberal said the performance on stage Thursday was "complete with financial juggling act ..... and promises were flying like doves out of a hat."

But he found "something incongruous about the movie title displayed at the theatre—Modesty Blaise.

"More appropriate was the title being put up for today's feature—the Battle of the Bulge," Mr. Perrault said.

BULGING

"Because Social Credit is a rich, sweet, overfed government bulging with arrogance."

This was the first year any party had evolved such a comprehensive program, Mr. Perrault said of the Liberal format.

"We want a province standing at the start of a new political era for 10 or 15 or 20 years, not the seven-year itch of the Social Credit movement."

He claimed enthusiastic support for the Liberal platform from youth, business, property owners and municipalities.

He said men with jobs in jeopardy through lack of retraining programs would know how to vote, as would persons with retarded children unable to get proper care.

At one point the leader quoted Churchhill to emphasize the unimportance of past political feuds that might endanger the future.

"It is time for a new broom, a new plan and a new government" he said.

There was urgent need of men

GIBSON

Socreds Labelled 'Puppets'

By Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Big business got a blast Friday from millionaire Gordon Gibson, ex-MLA for North Vancouver, who spoke briefly at a Liberal rally in Capilano.

He said in his time in the legislature he had thought of Social Crediters as "32 puppets."

"But Premier Bennett himself is a puppet under Gunderson (Einar Gunderson, director of Crown corporations and the premier's confidant) and there is a group of men over him."

He said they are trying to give away the province with resources far more vast than Washington and Oregon.

They accept concessions and privileges in return for keeping the Bennett regime in power, Gibson thundered.

The premier wants a Bank of B.C., "not for the little people" as he has maintained, but to bail the province out of the heavy obligations the government has gotten it into, he said.

Forum Backs Strachan

By JIM HUME
Times Staff Reporter

DUNCAN — It was billed as an all-party election meeting sponsored by the International Woodworkers of America.

It finished up a tour-de-force for NDP leader Robert Strachan.

The small Knights of Pythias Hall here was jammed to the doorways minutes before the first candidate stood to speak.

Before the meeting was five minutes old late-arriving standees crowded the doorways to join the fun and vent their heckling spite on the candidates.

At least that was the original intention.

As it turned out the man to suffer most from the hecklers was Social Credit candidate Pat Rogers, 28, who had lots of energy but few answers to the tough labor-oriented questions fired from the floor.

Liberal candidate Joe Haddock fared better.

Steering clear of serious topics he kept the crowd laughing as he mocked Premier Bennett's "three-ring circus election campaign carrying its own cheering section" and "cabinet minister who slide up and down like plastic yo-yos at the premier's bidding."

"Did you hear him from the Orpheum in Vancouver the other night?" he asked. "He's going to get five seats here, three seats there, two seats somewhere else. I counted them up. He's going to have 61 seats in the next legislature."

Under redistribution there are 55 seats in the house.

But it was veteran politician Strachan who drew the sustained applause and the sympathy of the crowd.

★ ★ ★

"The candidate here (Mr. Rogers) says the Social Credit government does not practise intimidation," he snapped. "Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi have both stated publicly that the Cowichan-Malahat constituency would have more things done if the area had a government member.

"That is intimidation and either Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi are lying or he (Mr. Rogers) is lying. He can have his choice."

Once again Mr. Strachan stayed with his steady pounding of government policies on education, chronic care and the violation of dedicated parks.

"Mr. (Kenneth) Kiernan was minister of mines when the rape of Strathcoma Park started," he said.

★ ★ ★

"It was a Class A park then with mining and logging forbidden. Before he switched his portfolio from mines to parks he had seen issued hundreds of mining claims in that beautiful area.

BENNETT ASKS SOLID MARGIN

MERRITT (CP) — Premier Bennett told a Social Credit campaign rally here Friday night that a minority government in Victoria next Monday could mean a halt to B.C.'s Growth and expansion.

He said voters shouldn't listen to opposition pleas for a minority government. What is needed is a majority government.

"For the first time in my 25 years in public life, the NDP and Liberals are not saying let us form the government; they only say don't give the premier too large a majority because he is arrogant.

"The powerful pressure groups — like the powerful press—if they don't get their way, they say the premier is arrogant."

He attacked NDP Leader Robert Strachan as lacking vision, courage and faith in the future of the province.

Check Your Card Where to Vote

There are 12 hours in which to vote in Monday's provincial election.

Polls open in every constituency at 8 a.m. and close a 8 p.m.

All eligible voters — those on the voting list — have received cards telling them where to vote.

Because of redistribution of constituencies earlier this year, boundaries are different from the 1963 election.

The new boundaries do not always coincide with municipal boundaries.

Anyone in doubt should telephone the registrar of voters or the returning officer in each constituency.

The telephone numbers are: Registrar of voters, EV 2-6111. Returning officers — Victoria, 385-9761; Saanich, 479-1602; Oak Bay, 386-8464; Esquimalt, 383-7169.

The last chance to cast ballots at the advance poll ends at 9 tonight. Polling station for all local constituencies is in the United Church Fellowship Hall, 936 Balmoral.

On Monday, Victoria voters should remember they can vote for any two candidates because Victoria is a two-member constituency.

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are single-member constituencies.

PGE Workers Vote For Strike Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Non-operating employees of the provincially-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway voted solidly for strike action and strike notice will be served on the line Monday, the employees' union said Friday night.

Monday is the day of the provincial election in British Columbia.

The spokesman said the 400 non-operating employees voted 97 per cent to strike for higher wages.

He said that while both sides would meet with a conciliation officer on Monday, strike notice would be served then and a strike could begin two days later.

The union claimed a government-supervised strike vote would not be required because the PGE did not comply with the Labor Relations Act when it failed to file a report of the dispute.

The strike vote was taken after PGE management rejected a conciliation board recommendation for a 50-cent hourly increase over two years, which the workers had accepted.

The PGE said it was willing to pay salaries on a par with the two national railways — but no more.

Britain Prepared To Yield?

LONDON (CP)—The British cabinet today was reported considering yielding in part to Commonwealth demands for tougher action against the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia. (See story Page 3.)

A morning session between Prime Minister Wilson and his ministers stretched into the afternoon amid speculation that Wilson might accept a compromise formula put forward by Canada's Prime Minister Pearson.

At the same time, other delegations at the conference of Commonwealth heads of government used a weekend adjournment to seek a consensus on a middle way. The Africans demand United Nations mandatory sanctions while the British line is that a UN-ordered economic embargo could cause wider repercussions, such as the withdrawal of South Africa from UN membership.

Pearson has proposed compromise answers to demands supported by all but a few of the 22 Commonwealth delegations for effective mandatory sanctions and a clear British assurance of African majority rule before legal independence is granted to Rhodesia.

Missed Voter Can Get Ballot

Any voter who believes his or her name should be on the voters' list, but has been omitted through error, can swear an affidavit before a deputy returning officer at the polls.

The vote will be accepted with the affidavit, but the registrar of voters is the final judge as to whether the vote is valid.

Hopefuls In Field Total 178

By JOHN MIKA
Times Political Reporter

The party leaders wind up the provincial election campaign with exhortations to their home ridings tonight.

B.C. voters will have a day of quiet to think things over a last time before casting votes Monday for 178 candidates to fill 55 seats in 48 constituencies.

They will be selecting the 28th legislature of B.C. since Confederation.

Their collective choice will decide the big question of which province B.C. will emulate: Newfoundland and its pro-government landslide or Manitoba's strengthening of the opposition.

Few expected the narrow defeats of the Quebec and Prince Edward Island governments, of course, but a similar result here would be a bigger surprise with even opposition leaders conceding they are fighting for the right to exist in the legislature.

POKER-FACED

The mass of the public has remained determinedly poker-faced since the election was called Aug. 5 with more than two years remaining in the government's term of office and no central issue.

But there has been a slight warming up of audience temperatures at meetings this week and an exceptionally heavy run in advance polling also suggests that the voters are not ignoring the elction.

In 1963, there were 202 candidates for 52 seats but redistribution and the drop from 44 to three Conservative candidates changed the picture this time.

Both the Socreds and NDP fielded 55 candidates each while the Liberals missed nominations in two ridings at the last minute.

Communists and independents, at six each, are both at double the strength of the Tory contestants.

In the lower Vancouver Island area, there are 16 candidates in the four ridings here:

VICTORIA — W. N. Chant and W. M. Skillings for SC; H. T. Allen and Mrs. Dorcas Blair for NDP; J. W. Porteous and F. D. Preston for Liberals; and E. L. Knott for Communists;

OAK BAY — C. M. Ennals for SC; M. V. Yarwood for NDP; and A. B. Macfarlane for Liberals;

SAANICH AND THE ISLANDS — J. D. Tisdalle for SC; E. W. Haw for NDP; J. M. Campbell for Liberals;

ESQUIMALT — H. J. Bruch for SC; J. E. Bartanus for NDP; D. A. Elrix for Liberals.

Premier Bennett began the race by making election speeches in a swing through the Kootenays in advance of his announced Aug. 18 campaign start in Campbell River. He has continued without letup for the hardest run he's made since the 1952 election that brought him to power.

Both NDP Leader Robert

They Pick Up Pieces To Mould a Future

By GORDON RITCHIE

All that's left of the big white bulb of the overhead streetlamp is now strewn over the sidewalk.

Victim of a well-aimed rock thrown by a boy with nothing to do, you guess as you gingerly pick your way through the shards of shattered glass.

Past the broken glass and up Yates Street to the door of the Boy's Club, front line in the war against juvenile delinquency.

A bulb is broken in the cramped little gym in the club. Broken when an excited boy tossed a basketball too high and too hard and dented the handmade wire covering the boys themselves put up to shield the lights.

The glass has been swept away now and a group of chattering boys are putting in a new bulb and straightening the wire basket that fits over it.

PEELING PAINT

The stairs creak as you climb up to the second floor in the club. Past a broken light switch. Past the peeling paint. Into a small brightly lit room where some boys are hard at work tooling copper and framing the finished products.

In one of the tiny little clubrooms off to one side a group of boys is making baskets out of popsicle sticks. In another an older boy is doing his homework with the help of one of the five encyclopedias in the little club library. Another is reading a faded dog-eared popular mechanics magazine as he sits on a bench and does up his shoes.

Service on a shoestring, that about sums up what the Boys' Club offers the community—a Community Chest shoestring.

As one of the 21 member agencies of the Chest the Boys' Club gets four and one half cents out of every United Appeal dollar.

OPERATING COSTS

And that's just to cover most of the operating costs. The club was founded and the building itself donated in 1960 by Col. R. O. Bull in memory of a son who died in action with the RCAF as a plaque on the wall explains.

A tall lean man with greying hair clambers down from on top of one of the plywood partitions dividing the cramped space into even tinier rooms.

His athletic build and casual dress typify the Boys' Club approach. "We provide them with the opportunity to do pretty well whatever they want. Any boy between eight and 18 can stroll in here anytime and join in whatever's going on or start something himself.

"We provide the facilities and they use them."

"Facilities" is a pretty big word to use for what the club can afford to provide.

A tiny gym, a tinier workshop, miniature clubrooms and cubbyhole offices.

But it's a pretty small word to cover what the Boys' Club really gives its 350 members—the companionship of their fellows and the love and dedication of the workers, professional and volunteer, who staff the club.

DAY IN PARK

Every now and then Bob Miller, the club's assistant director, one of two professional workers in the club, will pack a bunch of boys in his truck and head off for a day in Goldstream Park.

Or spend a day baking plaster molds for the younger boys to paint.

Or have a long talk with a boy who can't remember the last time an adult talked to him in a lowered voice.

Or try to coach a failing student in his schoolwork.

Or organize a wrestling program because a handful of boys say they're interested, and when only one shows up a few weeks later quietly put away the battered gym mats and tries something else.

LOTS TO DO

There are a lot of other things for a boy to do: softball, football, badminton, basketball, horseshoes, boxing, wrestling, soccer, floor hockey, bowling, woodwork, drawing, copper tooling, model planes, popsicle stick basketry, painting, basket weaving, aluminum etching, ping pong, chess, stamp collecting, photography—the list is a long one.

SOMETHING TO DO can always be found in the Boys' Club as model plane fans (left to right) Ernie Weed, 10, Randy Matthews, 15, and Doug Callbeck, 9, will testify. Open till 9 p.m. the club gives its 350 boys between the ages of eight and 18 a place to go and things to do.

* * *

"And if we can't do it in the club we'll find somewhere he can do it," Bob Miller says.

The gym is small, and the equipment is old, and a boy has to prove he's good at copperwork on the little things before the club can afford to let him tackle the big stuff.

But for 50 cents a year a boy can gain admission to a world where he has something better to do than smash streetlights.

And for 4½ cents out of every Community Chest dollar the community gets a pretty good return.

. . . PERRAULT

not fettered by the past, uncowed by a wealthy political machine seeking even greater power, he said.

"The government today belongs to the past, Mr. Perrault charged.

It wants to "drug the people into inaction to maintain the status quo by tempting them with their own money."

He said the government is appealing to the voters that political parties are unnecessary in B.C., that "one big party" should do.

"The last time he heard that appeal was from Adolph Hitler," the leader shouted.

He paid tribute to "fighting Gordon Gibson" who was unable to run for re-election for personal reasons.

"I wounldn't trade anyone in the world for Alan Macfarlane, who will make the greatest attorney-general this province has ever had," the speaker said.

Most of those at the rally were middle-aged or younger, giving the intimate Canyon Gardens atmosphere a festival air with dancing and table-hopping.

Mr. Perrault has one more scheduled appearance before election day. With Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing, he will visit north shore Indians Sunday.

3,000 People Seeking Work

About 3,000 men and women are seeking work through the local National Employment Service.

Victoria manager George Bevis said a number of occupations in the construction industry have experienced layoffs resulting in the number of unplaced men rising by about 250 during August to slightly under 2,000.

Shortages in the service industry and rising retail sales have resulted in the number of unplaced women dropping to 1,019—lowest since September of last year.

Lose 10-15 Lbs. A Month on New Drinking Man's Diet

Often Called The Airline Pilot's Diet

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Special)—This is the revolutionary new low carbohydrate diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It is known variously as the Drinking Man's Diet, the Airline Pilot's Diet, and popularly known as the Diplomat's Diet. In effect, it allows you to drink all the liquor you want, enjoy formerly "forbidden" foods such as big steaks trimmed with fat, rich gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, fats, sausages and scrambled eggs—and still lose 10 15-lbs. a month. This is the one diet that really works. Senators in Washington, D.C., and Members of Parliament in Ottawa, Canada, report losing 40 to 50 lbs. with ease. Bob Blackburn, the Toronto Telegram's TV columnist, reports in a recent issue of MacLean's (Canada's largest magazine, March 5, 1966) losing 40 lbs. in 5 weeks while indulging himself in all kinds of rich foods and alcoholic beverages. Women report equally startling results. Calories play no part in this diet. What you do is count your carbohydrate grams, and limit your starch and sugar intake to 60 grams daily. The reason for this is simple. When your body doesn't burn up all starches and sugars you eat, the excess carbohydrates quickly turn into unsightly fat. On a low carbohydrate diet your body is forced to call on its own fat (stored carbohydrates) for energy and thus you lose fat. When the fat is gone you will cease to lose weight, and your weight will remain constant. Counting carbohydrate grams is easy. The new Drinking Man's diet manual lists the carbohydrate content of over 1,500 foods and 50 alcoholic beverages. And gives the detailed rules to follow this new diet. It also gives typical low-gram menus that are every bit as pleasant as not dieting at all. The new Drinking Man's diet manual was designed primarily for airline pilots, bon vivants and the diplomatic corps to keep in tip-top shape. The very nature of a diplomat's job calls for them to attend functions where food and liquor are lavishly bestowed on them. This presents a serious weight problem which this revolutionary new diet manual solves. But it has proven to be more than that. It has proven to be a godsend for people who hate dieting—who find salad without dressing unbearable, eggs without bacon unthinkable, dinner without martinis uncivilized. In short, if you like to live well and have a weight problem, this new diet manual will change your life, as it has for thousands of others. Recently published as a private edition in Canada, the diet manual can now be obtained by sending $2 to DRINKING MAN'S DIET, Room 210, 528 Hughson St. N., Hamilton, Ontario. Unconditional money back guarantee. If after trying the diet for 30 days you have not lost 10-15 lbs., simply return the diet manual and your $2 (plus postage) will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim attractive figure of your youth—while still enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners—and drinking all the liquor you want. Order now before others snap up the limited supply.

. . . ELECTION

Strachan and Liberal Leader Ray Perrault have criss-crossed the province in their campaigns.

OTTAWA SILENT

A notable change was the relative exclusion of federal cohorts from the campaign trails where they have been so common — among all parties — in the past.

In 1963, there were 202 candidates for 52 seats and of these 33 Socreds were elected, 14 New Democrats and five Liberals. At dissolution, one of the Socred seats was vacant.

The major issue in that election was the "two-river power policy" and raucous meetings were the rule during the campaign but the voter turnout proved to be relatively light 69.71 per cent — taking three seats away from the NDP and giving them to the Socreds.

POPULAR VOTE

The government captured 41 per cent of the popular vote. The NDP slipped four points to 28 per cent. The Liberals took 20 per cent, a loss of two and the Conservatives jumped from six to 11 per cent but still were unable to elect a member.

A total of 24 of the ridings was decided by less than 1,000 votes, one of the reasons for head-scratching in this campaign.

The heavy use of radio "open line" programs by Premier Bennett, NDP Leader Robert Strachan and Liberal chief Ray Perrault has been the chief innovation of campaigning techniques this time.

All three have spent almost as much time on these programs this week as they have speaking to the traditional last-lap rallies.

SMALL MEETINGS

Airplanes and small meetings aimed primarily at beaming campain messages through the press have been another novel feature with Mr. Perrault, Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi and Mr. Strachan forming the vanguard in this area.

Coffee parties, the new technique introduced in the last election, were much in evidence again.

The enormous imbalance in campaign expenses of the 1963 election—which saw Socreds officially report expenditures of $292,000 to $83,000 by Conservatives, $57,000 by Liberals and $49,000 by NDP—appeared to be greatly exceeded this time.

Estimates of Socred spending have ranged as high as $1 million. The Conservatives are down to almost nil while both Liberals and NDP obviously had fewer dollars available.

Cost of the election to the taxpayers is expected to go considerably beyond the $539,444 recorded last time when there was no massive registration drive or redistribution outlay to finance.

About 8,000 persons will be working Monday overseeing polling and later counting the ballots.

Drivers Don't Obey Bus Law

Highway drivers are not obeying the law when they meet school buses.

An RCMP officer at Colwood said today police are receiving numerous complaints of drivers failing to stop for the flashing lights on school buses.

Both approaching autos and cars following buses must stop when the flashing warning lights on school buses are operating, he said.

Other vehicles cannot proceed until the lights are turned off or drivers are waved on by the bus driver.

acts was to change Strathcona from Class A to Class B.

"They told us all that was wanted was a little bitty mine with just a little bitty road to bring out the ore.

"Now what have we got? A mine, a mill, a townsite and goodness knows what else.

"And where will the effluent from the mill go, the sewage from the townsite? Why, into Buttle Lake, of course.

"Let us make no mistake. Western Mines, the outfit in Strathcona, is not just a small outfit. The majority shareholder is Consolidated Mining and Smelting and we all know who they are."

(CM and S is a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Railways.)

Mr. Strachan warned that if the voters of B.C. "capitulate to this blackmail and fear it will be a black day for B.C."

In the question period following all three speeches, Mr. Rogers said he was all for equalization grants for university students from non-university towns and cities.

He refused to answer a question asking him if he would be prepared to disclose where his election funds come from.

"Is anyone else prepared to publish where their funds came from?" he shouted in reply.

"We will," quipped Mr. Strachan.

"I don't know where the funds come from or how they are collected," said Mr. Rogers. "As far as I know they are collected locally."

He sat down to prolonged laughter from the crowd.

Following the meeting the NDP leader was asked how he felt following his successful mass rally in Vancouver Thursday and the obviously pro-Strachan crowd at Friday night's meeting.

"Good," he replied. "Just say I feel good and seriously think that this time Social Credit has finally gone too far."

Mr. Strachan traditionally winds up his election campaign in Lake Cowichan. Tonight he follows that tradition with the last salvo until after the final votes are counted.

Douglas Criticizes Inflation Measures

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — National New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said Friday night that new anti-inflation measures announced by federal Finance Minister Sharp are "incomprehensible and inexcusable."

"There will never be industrial peace in Canada unless a proper relationship is established between wages, prices and profit," he said.

"We are in for some bad times, and in order to grapple with the situation there has to be a curb on the profiteering that's going on."

Mr. Douglas described postponement of the national medicare program as "sheer economic illiteracy."

Medicare, he said, does not infuse new money into the economy, but is paid through taxes, whereas under the present arrangement, medical costs are paid by the sick.

He said inflation will never be cured by putting off medicare.

He made the comments at an NDP meeting in support of a candidate in the Sept. 12 British Columbia election.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A low pressure area centred just west of northern Vancouver Island will continue to move slowly southeastward and is expected to maintain unsettled weather over Vancouver Island and the southern mainland through Sunday. Shower activity has diminished in the north coastal district and the future trend indicated there is for deceasing cloudiness. Meantime sunshine should predominate in the Okanagan and the Kootenays. A similiar development is looked for elsewhere in the interior on Sunday but cooler showery weather will prevail today.

DORCAS BLAIR X
HAROLD ALLEN X

B.C.'s prosperity rests on heavy sales of natural resources in world markets. This dependence puts us in a vulnerable position. Reports show that lumber, the province's chief industry, is already facing a reduction in exports compared with 1965.

We need to develop secondary industries which are so lacking at present. To this end a New Democratic Party government will create an Economic Development Corporation, authorized to make loans to existing industries and to create new ones.

This will mean more jobs and better prospects for employment in the future. Retraining for this program will be met by implementing N.D.P. plans for the much needed technical and vocational schools.

A new Economic Planning Council will cooperate with business, labor, and consumer groups to plan economic progress and to avoid the chaos of a boom-bust economy.

Our policies are designed to promote a better social and industrial climate. Injustices in labor legislation, in the Workmen's Compensation Act, and in employment conditions among government employees and others, will be corrected.

We will guarantee to all workers and citizens full freedom for political action.

These measures, along with a Price Review Board, will raise the general standard of living in both rural and urban areas, thus effectively PUTTING PEOPLE FIRST.

COMMONS ADJOURNED . . . . . . AMID INFLATION ROW

Opposition Decries Lack of Immediate Action

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was criticized Friday by opposition MPs for adjourning the Commons until Oct. 5 without coping with the inflationary dangers outlined a day earlier by Finance Minister Sharp.

Mr. Sharp, under fire from some of his own members for postponing the national medical insurance program a year, sat calmly at his Commons desk while several MPs hurled colorful and uncomplimentary adjectives at him about the decision to recess.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker accused the government of a "gross perversion" of its responsibilities by delaying action on inflation and rising living costs.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said the government is bankrupt of any program to deal with the problem and threatened to withhold the required unanimous consent to move the adjournment motion unless the government admitted this.

He withdrew his threat after George McIlraith, the government House leader, said the Commons chamber is needed next week for a conference of the International Labor Organization and, later, a Commonwealth parliamentary conference.

Before he sat down, Mr. Howard said he is sure ILO delegates would not be inconvenienced if they were asked to sit in the Senate chamber.

SENATE SAID 'VACANT'

"Whether or not the senators are there, it is really a vacant place and it should be put to some worth while use," he said.

He said that the fact Prime Minister Pearson is absent in London at a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference was no reason for adjourning the Commons.

". . . Good heavens, we have been carrying on the business of this country for the last 2½ years without a prime minister. I do not see why we should worry about his presence in London."

The Commons sat for two weeks from Aug. 29 to deal with legislation to end a national railways strike and a bill to place all transportation under a single super-board.

It was called back from a summer recess that began in early July, and now will recess until the originally-scheduled resumption date of Oct. 5.

The 1½-day inflation debate began late Thursday with Mr. Sharp's anti-inflation speech that included a one-year postponement of a start on medical insurance to July 1, 1968.

PLANS BABY BUDGET

Mr. Sharp also announced deferment of other government spending programs and indicated a baby budget will be brought down after Parliament resumes.

Mr. Sharp Friday won approval for a motion to have the joint Senate-Commons committee on consumer credit study the inflation problem during the recess but several opposition members charged that this was not enough.

The Senate meets Tuesday to consider this resolution and a steering committee meeting is scheduled for Wednesday to set a date for the start of hearings.

Mr. Diefenbaker urged the government to keep the Commons in session to immediately consider legislation and a baby budget.

"We say stay here, let us act," he said. "If you have any policies, act."

Charging that "inflation has picked the pockets of all Canadians", the Opposition leader called for a thorough investigation of price-fixing and a commission on price spreads to study "unjust and unfair profiteering."

BLAMES POWER STRUGGLE

He said the real reason medical insurance legislation was postponed was a "power struggle in the cabinet" rather than inflation.

Reports Thursday and Friday said that Health Minister MacEachen was unhappy about the postponement and was considering his position in the cabinet.

George Hees (PC—Northumberland), former Conservative trade minister, said Mr. Sharp's measures are "negative, sterile and out-of-date."

He said the government should boost productivity by expanding its technical training program, attracting more immigrants and bringing in fiscal incentives and loans with reasonable interest rates to help industry expand.

John Matheson, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, defended Mr. Sharp as having the "courage and guts" to take action to curb inflation.

He said the opposition had pressed for greater spending but "pumping more money into the situation will simply blow the top off."

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said the finance minister so far has offered a "punish-the-poor" policy to handle inflation.

She said when the chips are down the government looks out for the interests of financial and corporate institutions.

Big Crunch Next Week For Rhodesian Parley

Special to The Times

LONDON — The tension in the crucial Commonwealth Rodesian talks is building up this weekend towards the big crunch. British Prime Minister Harold Wilson held a rare cabinet meeting today to map out the British policy to be delivered to the conference Monday.

OBOTE
. . . key figure

On the decisions taken and the proposals will hang the future of the multi-racial organization. There is speculation that the plans will be along the lines of those outlined Friday by Canadian Prime Minister Lester Pearson. The 22 countries present now have all presented their views and the period of negotiating and dickering is going on.

Wilson is having the ministers out to his country home in three groups over the weekend for discussion. Prime Minister went Friday night — he is taking a 24-hour breather today — and meeting Sunday for informal discussions with some more leaders. He already has met privately with about 10. The Africans intend to hold a "caucus" after Wilson's address to consider it, and Uganda Prime Minister Milton Obote told reporters he was willing to invite Pearson to sit in on this meeting.

Obote is a key figure on the African side. For four days the British have been battered verbally on the Rhodesian situation and the need to topple quickly the rebel regime of Ian Smith. The most biting comment has come from the Africans, and the only two countries which seemed to go along with Britain's previous line were Australia and New Zealand. The thught that has emerged most clearly from the prime ministers' conference is the cry that there can be granting of legal independence to Rhodesia with the assurance of majority rule. While the British to date have advocated that there would be "unimpeded progress' towards majority rule, they have been hedging.

FLUID AS POSSIBLE

The British line has been to leave the situation as fluid as possible. They have had talks with representatives of the white Rhodesian regime to determine if there could be common ground for more meaningful talks. And the "talks-about-talks" have the Africans worried. They fear, despite British insistence to the contrary, that there could be a chance of independence being granted with power in the hands of small, white minority — outnumbered about 12 to 1 by the black Rhodesians.

Pearson in his first major speech to the conference Friday made a proposal that would give the Commonwealth a guarantee of the normal democratic process in Rhodesia. Pearson told a press conference later that he suggested that Wilson could give some reassurances that the granting of independence "will be dependent on a system providing for effective electoral representation of the majority of the population, which will be extended to all the adult population without discrimination as soon as possible after independence."

This would guarantee a meaningful vote for every adult African, but the use of the words "dependent" and "as soon as possible" leave room for manoeuvering while still not evading the essential point demanded by the Africans.

SOME CONFUSION

Pearson also suggested to the conference that there was some confusion over the interpretation of "majority rule." And he later told reporters with a grin: "I am an authority on majority rule."

Pearson said it went beyond a simple mathematical formula, and there was nothing sacrosanct about the right of 51 per cent to govern 49 per cent.

Pearson's careful statement obviously was designed to be open to more than one interpretation. But its main intent was to try to give the Africans the assurance the want while maintaining some flexibility.

There is a British feeling, however, that such a guarantee would preclude any hope of a negotiated settlement with the Smith government —although on the surface there appears no hope fo this under any system that would give the black population an opportunity for majority rule.

There is good cause to believe that Britain will yield on this point in order to affect a compromise as advocated by pearson.

And it would be naive to assume that Wilson was hearing the Pearson proposal for the first time Friday. They met and talked last Sunday.

A guarantee on the rule question could soften some demands for mandatory sanctions under the UN and possible use of force. Despite some of the blustering and strident cries for use of force it seems that few of the leaders really expect or want force in present circumstances. They pin their real hopes on the use of more effective sanctions.

Britain is opposed to mandatory sanctions under the UN because this would involve a direct confrontation with South Africa and Portugal, both of whom are mainly responsible for propping up the Smith regime.

Pearson's views on sanctions were backed up by Obote, who followed the Canadian in speaking order. The Canadian prime minister said would link Rhodesia with a long and difficult "economic siege of South Africa."

OTHER PROPOSALS

Pearson spoke of increasing selective sanctions against Rhodesia — a refusal of the outside world to buy such Rhodesian minerals such as pig iron, chrome and asbestos. He said Canada would have other recommendations to make along these lines later in the conference. Pearson also said that if voluntary appeals for increased sanctions failed, there always was recourse to the UN and a mandatory sanction on oil and other products could be proposed.

It is believed that this is in line with the British proposals to tighten the economic screw. There also has been evidence presented to the conference that beneath Rhodesia's outwardly unruffled economy sanctions in their present form are having an effect. But the effect is taking much longer to develop than originally thought.

Wilson also is expected to outline new ways to help Zambia decrease the amount of imports she still has to get from Rhodesia to stay alive. A total or sharp reduction in this trade would have a major impact on Rhodesia' economy.

Sharp's Plans Irk Some Grits

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's measures to brake inflation were not joyfully received by all the Liberals on Parliament Hill.

It wasn't so much a disagreement over serious economic pressures that bothered some who grumbled privately outside the Commons.

Their distress centred rather on areas which Sharp chose to emphasize in his move for restraint.

The complaining members were those who are often labelled as the left-wingers of the party, the crusaders for social reform.

They include some who have long regarded Walter Gordon as their political lodestone and others who are philosophically committed to speedy progress in such fields as medicare, pensions, education and research.

The deferrent of medicare's effective date by one year particularly rankled these Liberals.

Although the medicare program carried an estimated federal price tag of $340 million, they argued this was an unrealistic figure to use in conjunction with the original starting date of July 1, 1967.

They contended that recent federal-provincial conferences have indicated that only a small number of provinces would be ready to take part in medicare by next summer, so the total initial payment would be less for the federal treasury.

Also medicare would relieve the cost burden now being shouldered individually by the population.

In the case of older people, some Liberals argued that reduced medical expenses would be almost more beneficial than a guaranteed minimum income

Politically, these members were disturbed because their party had so firmly committed itself, from the prime minister down, to enabling medicare to operate in 1967.

The deferrment in university scholarships was another longtime political promise which the ginger group was loathe to abandon this year.

And the long-term investment in higher education, which is being continually promoted by the Economic Council, was worth every cent of the $10 million initial investment, they said.

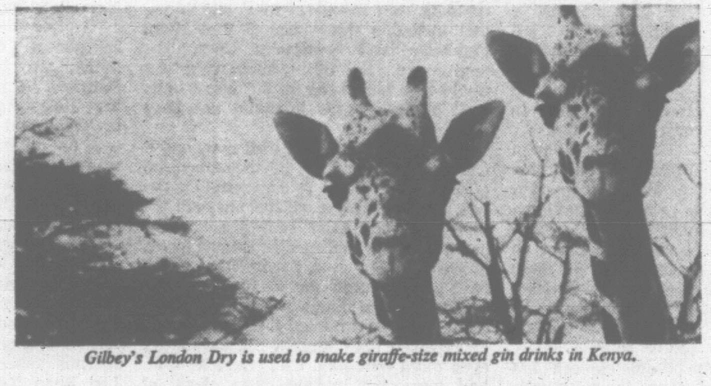
Gilbey's discover amazingly tall mixed gin drinks in Kenya



Gilbey's London Dry is used to make giraffe-size mixed gin drinks in Kenya.

IN KENYA the sun scorches all year round. So wise Kenyans mix amazingly tall mixed gin drinks with Gilbey's London Dry. They choose this gin because its perfect balance gives a fresh, clean tasting drink. And perfect balance is what you need when you're sipping a Gilbey's Treetop Special perched atop a giant fig tree.

Gilbey's Treetop Special

In the Kenyan jungle near a waterhole there is a miniature hotel perched atop a giant fig tree. Guests are able to sip a Gilbey's Treetop Special while observing wild game drinking at the waterhole. The drink is a mixture of orange, lime and lemon juices along with Gilbey's London Dry Gin, sugar and soda water.

Khotso's Spell

Another long and very tall Kenyan cooler is named after an African witchdoctor. The reasons for this are somewhat obscure since the witchdoctor, Khotso Sethunza lives in Pondoland. But he is a millionaire which may have helped his case somewhat. The drink is a simple mixture of fresh orange juice and Gilbey's London Dry topped up with ginger ale.

You can rely on Gilbey's London Dry, a perfectly balanced gin that gives you a fresh, clean tasting drink. This gin is an international favourite, sold in 92 countries. It's been made by the Gilbey family for 109 years.

The Voter's Opportunity

WITH THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN now in its closing hours, voters of Greater Victoria can review the statements, charges and promises that have featured the candidates' presentations and winnow the chaff from the grain.

What does emerge from the deluge of speeches produced by the Social Credit Party is an issue which was never really stated as such. Mr. Bennett went to the country with no recognizable excuse for the election; it was only as the campaign developed that a reason became apparent. The monumental efforts put forth by the Social Credit machine show that Mr. Bennett's purpose was not merely to get his party re-elected but to do it on a total scale. His objective was nothing less than one-party government in a legislature from which opposition voices had been eliminated.

That is a not unexpected ambition for the leader of what for the past fourteen years has been a one-man government. Such a leader must eventually reach the point where criticism of the government's policies and opposition to its acts take on, for him, the appearance of reactionary and unpatriotic antagonism to righteousness and progress. The remedy for such legislative untidiness is obviously to try to wipe out the opposition parties by persuading the public to join in a general, non-partisan movement. This is just what Mr. Bennett has attempted, and he has carried his campaign to the saturation point.

No worse fate could befall British Columbia than to find itself with a legislature in which viewpoints differing from those of the government were not strongly expressed. Each recent year of Social Credit government has produced its list of items showing up the administration as increasingly arrogant, increasingly inattentive to public demands, increasingly prone to go its way with a "keep out, we know best" approach to the people's business. This regime cannot be trusted without a strong opposition.

The fumbles and shortcomings of Mr. Bennett's government have been in part hidden by the prosperity which this province has enjoyed in recent years — a prosperity for which Mr. Bennett claims personal credit but which is in reality part of a continent-wide trend. And public unrest is periodically curbed by another handout of the people's money to the people, in the guise of me-to-you grants for this or that purpose. On this basis Mr. Bennett has built up a Santa Claus image which has no relation to the cost of his generosity with the public's funds.

Under such conditions the less critical analysis of the governing party's behaviour the better, and this Mr. Bennett hopes to achieve by silencing the opposition benches.

The remedy lies in the hands of the voters. There must be a strong opposition to serve as a watchdog over the government. There must be a strong middle-of-the-road opposition voice, not only to curb the Social Credit Party of today but to serve as the nucleus for a progressive but non-socialist government when Mr. Bennett's rightist legislative structure crumbles, as eventually it must.

Members to provide that opposition can only be elected by votes. For that reason we urge support for Mr. Macfarlane in Oak Bay — one of the most effective and valuable members of the legislature regardless of party. We urge new blood in Victoria, where Liberal candidates Mr. Porteous and Mr. Preston contest the heretofore unproductive seat of Mr. Skillings and the much criticized incumbency of Mr. Chant. In Saanich, Mr. Campbell carries a Liberal challenge to Mr. Tisdalle, who has also received challenges from within his own party. And in Esquimalt, Mr. Elrix offers a voice that would not be kept tuned to Mr. Bennett's pitch-pipe.

These are alternatives to steam-roller politics: they present an opportunity for the people of Greater Victoria to get their causes heard in the legislature.

Special Warning in the Woods

THIS WEEK GREATER VICTORIA residents have seen one of the area's scenic attractions and recreation grounds converted into a blackened hill whose ugliness will be a reproach for some years to come.

This has been the transformation of Mount Douglas — a serious loss through fire and a startling warning of what could happen in other parts of southern Vancouver Island as the public takes to the woods for the hunting season.

The Mount Douglas tragedy emphasizes the localized nature of the fire hazard near the end of a provincial fire season that has been very low in total losses. According to the official reports, the fire hazard for Vancouver forest district, including the whole of the Island, is relatively low. But it was anything but low at Mount Douglas. And the Mount Douglas situation could be duplicated in a number of spots within a couple of hours' drive of the city.

The great majority of experienced hunters have an excellent record in caring for the woods in which they enjoy their sport. But the Mount Douglas fire, from a cause still undetermined, reminds us that care can never be relaxed.

A National Park on the Pacific

BRITISH COLUMBIANS HAVE been cheered to read that the federal government and provincial officials show signs of getting together to create a national park on the Pacific Coast. The proposal is to establish a seaside recreation area which, combined with the existing provincial Wickaninnish Beach Park, will preserve for public enjoyment, about 14 miles of incomparable shoreline north of Long Beach on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Arthur Laing has made it quite clear that he would prefer to see Garibaldi Park turned over to his federal department. But he is also on record as being willing to consider other areas, provided the provincial minister, Mr. Kiernan, could offer them under the terms required for land to become a national park. Mr. Kiernan, for his part, has shown determination to retain Garibaldi under provincial jurisdiction and proposed the site near Tofino as an alternative.

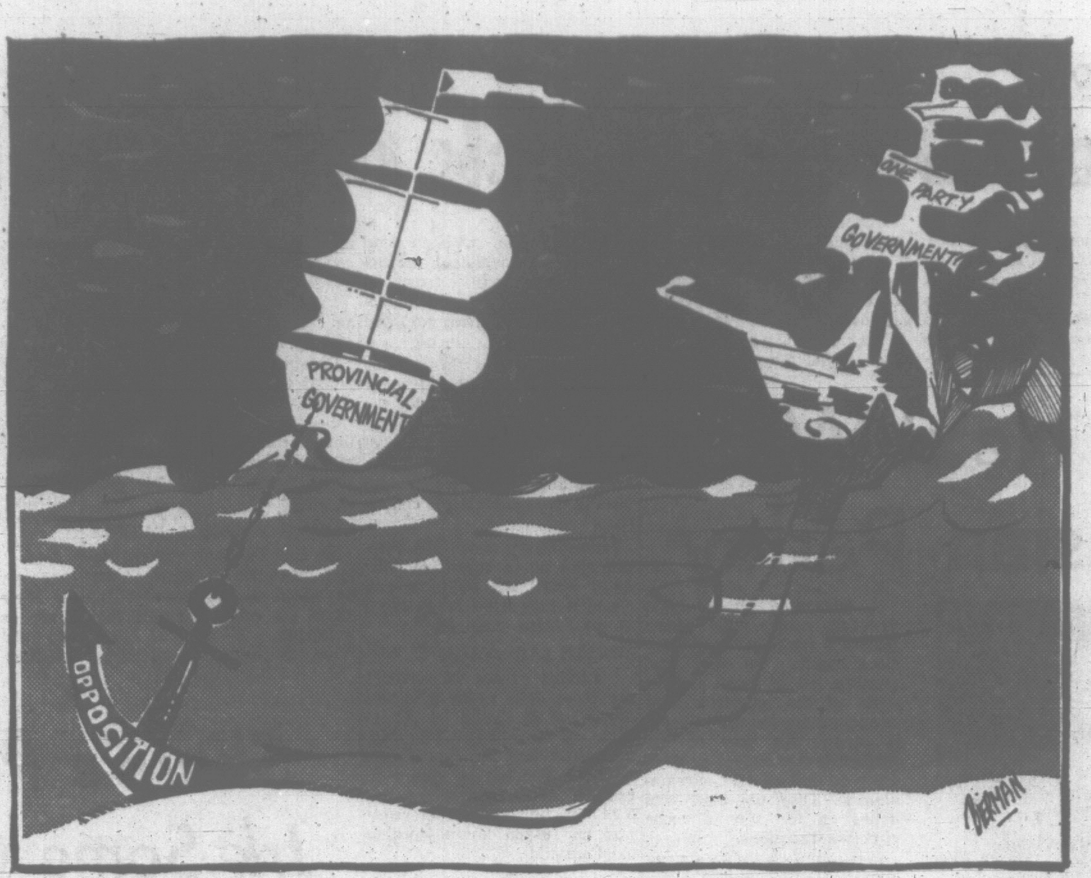
Preliminary negotiations to date leave a large number of details to be settled before the new national park becomes a fact rather than an idea. But at least the minister in Victoria is communicating with the one in Ottawa — which is a major advance over past relationships.

Give Weight to the Law

CITY MAGISTRATE OSTLER'S make-and-mend sentence pronounced on an ex-seaman found guilty of destroying six boulevard trees will find favor with the people of this community. The penalty includes two weeks of labor with the city parks department.

Every decent citizen is disgusted by the periodic outbreaks of moronic vandalism which, apart from being costly, are serious detriments to Greater Victoria's greatest asset — its tree and flower beauty.

Calling also for a fine and restitution for the damage done, the latest destructive rampage has shown a poor return to the perpetrator. The courts will have full public support in any strong measures that will effectively curb the childish but expensive nuisance of vandalism.



Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Out in the Langford Lake district there is a small bog where one can find the plants that prefer this particular kind of habitat.

The water of this little lake is rich with life; beetles of many descriptions and sizes can be found, frogs and salamanders are plentiful; some of the predacious beetles are almost four inches long.

Dragon flies of many descriptions dart around the lake, many tiny flying creatures abound on the sphagnum moss.

Along the margin of the water the pond lily with its large floating leaves is in abundance, and the centre-stem Water Shield leaves are covered with aphids. Here the bees come to gather nectar that the little insects have extracted from the plants.

One can find the bladderwort, with its leaves that trap minute animal life. There is also lots of Hornewort in its whorls of leaves, and mingled with it you can find the curled pondweed.

As you come in closer to land there is an abundance of St. Johns wort and the water Cinquefoil.

The sphagnum moss is very thick and as you walk on it the whole area seems to wave. Growing here are lots of the small leaf sundew. Look closely and you will see many tiny insects curled up in the sticky leaves.

Getting the Rails Back Onto Politics

Western

THE debate on the railway bill has already exploded one of the assumptions of its authors and thrown grave doubts on another. At the outset Mr. Pickersgill, interpreting a remark of the prime minister, observed optimistically that there are some things which can be done in crisis that could not be done in ordinary times. "I like to think," he added, "there is a sense of urgency about this legislation that has not existed at any time since the MacPherson report was received."

The thought presumably was that members would regard the legislation as the complement to the act requiring the resumption of service on the railways. For as the prime minister said in his pre-strike television address, the greater freedom to be conferred on the companies by the bill which is now before the House "should enable the railways themselves to bear the burden of a legitimate increase in wages."

Mr. Pickersgill spoke, however, at a moment when the sense of urgency was rapidly evaporating. It has now gone. The railway bill is now regarded as long-term legislation requiring informed and leisurely debate.

But this is not all. Although the demand on the CPR and CNR is immediate (according to the undisputed assertions of Senator McCutcheon $48 million this year and $134 million when the 18 per cent is in effect), it is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the House, up to now, has virtually ignored the problem of where this money is to come from. What it has worried about, to the exclusion of practically everything else, is the impact of the bill on various regions and interests of the country.

The minister of transport, on moving second reading, expressed the view that it would have been impossible in 1964 to pass the original bill, adding with disarming candor that it is a good thing it did not pass. He then embarked on a discussion of railways and politics which led him to the rather dramatic observation: "On the day we cease to have politics in transportation, we will cease to have a free country."

It is not necessary to follow Mr. Pickersgill in distinguishing between selfish politics and good politics. The important point is that the shape of the present legislation obviously owes a good deal to political calculations or recalculations. Moreover, it is virtually certain that politics is going to shape it a good deal more as it moves through the House at a speed which Mr. Pickersgill estimated rather uncertainly at something between that of revolutions and that of glaciers.

The minister's attitude to the bill is in fact one of great flexibility; the government is committed to the broad principles of the measure but as regards details is open to suggestion from any quarter of the House.

On the issue of abandonments, for example, Mr. Pickersgill has gone very far to meet the objections voiced by Mr. Hamilton for the Conservatives in 1964 and again last week. There is now to be a guaranteed rail network with a further assurance that many lines not included will neverthelss in all probability escape the axe.

But this is only one issue; there is likely to be even more controversy over rate-setting. On many matters Mr. Pickersgill and Mr. Hamilton appear to be reasonably close in their views. Quite evidently, however, Mr. Hamilton's views are not unchallenged in his own party. Thus the member for Qu'Appelle congratulated the minister on a "much improved bill" but Mr. Horner, another Conservative member from Acadia, called it a "monstrosity" and saw nothing good in it for my part of Canada." Contrasting it with the 1964 measure, he asked: "How is it an improvement?"

Mr. Horner was probably voicing the anxiety which has built up in his constituency in the long years since the MacPherson report was published. There will undoubtedly be pressure from other areas as there was in the controversy earlier this year over the discontinuance of The Dominion. The pressure on the government will all be in one direction; towards a weakening of the bill. We start with watered-down MacPherson and will probably end with watered-down Pickersgill.

The two railway presidents may have been unduly pessimistic last week when they could find nothing in the bill to ensure them healthier revenues in the early future. But they will probably have more reason for concern when the measure assumes final form.

In that event, what is to happen? Parliament has been told that the existing subsidies will continue into next year. They, of course, pre-date the wage settlement which is almost bound to be revised upwards through arbitration. But the prime minister stated on television: "The government cannot continue to p;rovide subsidies to pay railway workers without imposing higher taxes. This we are not prepared to ask Parliament to do."

When Mr. Pearson spoke in this fashion, the government was preparing legislation which, according to its subsequent showing, anticipated a settlement of not less than 18 per cent. If there are not to be more subsidies, the additional revenues required will have to be forthcoming as a result of the legislation now before the House. This now seems doubtful because Parliament since last Thursday has shown very little interest in this aspect of the problem. Everybody is against subsidies in principle but not, from present indications, to the point of antagonizing consituents at home.

Dividends From the U.S. Viet Nam Policy

Alsop

IT is high time for someone to speak out, loud and clear, about the great success already achieved in Asia by the American effort in Viet Nam. This does not show at home, where all eyes are upon the harsh, always continuing war. But it stands out a a mile here in Thailand, in the aftermath of Gen. De Gaulle's strange and haughty Asian oration.

Sen. J. William Fulbright and his sympathizers used to warn the country, in hollow, tragic voices, that the American intervention to defend South Viet Nam would make every Asian an enemy of the United States. If these warnings had not been wholly misleading, Eastern Asia should now be resounding with acclamations for De Gaulle.

Instead, the De Gaulle speech has been sharply condemned by the usually cautious Japanese; and in every other Asian country not aligned with the Communists, the speech has either been sharply condemned or simply treated as unworthy of comment. Nor is the response to De Gaulle anything more than the supreficial symptom of a truly profound change in the Asian outlook.

The able foreign minister of Thailand, Thanat Khoman, summed up the change very succinctly. "A year and a half ago," he said to me, "there seemed to be no doubt at all that we should soon be faced with a Communist-controlled axis running from Indonesia to North Korea, and including the whole of Viet Nam, Cambodia and eventually Laos. The pressure on the other Asian countries would then have been all but irresistible, and in some cases it would not have been resisted.

"That threat has vanished now, and it can never be revived if the American effort in Viet Nam is successful in the end, as I am sure it will be. Instead, the non-Communist Asian countries are now moving further and further toward forms of co-operation, even partnership, which have great promise for the future."

The foreign minister's colleague at the development ministry, the astute and experienced Pote Sarasin, put the matter even more concisely. Viet Nam, he said, had been the decisive test, both of America's willingness to live up to American commitments and of the much vaunted prospects of general Communist victory. "Suppose you had done differently," he continued. "Everyone is now convinced that the future does not lie with the Communists.

"But if you had done differently, it would be just the other way around. And in Indonesia, for instance, the sensible leaders would not be in any position to try to save their country from ruin, as they are now doing. Instead, everyone in Jakarta would be saying that Bung Karno was dead right all along."

A few days ago, the courageous Indonesian foreign minister, Adam Malik, also happened to pass through Bangkok. Throughout a long and absorbing afternoon's talk about Indonesian problems and hopes, there were always two underlying assumptions. The first was that the Indonesian Communists would have won in the end somehow, if the United States had left the Vietnamese to their fate. And the second was that the Indonesian future must still in a considerable measure depend upon a successful outcome in Viet Nam.

There is much other evidence of the same sort, ranging from Seoul to Manila, from Rangoon to Singapore, where the position taken by the brilliant leader, Lee Kuan Yew, is particularly significant. In Asia, more than almost anywhere, politics are governed by an acute sense of the trend of events; and except for the eccentric Prince Sihanouk in Cambodia, Asian leaders see the trend today, not as de Gaulle sees it, but as Pote Sarasin sees it.

That does not mean, however, that we can take the Asians for granted, even if the time comes when our effort in Viet Nam has succeeded. On the one hand, we cannot permit ourselves to indulge in the kind of arrogant outrage typified by Sen. Fulbright's proposed investigation of American activities in this country.

Here is a country that has given the United States every kind of assistance imaginable and with the freest and most generous hand, all on one signed condition, that this assistance should not be too publicly discussed. It is not going too far to describe Sen. Fulbright's plan to hold public hearings on these matters as a plan for giving aid and comfort to the enemy. If we want allies, we must treat them as equals.

Even if we manage to refrain from such self-righteous provocation, we must be prepared for surprises and even for shocks if and when we have succeeded in Viet Nam. The main motive for the Asian co-operation that is being pushed by foreign minister Thanat is to assure the independence of the Asians, eventually including independence of the Americans. No doubt this independence may later be manifested in distressing ways. But the wiser Americans will take these manifestations as proofs of our success.

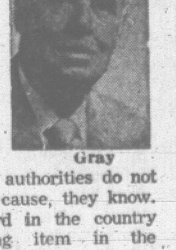
Rising Pressure to Make Vandals Pay



Gray

WHEN childish pranks become vandalism, who should pay for the cost of repairing the damage. This question is being asked with increasing frequency lately with the mounting toll of damage. In Vancouver recently, authorities, suspected that $10,000,000 in damage may have been caused by children playing with matches. In much of the other damage that is done, authorities do not have to guess at the cause, they know.

Every school board in the country includes a whopping item in the maintenance budgets for replacing broken glass. Most of the damage is attributed to accidents, it varies widely from school to school. But there is also a conviction that a good deal of the glass is broken accidently on purpose.

Then there is sheer unadulterated vandalism. Last year a group of Calgary teen-agers broke into a high school and did more than $5,000 damage before they ran out of steam. Toilet fixtures were torn out or damaged, floors were flooded and the walls were disfigured. The gang was eventually rounded up and sent to jail.

The well-to-do family of one of the vandals managed to get their son sprung after he had served a month. Those from poorer homes did longer jail sentences. But who was responsible to make good the damage done? While public indignation was noticeable, the school board was considering having its lawyer sue the parents to recover the costs of the repairs. Nothing further has been heard of the idea.

In Edmonton, the Separate School Board is wrestling with a similar problem on a smaller scale. During the summer it had a group of carpenters at work repairing the damage to desks that took place during the previous school term. One out of every four desks in the high schools had to be repaired.

In the language labs, tubes had been ripped out of equipment and tapes destroyed. Most of the $400 damage done to the laboratory was wilful, the superintendent reported.

The superintendent thought a lot of damage occurred during after-school functions. Anyway, the principals are being dunned to help cut the damage. The student councils are to be called in and asked to take the lead in protecting public property. If the councils fail to co-operate, it may be that student council funds will be taxed to pay for the damage.

The School Act in Alberta provides that pupils may be suspended from school until his parents pay for the damage he has done to school property.

The problem here is that not many vandals act individually. The damage is usually done by a group so that identifying the one mainly responsible is difficult if not impossible most of the time.

At its recent convention, the Ontario Municipal Association demanded that action be taken by the Ontario Legislature to make parents responsible for damage caused by their juvenile offspring. It asked for a law which will make parents or guardians responsible for damage committed by children under their control.

Under the Ontario Juvenile Delinquents Act, children cannot be forced to make restitution. There is no legislation that will make their parents pay for their vandalism.

A similar proposal was voiced by the Winnipeg School Board, but a police magistrate batted the ball right back at the board. What was needed, he said, was a lot more and stronger discipline in the schools where the pupils spend so much of their life.

A truant officer chirped up with the opinion that putting pressure on parents wouldn't work because the vandals usually had inadequate parents in the first place.

Here the argument obviously got at cross purposes. The magistrate and truant officer were concerned with juvenile delinquency. The school boards and civic leaders are concerned with dollars which somebody must pay to repair the damage done by vandals. It has nothing to do with the fate of the vandals.

Until now, the entire cost has been charged up to the taxpayers. Occasionally there are reports from the police court of adult offenders against property having made good the damage done in the hope of getting more lenient treatment. So there is some basis in law, however nebulous, for "making this right."

Where the damage is small, or at least manageable, something practical may be worked out. But unhappily, as with the Vancouver fire, the damage gets far beyond a parent's ability to make good. For example, soon after the teen-agers tore the Calgary high school apart, one of the smaller fry broke into a public school and set it afire. It was burned beyond repair before the fire could be extinguished.

Tendering the bill for $400,000 to the parents would be akin to the practice once prevalent on the CPR. When an engineer drove his train into an open swicth, or otherwise goofed, the railway would send him a bill for the $40,000 or $50,000 damage he had caused the company property. So far as can be discovered, none of these bills was ever paid.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd was buried in a hero's grave in South Africa today, victim of an assassin who knifed him to death in Parliament.

Verwoerd's ruling Nationalist party will caucus next week to name a successor. Whoever is chosen there seems little chance of modification of the government's racial segregation policies.

If anything they may be more harshly applied in the wake of the assassination. One of the leading candidates for prime minister is Justice Minister Balthazar Vorster, a former Nazi sympathizer who is the chief architect of the apartheid legislation.

Another possible choice is Finance Minister Eben Donges who lost out to Verwoerd in the party's last leadership vote in 1958 and took over as acting prime minister immediately after his death.

The assassin was identified as Dimitri Tsafendas, 48, of uncertain parentage, possibly Greek, who came to South Africa from Portuguese Mozambique and got a job as a parliamentary messenter.

He was subdued by other MPs after he plunged a sliver dagger into Verwoerd's neck and chest without warning.

Tsafendas was charged with murder and is expected to receive the death penalty. Described as a bitter, lonely man, his specific grievance against Verwoerd was unknown.

For Verwoerd, 65, death came at the height of his power. Despite world-wide condemnation of his regime, South Africa was prospering. Inside the country there is no effective opposition to the Nationalists.

●

Leaders of the new African nations openly hostile to South Africa shed few tears over Verwoerd's death. They warned that continuation of apartheid will lead eventually to more bloodshed.

Hit hard by news of the assassination was Prime Minister Ian Smith of neighboring Rhodesia, whose rebel regime has few friends outside South Africa. Verwoerd has helped keep his government afloat in recent months.

●

Smith was the chief topic in London where the Commonwealth was holding another conference on the Rhodesian problem.

As expected, the African and Asian members applied the pressure to Britain to use stiffer action to topple Smith's white settler government. One prime minister, Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore, went so far as to suggest the RAF might bomb key Rhodesian rail centres, a la North Viet Nam.

Others were more moderate, proposing compulsory economic sanctions and use of force only if these fail after a specified time.

India attempted to moderate the more extreme African demands and Prime Minister Pearson was also cast in a peacemaker role, arguing with Britain against use of force.

●

If Prime Minister Harold Wilson found the going rough at the Commonwealth meeting, he didn't have it much easier immediately before at the annual Trade Union Congress.

Wilson made a tough speech to the unionists defending the necessity of his freeze on wages during the current austerity program. He also lashed out at featherbedding by the unions as an obstacle to increased productivity.

Reluctantly, the TUC voted to support the government's economic policies by a proxy vote of five million to four million.

The unions went on record, however, as opposing Wilson's support of the U.S. in Viet Nam and calling for an immediate end to bombing of North Viet Nam.

●

A scattered five-day rebellion against Parliament's back to-work railway law ended after the Labor Day holiday and the trains began to run again . . .

To no one's surprise, Liberal Joseph Smallwood won an easy election victory and entered his sixth term as premier of Newfoundland.

Labor Issue Crucial In Transport Problem

By DOUGLAS FISHER

All hail to the Hon. Jack Pickersgill, Minister of Transport. His bill embodying the National Transportation Committee is understandable fairly comprehensive, and a debator's dream.

It may have consequences for every part of the country. Since these possibilities are hard to pre-figure into the distant years a lot of MPs from the Prairies, the Maritimes, and Northern Ontario are making more than the normal criticisms in the House.

Much of this is plainly unease, rather than a concerted, thought-out set of objections or an alternative policy.

The bill is a nationalistic document in the sense it asserts a plan and an administrative framework for all forms of transport conveying goods and people except private cars and boats, local and regional trucking, and mail delivery.

This is not as revolutionary as it sounds or Mr. Pickersgill makes believe. The extension in authority is fairly mild—long-haul, inter-provincial trucking and commodity pipelines.

But this extension, plus the transportation commission's embrace of three current separate boards at long last provides a central agency: administering tariffs, rates, licensing, and subsidies; researching and formulating policy decisions; phasing-out services and generally seeking a shifting, efficient equilibrium between all forms of transport.

Indeed, the new NTC will be so grand that it's a pity to ask bothering questions about it.

The first is rather obvious but its the addendum to it which is important. Where are the two or three brilliant leaders needed for the commission to come from and, even if they are found, does the bill give them enough freedom, especially from the minister of transport? Put simply, the department of transport has failed as transportation's policy-making and leadership entity.

Most of this responsibility is shifted to the commission; but the commission will report on almost every issue to the minister.

The second question is fundamental: The rail strikes, the near miss of an Air Canada strike three months ago, the long fester of the SIU in maritime matters going back to the loss of the CN Caribbean fleet, the postal strike a year ago and the one looming ahead—all these highlight the labor and manpower predicament in national transport.

When the McPherson Commission was set up it was warned off and eschewed any examination of the labor situation of the rails.

Of course, the labor problem is touchy—it's political.

It's also crucial.

All the hurrahs in the world that the new bill opens an era of transport competition and efficiency can't disguise this elemental series of facts: rail, air, maritime, and trucking employees are organized in many unions, most international in origin but more important, national in scope.

Obviously, the days of the union's use of the strike as ultimate weapon are nearly over.

What is to be the substitute, in fairness to all these workers in all their unions?

If we cannot countenance major strikes in transportation, what system should take its place? The supposed theme of the bill is competition between the modes of transport. But the largest cost factor in transport, the wage bill, is moving out of the competitive sector.

Those who search the bill for the responsibilities put on the great commission won't find any suggestion that this major, continuing issue is to be one of its interests, much less a responsibility.

What profit a theoretically omniscient transport scheme which ignores the recent, present, and future labor dilemma?

Any day now a gentleman who graces Shawnigan's summer with residence two small promontories north of our place at Cigarmakers' Bay may bend competent fingers over facile typewriter keys to compose an annual camp-closing dirge.

It will be a piece of divine melancholy, touched with the heartache of a departing season of the sun, a gentle lament for the too fleeting passage of time that cannot be recaptured. He will turn the key in the lock, look once more at the lake from his patio through eyes grown misty, and plod his way up the woodland path to the city and a winter of potential discontent and crisis.

Lucky guy!

Not for me the sentimental leave-taking. For me the continued drudgery of work left undone that should have been done. Here, in formless design, is to be repeated the weary fable of the ant and the grasshopper. As the latter, I don't hop so well these days. While he succumbs to the civilized comforts of a good home, I shall be engaged in a task that seems to be endless—digging in the dirt.

* * *

In recurring rebellion I have rejected the shovel time and again. That has merely delayed completion of an unfinished basement project. And by way of retribution I now suffer the added labors of digging a bleeding (the adjective is technical) field for the septic tank I hope some day to have in working order—or perhaps my children or their children may have in working order.

Civilization and sanitation have moved in on me at Shawnigan. The carefree one-room-and-a-path which seemed thoroughly adequate and engagingly pioneering in the days of my more robust youth, is now encrusted with extra rooms, electricity, running water and the small space where a three-piece bathroom unit will go if I dig through ground a mischievous destiny has planted with rocks that grow on rocks on top of, and occasionally bedded in, hardpan.

So I go to this resort so many consider a land of recreation, relaxation and rest only to disappear, shovel in one hand, pick in the other, into the excavation that grows so slowly. From its depth, I too, cast a wistful eye on that little tent of blue which prisoners call the sky.

Ounce by back-breaking ounce, the earth comes out. Half-ton by half-ton the boulders are removed. Foot by foot the tree roots are cut through, creating special hazards for trunks which will eventually wither, die and fall down.

A man grasps at wild ideas, deep in his trench, thinking, perhaps, the stones he jars loose may be gold. I have found no nuggets yet, but I have discovered the place where I piled rocks from a previous excavation and then overlaid them with soil. Here is a refinement the Greeks might have conceived in the punishment of Sisyphus. All he had to do was keep rolling stones uphill—routine procedure in my operation as ditch-side boulders continually fall back into their original places.

* * *

There is, of course, an easier way to accomplish my purpose. I could contract the job out, at considerable expense. Or better still I might inveigle a husky son-in-law to take up the pick and shovel where I cast them down.

This is infinitely the preferable system, though it has drawbacks. Once I managed to persuade the young man to labor with me—at vast expense in lemon crush, which he uses as fuel. And a magnificent weekend's performance he produced. When he left, stoop-shouldered at the end of his short sojourn, it became apparent that he would think twice before coming back. No inducement I have yet thought up has encouraged him to make a return visit. It's difficult to "con" a lemon crush man.

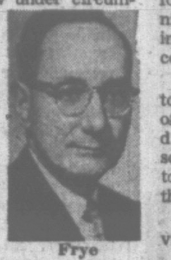
Still, there are devious ways of breaking off labor. Expensive but effective is a little trick of leaving your pick head down in the dirt, where the processes of decay can set in on the working end of the handle. When the condition is advanced enough, you need only drive the point sharply behind a huge rock—and you encounter plenty—strain hard upward, and the handle breaks.

Without a pick, you're free until the next visit to town.

But I'd rather ignore the whole operation and write a touching dirge. One thing deters me. Down in a ditch for bleeding tile, one does not ask for whom the bell tolls. The excavation is not too narrow nor yet too deep.

Viet Nam Vote Could Bring Hope Of Peace Settlement

By WILLIAM R. FRYE
Times UN Correspondent



Frye

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—South Viet Nam heads for the polls tomorrow under circumstances that permit a glimmer of peace in that tormented land.

Red Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi told a group of visiting Japanese VIPs this past week that there could be no "solution" to the Viet Nam conflict until American troops had been withdrawn. Previously the Chinese line was that there could be no "negotiations" until that withdrawal had occurred.

Similarly the North Vietnamese, in comments on Gen. Charles de Gaulle's latest peace terms, appeared to accept his basic hypothesis: that an American withdrawal, if definitely scheduled, could accompany, not precede, peace.

De Gaulle's proposition has been widely misinterpreted. He did not propose an American pull-out independently of all else.

What he said following his vist to Cambodia was: "All acts of war on Vietnamese soil should cease, which implies that all foreign powers that have introduced troops there first of all take the commitment to withdraw them within a set period of time to cease all intervention."

Guarantees

He further proposed that the whole of former French Indo-China—Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam—be given "guaranteed, controlled neutrality."

What this amounted to was a three-stage plan:

1. Announcement of an unconditional American timetable, or deadline, for withdrawal.

2. "All acts of war on Vietnamese soil should cease" —obviously including North Vietnamese infiltration and Viet Cong terrorism.

3. A political settlement based on safeguarded neutrality should be put into effect.

Moscow and Hanoi chose to interpret this propositon as a rebuff for the United States. So did much of Washington.

What was widely overlooked was that in implying approval for the first step, the Communists were also permitting the inference that they would consider the latter two steps.

The United States objected to the unconditional character of the proposed troop withdrawal. President Johnson sought to make it conditional to Communist acceptance of the rest of the package.

But he, too, implied approval of the package as a whole.

The gap between these positions is still great, but it may conceivably be bridgable. The elections in South Viet Nam may help to bridge it.

The missing link is not really agreement on which comes first, the chicken of peace or the egg of withdrawal. Diplomats can solve this kind of problem with a formula for simultaneity—provided, of course, there is a genuine wish to solve it.

Hard to Leave

What is missing is sound reason to believe that, even if there were peace, United States power and influence could safely be withdrawn, leaving the Saigon government to deal with non-violent subversion and political infighting.

If Saigon has no adequate popular base, and will collapse as soon as the Americans leave, an early withdrawal is not feasible whatever Hanoi and the Viet Cong are willing to do.

Fear that the United States will insist on a prolonged trusteeship has long kept Hanoi from agreeing to seek peace, the French believe.

A government is Saigon with firm popular support could make such a trusteeship unnecessary. It could be relied upon to fend off communism with its own strength.

Until now, such a government has seemd an impossible illusion. Today's elections will be the first step tward its creation.

As of tomorrow, Saigon will have started down the long road toward stability and legitimacy. It will, that is, within the obvious limits imposed by war and terrorism.

The "missing link" which could one day make possible an American pull-out, in safety, has begun to be constructed.

Increasing Slaughter On the Mountains

By ROLAND HUNTFORD

CHAMONIX — The long-drawn-out and widely reported rescue of two West German mountaineers at Chamonix has served as a sensational punctuation of yet another Alpine season of disasters. Sixty men spent over a week fetching down the trapped pair from a tiny ledge on the perpendicular west face of the mountain called the Dru, which is one of the longest and worst climbs in the Alps.

Thirty climbers have already been killed in the French Alps alone in two months, including one of those trying to rescue the Germans. Yet again, many have asked whether it is all worth while and what can be done to stop the slaughter.

The immediate reaction to the Dru episode was the renewal of a long-standing demand by Chamonix guides (who bear the brunt of rescue work) for a system of licensing and control whereby difficult climbs would be prohibited to those unqualified to make them. This has been officially rejected, on the grounds that it would be impossible to enforce and through a distaste for intruding on the "liberty of the mountains."

Great Popularity

And yet, the question still remains: what is to be done about Alpine accidents. Climbing has become one of the great popular recreations of Europe. The sun-bronzed young man with ice axe and climbing rope rakishly slung over his shoulders is a well-known figure in advertising, magazine serials and novels.

Conquering a mountain has become an accepted escape from the cities. As July, August and early September arrive, and with them the short season in which weather at high altitudes is reasonably safe, hordes of young men and women in their late teens and early twenties converge on the Alpine ranges to spend their holidays scaling rocks or plodding across glaciers. Their equipment is expensive and their custom supports a considerable industry. Besides the ice axe, made of hand-forged high-grade iron and selected ash, and nylon rope, there are numberless slings and whole families of steel pegs for driving into rock and ice. It is these last that cause most accidents.

The purpose of these pegs, known among mountaineers by their French name of pitons, is to make unclimbable precipices climbable.

By forcing pitons into minute cracks and crevices on otherwise smooth rock, artificial footholds can be contrived where natural ones are absent, and climbers can hoist themselves up by an intricate system of ropes and slings. A slight fault in balancing, an insufficiently fixed piton, are enough to throw a whole party to destruction.

Economics, Psychology Dictated Medicare Delay

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The rare burst of boldness with which the Liberal government postponed its $680 million medicare program this week was based as much on psychology as economics.

The decision was an acknowledgment of the fact that medicare has become a symbolic issue in terms both of federal-provincial relations and in the struggle between the right and left wings in Canadian politics. By cutting back on medicare, Ottawa was assuming leadership in breaking the inflation psychology which has gripped this country.

The dollar saving involved is not significant. According to one estimate, the difference between money now being spent on medical bills and the funds that would be available under a universal medicare plan is in the neighborhood of only $80 million.

Newman

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp was operating within narrow limits in trying to find the kind of cutback in federal expenses which would carry a dramatic enough impact. The Liberal cabinet had already decided to proceed with the $30-a-month special old age pension, and the increase in pay for the armed forces. (Though there may be a compromise here: Paul Hellyer will get the 14 per cent pay raise for his unified armed force, but it will have to come out of his existing budget, so that total defence expenditures don't exceed the $1.6 billion ceiling.)

In choosing medicare as the most effective area in which to cut back, Sharp also had in mind next week's federal-provincial conference. He could not realistically expect to go before the gathered premiers next Wednesday and plead with them to cut expenditures, while at the same time urging them to spend more money financing half of Ottawa's medicare program. By acting first, he has allowed the federal government, for once, to capture the initiative.

There's little doubt that if Sharp hadn't announced the postponement of medicare this week, he would have been forced to do so following his meeting with the premiers.

At their own get-together in Toronto last month, six of the provinces indicated strong objections to an immediate medicare program.

Not Feasible

Apart from its economic and psychological implications, there's strong doubt in Ottawa whether it was feasible to go ahead with medicare on constitutional grounds. In putting forward a medicare plan, the federal government was clearly using its spending power to influence a field of provincial jurisdiction. This, it was felt, could only be done if there existed a definite provincial consensus in favor of the medicare scheme.

The provinces, as well as resenting the setting of their priorities by the federal government, argued that the medicare offer was clear evidence Ottawa could afford to further abate its taxes in the provincial favor, and they wanted to spend these extra funds according to their own needs.

At another level, the move to defer medicare was an interesting demonstration of Mitchell Sharp's power in cabinet. The decision had not been taken when Lester Pearson left for London a week ago, but Sharp persisted and by the Thursday morning cabinet meeting when the final step was taken, only Allan MacEachen was holding out against his colleagues.

Not Against

Sharp himself, unlike Robert Winters and some of the other right-wing ministers, is not against the principle of medicare. Last January 22, speaking to a Toronto conference on poverty and planning, he came out strongly in support of a universal medicare scheme. But Sharp has come around to the priorities view of social legislation, long advocated by another Winnipeg boy, Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin.

Even the Hall royal commission on health services, incidentally, set no deadline for the implementation of its recommended medicare program. But most of its cost estimates and its projections of the required doctors and medical facilities were based on the assumption that it would be put into effect by 1971.

Sharp's stellar performance during the past week has revived speculation about his leadership candidacy, which has been dormant for the past year. He is still not recruiting delegates and has yet to be seen indulging in the kind of back-room scheming which characterizes the campaigns of some of his possible opponents. But if the country is in economic difficulties at the time the Liberal leadership convention is held, the red-headed member for Eglinton might have a compelling appeal to hard-headed Liberals.

Wrong War Views Corrected

THE WARSHIP IN HISTORY, by Philip Cowburn. Collier-Macmillan Canada Ltd. 1966. $11.95. 364 pages. Photographic illustrations and index.

Reviewed by Eric Henderson

This excellent book is exactly what its title implies, and should be an important addition to any library.

The author, in his preface, expresses his purpose to "present in convenient form and without too daunting a wealth of detail, a historical account of some of the main developments in the evolution of the warship."

This purpose he has faithfully fulfilled.

The book is suited to every type of reader except those who would attempt to skim through it in a day; it should prove an invaluable source of information for writers of historical fiction, and correct hitherto mistaken impressions about certain wars and sea battles of the past.

FAMOUS SHIPS

Excellent illustrations abound — photographic reproductions of great paintings and drawings and of exquisitely fashioned models of famous ships of the past, in addition to actual photographs of many warships launched since invention of the camera.

The dust-jacket, rather surprisingly, calls the book "heart-stirring."

This despite the author's expressed intention, consistently maintained, to forego any detailed description of famous battles — simply because they are already too well-known to need repetition.

Ideal as a gift — especially if you can borrow it back later and read it yourself.

'James Bond' Life Recalled

"MY LIFE AND TIMES: OCTAVE FIVE, 1915-1923," by Compton Mackenzie. Clarke, Irwin and Co. Ltd., 1966. 269 pages. $7.75.

Reviewed by G. A. Watt
Department of English
University of Victoria

The first four octaves of Sir Compton Mackenzie's Memoirs delighted the reading public. Now, in the fifth volume, he recounts his life from 1915-23 in the same enthralling style. The period covers his war service and his successful re-establishment as a popular novelist in post-war years.

After brief service as an intelligence officer in the Gallipoli campaign during which he witnessed the dreadful tactical blunders of the divisional commanders under General Hamilton — blunders which, in his opinion, cost the campaign — Mackenzie was appointed military control officer in Athens.

What this involved was a reorganization of the British espionage network in Greece. His exploits during this period have the aura of a James Bond novel. We see him as a "cloak-and-dagger" figure meeting contacts in secluded cafes and speeding through the Greek countryside in his high-powered Sunbeam. During the crisis in Greek internal politics in 1916, several attempts were made on his life, and his house was ransacked by Royalists on account of his Venizelist sympathies.

NOVEL CAREER

Mackenzie was invalided out of the service in 1917 due to recurrent attacks of sciatica. He retired to Capri to recuperate and pick up the threads of his career as a novelist. The novels he wrote at this time capture the mood of frenetic abandon and excess in post-war Capri.

Not the least intersting aspect of this period are Mackenzie's friendships and correspondence with various literary figures of the time: Axel Munthe, the author, whose advice helped the Mackenzies through a crisis in their marriage; Sinclair Lewis, the American novelist; Francis Brett Young; and by no means least, D. H. Lawrence, whose volatile personality is admirably illustrated in his correspondence with Mackenzie.

A fascination for islands has always been a characteristic of Mackenzie. When the two tiny Channel Islands of Herm and Jethou were put up for sale by the British government, he could not resist purchasing them.

His attempts to convert them into paying agricultural propositions, culminating in his "persuasion" of a leading post-war industrial magnate to take up an option on Herm, point to a business acumen of no uncertain proportions in the author.

PHONOGRAPH

About this time, too, Mackenzie "discovered" the phonograph. The popularization of the gramophone in the '20s is due in no small part to his enthusiastic promotion of it in his magazine, The Gramophone.

In this Octave, Mackenzie has achieved a brilliant recreation of the upper-class Zeitgeist of the war years and the early '20s. His attitudes are essentially aristocratic: he moved in a scintillating world and at a level of society which was still sufficiently "elite" for all its members to know everyone else who was worth knowing, if not personally, at least by reputation.

Mackenzie himself emerges from this chapter of his life as a man of varied talents.

MASTERMIND

We see not only Mackenzie the novelist, but Mackenzie the Intelligence mastermind, Mackenzie the business mind, Mackenzie the music critic, and most of all, Mackenzie the human being: a human being who can treat all his vicissitudes with amused detachment. Fascinating reading, and reading which makes one look forward with anticipation to octave six of his memoirs.

THE WORDS OF MY ROARING, by Robert Kroestch, The Macmillan Company of Canada Limited. 211 pp. $4.95.

Reviewed by M. E. Adamson

The happenings of just a few days can change the whole course of a man's life.

So it is with Johnnie J. Backstrom who is the hero and narrator in The Words of My Roaring. It is a political story and covers a period of about two weeks prior to the election of a member to the legislature from a small Alberta town.

During this time, J. J. Backstrom does a great deal of living and an equal amount of soul-searching.

The tale is told with a lot of good humor, but underlying the humor there is pathos. Johnnie Backstrom, an undertaker by profession, is depicted as a blundering, loudmouthed clown, but full of good intentions.

YOUNGER MAN

Everything he does somehow seems to go wrong.

His political opponent, old Doc Murdoch, who has been a life-long friend and almost a father to the younger man, constitutes a perfect foil for the hero.

One thing following upon another — the long drought suffered by this part of the country, the sudden death of his best friend, the encounter with a prophet, the stampede, love and rain — finally bring Johnnie to that moment of self-realization which results in a determination of complete honesty.

Mr. Kroestch portrays Johnnie in such an understanding and sympathetic way that one cannot help but become endeared to him. The Words of My Roaring is worthwhile and readable.

Onley Shows Works

Early Opera War Lively

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY. Ed., Earl R. Wasserman. Copp Clark Publishing Co. $7.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Aspects of the Eighteenth Century is a collection of 13 essays by scholars such as George Boas, Rene Wellek, Maynard Mack, W. J. Bate and Georges May.

Originally, these papers were delivered as lectures at the doctoral and post-doctoral seminars in the Humanites at John Hopkins University.

They have been collected and edited by Earl R. Wasserman, himself a stimulating lecturer on the eighteenth century and the author of The Subtler Language and The Finer Tone: Keats' Major Poems.

There is quite a range of subject matter and interest in this collection.

Few, other than specialists in German literature, will find much of interest in the lengthy essay on Herder and the Enlightenment by Isaiah Berlin.

The same is probably true of Heinz Politzer's essay on Goethe.

On the other hand, of considerable general interest is Jean Seznec's short essay on Diderot and Historical Painting. It clearly outlines the eighteen century standard of taste in art and quotes Diderot to show that he was above and beyond his age only in his judgment of style, accepting the hierarchy of genres as laid down by the French Academy.

It is a sprightly, informative, well-illustrated essay.

Similarly, Taste, Style, and Idology in Eighteenth Century Music by Edward E. Lowinsky contains much of general interest. He draws a comparison between the conflict in England among the lovers of Handel's operas and those who preferred Gay's Beggar's Opera, and the similar opposition that developed in France between the advocates of the native French opera and those who preferred the Italian.

The conflict between the two groups broke out in 1752 following the performance of Pergolesi's La Serva Padrona as an intermezzo between the acts of an opera by Lully.

Rousseau was present at the performance, and took up the cause of Italian opera. His criticism and his own efforts at musical composition subsequently played an important part in shaping the thinking and art of Mozart and Beethoven.

Of particular interest to students of English literature are the essays by Rene Wellek and W. J. Bate.

Rene Wellek has undertaken to examine the origin and history of the word and concept "classicism" in imitation of Leo Spitzer's excursions into "historical semantics."

It is his desire to focus on "the learned key words of our civilization and write word history within a general history of thought." The essay is part of his larger project, which he describes as "a history of literary periodization."

W. J. Bate, in his essay, The English Poet and the Burden of the Past, 1660-1820, quite frankly looks beyond the limits of the eighteenth century.

He sees the writers of the age attempting to work their way out of a self-created prison imposed by their own recognition of the greatness of earlier writers such as Shakespeare and Milton.

Ultimately, they managed to reach a compromise between imitation and innovation in art. AS the first modern writers to solve this problem, Bate feels they have an important message for their twentieth-century counterparts faced with the same dilemma.

Obviously, Aspects of the Eighteenth Century is a work of great interest primarily to those scholars specializing in the period. Non-specialists interested in the history of art and of ideas will also find much of value in this collection of essays.

TERMITES IN THE SHAPE OF MEN: COMMONSENSE VERSUS PIERRE BERTON, by E. W. and M. M. Robson. Vancouver, North Star Books, 1966. $2.50.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

It is difficult to restrain one's language and temper in reviewing Termites in the Shape of Men; indeed the first reaction was to abstain from reviewing the book at all.

The Robsons, a husband and wife team living in Vancouver, have taken up the cudgel in defence of Christianity, never pausing to consider for a moment whether or not the cudgel is the appropriate instrument for disposing of termites. All the more foolhardy appears the Robsons' task when one realizes that the group of termites to be eradicated includes not only Pierre Berton, whose Comfortable Pew has so outraged their sensibilities, but Sigmund Freud, Friederich Engels, Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzche and George Bernard Shaw.

As one reads Termites in the Shape of Men, words such as "obtuse," "perverse" and "simply stupid" come to mind. For instance, quoting Mr. Berton's statement that "Religion as we know it, as distinct from Christianity, is coming to an end," the Robsons argue that because Christianity is a religion the two terms are synonymous, and Berton is in fact advocating the end of Christianity. Obviously, the inability or unwillingness to distinguish between the philosophy or faith and the institution which is based upon it demonstrates an intense desire to substitute emotionalism for thought, confusion for clarity.

Such examples of fallacious argument may be found on nearly every page of this small book. The authors resort to name-calling, illogical extension of arguments, faulty analogies, and all manner of rhetorical questions to becloud the issues they raise.

The lack of logic in the argument of Termites in the Shape of Men is reinforced by the incoherent style of the book. The authors demonstrate a very uncertain knowledge of the fundamental rules of English sentence structure; their paragraphs are fragmentary and lacking in both unity and coherence. The phrase that most often comes to mind as one thinks back over this paltry book is "illiterate bigotry."

BRITISH author, Nicholas Monsarrat, who has lived in Canada for 13 years, will move within the next year to take up residence in England, Switzerland or the Caribbean. He likes Canada but says a writer gets stale living too long in one country.

In Death . . . Dignity

Because death is a universal human experience with profound emotional and social impact on the survivors, the customs and practices associated with it are very important.

Today people are at last finding the courage to protest against the ostentation of high-cost funerals, as also against certain funeral practices which, in their opinion, conflict with human dignity. These people, all over North America, are banding together in non-sectarian, non-profit societies — of which the Memorial Society of British Columbia with its 10,000 registered members is typical — with the object of ensuring for their families low-cost funerals which combine simplicity with dignity.

STANDING ROOM CROWD CHEERS SENTENCE

Sukarno's Pal Gets Death

JAKARTA (UPI)—A high-living former cabinet minister friend of President Sukarno was sentenced to death Friday for subversion, embezzlement, arms smuggling and polygamy.

A standing room only crowd cheered and applauded as a special subversion court levied the sentence against Jusuf Muda Dalam, former minister for central bank affairs.

Jusuf has two weeks to appeal the conviction. Jusuf, who was the first of eight members of Sukarno's former left-wing cabinet to be tried, showed no emotion when the sentence was read.

He was convicted of, among other things, absconding with $287 million in state funds, importing vast quantities of Communist-bloc arms for distribution to Indonesia's Communist party and marrying six wives—two more than are permitted by Moslem religious law.

Jusuf's sensational two-week trial implicated Sukarno himself several times in the course of free-wheeling testimony. Observers believe Sukarno will be progressively implicated in the madcap affairs of the Indonesia government's upper echelons as the other seven ministers are brought to trial.

He Wouldn't Fight, Jailed for 5 Years

FORT DIX, N.J. (AP) — Pte. David A. Samas, 20, of Modesto, Calif., was convicted Friday of refusing to go to Viet Nam and sentenced to five years hard labor.

A 10-man military court also ordered that he be given a dishonorable discharge and forfeit all pay and allowances.

Two companions similarly convicted received prison terms at hard labor Wednesday and earlier Friday.

Samas had been charged with wilfully disobeying an order July 14 that he board an aircraft bound for Saigon from nearby McGuire Air Force Base.

Samas appeared shaken by the sentence.

Earlier Friday Pfc. James A. Johnson Jr., 20, of New York, was sentenced to five years hard labor, dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of pay. Wednesday, Pte. Dennis Mora, 25, of New York, received a three-year sentence on the same charge.

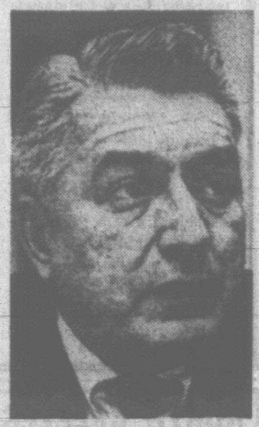
The soldiers were arrested by military authorities July 7, 17 days after the Samas were married. The soldiers had told a press conference the week before that they would not fight in Viet Nam. They called the war "illegal, unjust and immoral."

Ottawa 'Showing Leadership'

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Friday it is up to the Canadian government to show leadership in fighting inflation in Canada.

He was commenting at a press conference on the Ottawa announcement Thursday by Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp that implementation of Canada's new medical care plan would be postponed for a year.

Pearson said his government spent the last two months sifting and examining every proposed expenditture. We hoped the decision to postpone the scheme would be helpful in reducing inflation.



BEGINNING as special consultant to President Johnson is Princeton University Professor Eric Goldman who plans to write critical appraisal of Johnson administration.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the charity bridge game held Wednesday at the junior club were:

Section A—North-south: 1. Judy Langstaff and Una Orme; 2. Percy and Florence Edwards; 3. Doris Gilbert and Pegg Crawford. East-west: 1. Ray Martin and Art Barber; 2. Vaughn and Lenore Thomson; 3. Babs and Ed Harris.

'You're Nuts,' He Shouted

A three-month jail term brought an outburst from a man convicted of vagrancy in central court Thursday.

Wain Shrump, no fixed address, was charged after he tried to borrow money from an off-duty policeman at the Melrose Cafe.

When he first appeared he told Magistrate Ostler he had never been in trouble with Vancouver police but a check of his record later in the day showed he had been arrested by them twice.

"What?" he bellowed, "Three months for vagrancy?" when sentence was passed.

"You'll get more if you say another word," said the magistrate sternly.

"You're nuts," said Shrump as a policeman holding him in an armlock led him from the courtroom.

The accused's record included convictions for thefts, breaking, entering and theft and uttering forged cheques.

ALAN MACFARLANE
TO EVERY VOTER IN THE OAK BAY - SAANICH RIDING

Dear Voter:

Throughout the election campaign, I've done my best to let you know exactly where I stand on a variety of issues. I believed it my duty to do so.

A large number of you have given me the advantage of your opinions, both during sessions of the legislature and in this campaign. Your co-operation has made my job more worthwhile, and I am grateful for your interest and assistance.

Social Credit has not raised any real issue in this campaign—but has repeated old and unfulfilled promises. The purpose of the government in calling the election is now clear. It seeks to increase an already lopsided majority and to purge itself of those M.L.A.'s of its own party who have dared to criticize from within.

Many of you have voted in the Oak Bay riding in the past, and I appreciate your support, and hope I may have it again.

Some of you are voting in the new riding for the first time. I have spoken for you and all residents of Greater Victoria in the legislature—not only for Oak Bay—because I believe we all share an interest in a better community on Southern Vancouver Island. The problems of the area as a whole have been my concern. To continue this work, I need your support.

I ask for your vote so that I may have the opportunity of being your voice in the legislature, and I make one promise—that if you place your confidence in me, I will do everything in my power to ensure that you will be effectively represented.

The decision is now yours. Thank you for your interest in my campaign.

Yours sincerely,

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

I have overheard many times our local teen-agers remark, "That it must be true that Victoria rolls up the sidewalks as soon as it gets dark." And then jokingly they add, "The only question is where do they put them after they are rolled up?"

What to do at night has been the major area of discussion among Victoria's younger set for as long as I can remember.

The expression "Victoria is a dead town" has been phrased in many different ways by many different people but basically it all boils down to the big question of "What is there to do?"

We are constantly reminded that the ever-increasing amount of juvenile delinquency can be attributed to the fact that the kids of Victoria have no place to spend their spare time.

Enterprising businessmen, almost all in their late teens and early twenties, have tried without success to establish night-spots to provide our young population with some form of entertainment.

But, what stopped most of these entertainment facilities from becoming permanent was either a negative financial statement or a rash of uncalled-for trouble and fights between patrons.

The latter usually being the reason.

And this explains why, at present, we have no places of entertainment geared for the younger set other than Jon York's Music Hall on Government Street, which is somewhat limited to followers of ethnic music.

The problem will increase, now that school days have returned and kids will want somewhere to spend a couple of nights on the weekend before facing their textbooks the following Monday.

A few suggestions in the right places might set some wheels turning and the old town a-shaking for the younger set.

BITS AND PIECES

Victoria group, the new Take Four are booked into Seattle later this month — they will be the first local group to play the U.S. in a number of years . . . Miss PNE of 1966, Judy Collyer, was entertained at the Cage about three weeks ago — Judy, also titled Miss Royal City, was unaware that the PNE crown was to be hers as she danced to the blues and sound of Victoria's original rhythm and blues group, Blues By Five . . . Watch for a big change soon in the Bakerloo Line.

Casting Meeting

A casting meeting for the comedy, The Silver Whistle, will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. at 2656 Cavendish Avenue.

Vera Trueman will direct the production which is scheduled for sometime in November.

Anyone interested but unable to attend the casting meeting should phone Mrs. Trueman, 383-0417.

Highest Mark In Province

A second-year University of Victoria student, Donna Dougan, has been awarded a silver medal by the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, in the recent Grade 8 organ examination.

Her mark of 90 was the highest obtained in that grade in British Columbia.

Miss Dougan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Dougan, Shawnigan Lake, has been studying the organ with Richard Proudman for only one year.

Her older sister, Lynne, is also a gifted organist and pianist.

PLUGGERS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sonny and Cher will make their first trip to continental Europe to plug "Good Times," their new picture.

Choir Eyes Banner Year

Centennial year has a particular significance for Victoria's oldest musical organization as well as for its director.

In 1967 the Arion Male Choir celebrates the 75th anniversary of its continuous activity.

At the same time Frank Tupman, who has guided the ensemble from the podium for many years, will complete 50 years of choral conducting in this city.

The Arion Choir and Mr. Tupman are planning a banner year to mark the anniversary.

Among events in the planning stage is a visit from the Eugene Gleemen in May for a joint concert.

Victoria's only other male voice ensemble, The Meistersingers, after encountering numerous problems, have decided to disband and many of them will be joining the ranks of the Arions.

Five-Year Pact Signed by Britt

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Scandinavian actress Britt Ekland has been signed to a five-picture contract and will co-star in the first picture opposite her husband, actor Peter Sellers.

Sellers will direct as well as star in the film, entitled The Bobo.

Location shooting is scheduled to begin in Spain in late September.

"We're celebrating the end of summer," said the man with the large family. Our maitre d' Leslie had found them a window table in our poolside dining room and he was drawn into the conversation.
"Monday is voting day—no more election speeches or political commercials on TV," said Dad.
"And the World Series and Grey Cup are coming up," said the college-age son.
"And the kids are back at school and the summer guests have stopped arriving," beamed Mother.
"And the grass cutting is slowing down," said the 13-year-old boy, "and next comes the Thanksgiving turkey."
"And then comes Santa Claus," said the little girl twins together.
"For Pete's sake eat your dinner," said Dad glumly.

MUSIC CAREER SCHOOL SET

Gifted to Form Core

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Beginning this fall and to an intensifying degree in the next few years, Victoria School of Music will offer a comprehensive program of study for two kinds of serious music students.

One kind, the highly gifted with potential for a professional career, will form the essential core of the school.

The second will be dedicated avocational musicians with the desire to excel in their hobby.

Director of the school, Robin Hood, and assistant director Rodney Webster, discussed plans and organization at an interview this week.

"It is our intention to provide a sound basis over a wide range from the earliest age," says Mr. Wood.

The range is extended this year to initiate a vocal department, junior and intermediate choirs and junior and intermediate instrumental ensembles.

The vocal department will be opened by Stanley Hoban who will come from Seattle for a part of each week. Students interested in auditioning with Mr. Hoban may make arrangements through the school.

Mr. Hoban was director of the extremely successful vocal and choral workshop held by the National Association of Teachers of Singing at the Empress Hotel last month.

His singing career spanned both sides of the Atlantic, in recital halls, in opera and over BBC and CBC radio networks.

Recognized as an outstanding authority on the voice and its production, he established studios in Winnipeg, on the faculty of the Royal Conservatory of Music and in Seattle.

In addition speech art is to be taught at the school in class and private lessons by Mrs. Helen Greene and Mrs. Opal Campbell, well-known Victoria teachers.

Mr. Webster emphasizes that formal training of the voice will not begin before the ages of 17 or 18.

"Our junior and intermediate choirs will be formed purely for such musical attributes as ear training and developing a fine sense of phrasing," says Mr. Webster.

Ensemble Training

"We will be laying the foundation for a school orchestra as well," he adds, "but this, too, is entirely related to the learning process. Concert performance will not be our objective — at least for some time."

The ensemble training will be gradual," Mr. Wood explains.

"As soon as youngsters have sufficient grasp of their instruments they will be put into combinations of twos, threes and so on."

Saturday afternoons are to be devoted exclusively to chamber music classes which will be open to the more advanced instrumentalists.

The current school year which opens Monday, is to be divided into four terms of nine weeks each with formal examinations occurring at the end of terms two and four.

"We will establish our own grading system and we hope before long to be able to bring in an outside examiner," Mr. Wood comments.

Next Saturday there will be a mid-day faculty concert in the school auditorium at 12:15 p.m. in which every department will be represented.

Mr. Webster is also working on a syllabus which is scheduled to be published in December. This is in itself a massive undertaking which has involved study of dozens of similar publications of major music schools.

With the phenomenal expansion of the school in the two years since it opened it is not to be wondered that the question of the Symphony Society finding new quarters became a matter of urgency.

As it is, there will not be an angle or nitch of the neat building on Centennial Square that will not be dedicated to the music-learning process this year.

What is ahead with inevitable further expansion? So far, no comment, but it is a practical issue that will have to be dealt with and that in a matter of months.

Uvic Theatre

How many people are aware, I wonder, that within four years the University of Victoria will be granting its first Bachelor of Fine Arts degrees?

The theatre division, although it is still waiting the appointment of a chairman, is a fully established entity now within the new Fine Arts department.

Six courses will be provided this year with more to be added when the 1967 fall semester opens.

Carl Hare, who says that advertisements have been drafted and that the division hopes to attract a notable theatre authority as its head, is enthusiastic about developments.

Theatre courses combine the academic with the practical and all are available to arts students. There is also a possibility that they will be made available to registrants in education.

Among the courses in this year's calendar are Theatre Aesthetics, History, and Directed Studies in Directing, to be given by Frederick Edell, MFA (Yale), and Acting and Modern World Drama by Carl Hare.

Evening Courses

A weekly evening workshop and two Saturday workshops will be offered by the theatre division this winter.

The evening series will have Mr. Hare as instructor. It will consist of 24 sessions on improvization for actors. These will be held Mondays at 7:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 19 at the Phoenix Theatre.

An all-day workshop on stage properties, their materials and construction, will be given by theatre production manager Wolfgang Baba, Oct. 1.

Lighting will be the subject of another Saturday full day, Nov. 19, to be given by Edward B. Shoffner, a newcomer to the staff from San Diego.

It is with such series as these that the university demonstrates its ability to serve the artistic interests of the community.

CHORAL GROUP HUNTS TENORS AND BASSES

Rehearsals begin Tuesday evening for the Victoria Choral Society.

A full schedule is facing the ensemble and its director, Rodney Webster, who hopes to build the choir to 100 voices this year. Tenors and basses are especially needed.

Performances of Bach's Christmas Oratorio with Victoria Symphony Orchestra in December, the Verdi Requiem with the symphony in March and the Messiah in April are arranged.

Mr. Webster plans to dovetail rehearsals, beginning work on the Christmas Oratorio immediately, taking up the Requiem in November and the Messiah in January.

Regular practices will be held at the Memorial Hall, Vancouver Street at 7:45 p.m. on Tuesdays and sectional rehearsals on Sunday afternoons, beginning in October.

School for Wives Opens This Month

Marge Adelberg, whose two delightful children's musicals, Pinocchio and Hansel and Gretel have been such hits in this area and wherever they have played, has written an adult musical comedy, an adaptation of Moliere's School for Wives, which will be presented by Bastion Theatre at the McPherson Playhouse Sept. 16 to Oct. 1.

School for Wives (and Others!)—as Marge calls her version is filled with catchy numbers, from the up-tempo A Girl Oughter Be Careful, and A Jolly Good Show, to romantic ballads Just By Chance, Things I Remember, and Devil With an Angel's Smile.

The songs highlight the plot, in which Andrew, an old Scotsman, and a cynic about the deceiving ways of women, decides to create the perfect wife.

He has a beautiful orphan girl educated and brought up to be completely innocent of the ways of the world. Before he can marry her, however, she meets, by accident, a handsome young man, and Andrew's best-laid plans go "agley."

Andrew is played by Bill Hosie. The girl, Agnes, is played by Dorothy Hosie, and Art Penson plays the role of her young man.

Sylvia Hosie and Ian McIntyre are two musical comedy servants set to guard Agnes.

YOUNG ACTOR

Christopher, the philosophical friend who tries to persuade Andrew that it's folly to try to control other people's lives, is played by Michael Higgins, a young actor from Manitoba, appearing in Bastion's School for Wives while he is visiting the West Coast.

Other principals in cameo roles are Hugh Henderson and John Heath.

The chorus includes kitchen maids and boys, high society, and an old flower woman, and the orchestra is comprised of Howard Denike (clarinet and saxophone), Musical Director Merliss Hill (piano), Fergus Heywood (drums) and Emil Michaux (string bass).

Veteran Stars Need Planning To Stay on Top

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—You may harbor the notion that veteran stars stay on top with looks, luck and the loyalty of fans. It takes more than that.

Career managment is the necessary ingredient.

Henry Fonda is an expert planner, and the only longtime star who has also maintained an active career in the theatre. His stage appearances are carefully planned.

"When I went into Generation on the stage last year," he explains, "I made certain I would remain alive in films. I had three unreleased movies before I started the play."

With the end of his successful run in Generation, Fonda has returned to films in MGM's Welcome to Hard Times. It is a labor of love for him though of course he also earns his usual high salary.

WON'T EARN MONEY

"It's not the kind of picture that will earn a lot of money," he says. "But it's an offbeat story that could be damned good. Those are the kind that make life interesting for an actor.

"But you can't make them all the time. If you do, you become known as an actor whose pictures don't make money. Then the banks won't lend on your name, and your career is in trouble.

"So I must also do commercial pictures like Sex and the Single Girl and Battle of the Bulge. Then I can afford to do a Twelve Angry Men or a Welcome to Hard Times."

Fonda hopes that Hard Times will have the same success of The Oxbow Incident, the classic western he made at Fox in 1942.

Returning To Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walter Slezak will return to Hollywood after a two-year absence. He's accepting a film role as a Spanish police chief who thwarts a group of jewel thieves.

The return marks Slezak's 35th year as an actor. His career began in 1931 when he was signed for the juvenile lead in the film Sodom and Gomorrah.

He will play in the Embassy-Paramount film The Caper of the Golden Bulls. He has been living in Switzerland for the last two years.

Ballroom Dance Medalists

A large group of medalists, ballroom dancing students of Elsie and Ronald Holtum, emerged from recent examinations conducted by the Canadian Dance Teachers' Association (B.C. Branch).

Those receiving bronze medals were Mr. and Mrs. J. Adams, G. Arndt, S. Evans, D. Farden, B. Foster, M. Gibson, D. Lee, W. Miller, M. McLeod, G. Pears, W. Pettersen, B. Ponsford, D. Smith, D. Turnham and Mrs. B. Miller.

Silver medalists were Mr. and Mrs. L. Cox, N. Dommett, S. Evans, B. Fisher, G. Jessup, Dr. and Mrs. W. McCulloch and Mrs. B. Miller.

Receiving gold medals were Mr. and Mrs. F. Leronde, C. Moore, L. Norgaad, W. Watson, Mrs. E. Smart and Miss B. Watt.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Humphries were awarded the gold star medal.

The medals will be presented at a special studio ceremony Oct. 8.

Fall Season Program Planned

Victoria Theatre Guild is rehearsing its first play of the fall season, the sophisticated comedy Marriage-Go-Round by Leslie Stevens, to open at Langham Court Theatre Oct. 7 to 15, with a cast of four under director Bert Farr.

The newly renovated Lanham Court is a hive of industry while the theatre's membership drive is under way.

Victoria Operatic Society principal Norman Tyrell has the lead in this play opposite blonde newcomer Markyta Mares who has done this show twice in the East, and Elizabeth Mayne, a well-known Guild regular.

They are assisted by Dougal Fraser who leaves soon for London, England, having been accepted for the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

Director Bert Farr was DDF Regional winner with One-Way Pendulum last spring.

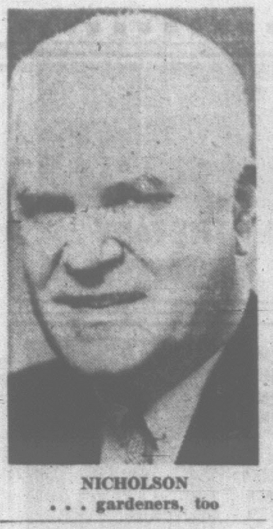
Jobless Fund Covers Farms

OTTAWA (CP)—Extension of unemployment insurance coverage to farm workers and persons employed in commercial gardening, to take effect next April 1, was announced Friday by Labor Minister Nicholson.



NICHOLSON
. . . gardeners, too

The move, sought by farm organizations to help ease labor shortages, has been under study for more than a year. No details were given in the minister's brief statement. Regulations are to be issued in a few months.

The statement said, however, that under certain conditions casual farm workers who are hired for only a few days may not be covered. Also exempt would be "casual workers who do not ordinarily derive their livelihood from insurable employment."

Informants said the administrative problems still are being resolved and a concerted "education program" would be launched next year to inform farmers of coverage plans.

One of the problems was a definition of horticulture, which takes in the whole field of commercial flower and vegetable gardening.

COVER ONLY EMPLOYEES

In farming, insurance coverage would apply only to persons working in a direct employer-employee relationship. Self-employed farmers and their wives would not be insurable although their adult children might be in certain circumstances.

The extension is the first since 1956 when fishermen were brought into the program. Other seasonal workers already covered include sailors, loggers and longshoremen.

The only major groups still not covered are persons employed in hunting and trapping, employees of hospitals and charitable institutions, teachers, members of the armed forces, policemen and domestic servants.

Salaried workers earning more than $5,460 are automatically exempt.

Vancouver Life Merges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Merger of four monthly magazines into two publications with a combined circulation of 83,000 copies was announced Friday by two Vancouver publishers.

As of November, Vancouver Life will absorb Western Homes and Living and Toronto Life will absorb Ontario Homes and Living.

Western Homes, with a circulation of more than 20,000, was started in 1950 and Ontario Homes was first published in 1962 and now has a circulation of more than 30,000. Both were published in Vancouver by Mitchell Press Ltd.

Vancouver Life was started in 1965 and has a monthly circulation of 20,000.

Sharp Talk Proves Tonic For Market

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Finance Minister Sharp's anti-inflationary policy acted as a tonic to Canada's sagging stock markets Friday.

The markets showed strength on the day, snapping a four-day slump. Despite the improvement, however, the market was down for the week.

Mr. Sharp outlined Thursday night increased taxes, postponement of the medical care program and some other federal spending programs in a bid to control inflationary pressures.

At Toronto, this week, the industrial index, an indagor of key stock movements, dropped 1.43 to 145.28 which included a .62 advance Friday. At one point the index fell to 144.13, lowest since March 25, 1964.

The market declined, despite announced record sales by Canada's major automobile producers for August.

Banks were among the major losers with Nova Scotia off 1½ to 64½, Montreal 1⅛ to 53⅞, Royal ½ to 68 and Imperial-Commerce ⅜ to 57. Toronto-Dominion edged up ½ to 55.

Ford of Canada was off 4¼ to 127¾, General Motors 2¼ to 77 ¾ and Westcoast Transmission and Canada Cement 1 each to 23⅞ and 37.

BRAZILIAN ROSE

On the plus side, Argus Corp. rose 3 to 19 and Brazilian Light and Power 1½ to 9¾ after the company announced net income had jumped to $14,738,000 (U.S.) in the first six months of 1966 compared with $7,460,700 last year.

Volume for the week was down as a result of the Labor Day holiday, totalling 11,877,178 shares compared with 13,395,833 last week.

Frobex and Area, who are jointly drilling on the Gaspe property of Westford Mines, rocketed after a company announcement that they had encountered copper showings.

Frobex jumped 1.15 to 2.48 on 1,267,000 shares and Area 96 cents to 2.26 on 814,000.

Candore, which traded more than 500,000 shares Friday, increased 8½ to 23½ cents on 837,000 shares.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Appeal Rights Stressed

The executive vice-president of the Canadian Labour Congress called Friday for impartial workmen's compensation appeal boards.

Joe Morris, the former Ladysmith logger and B.C. president of the International Woodworkers of America, was speaking to delegates attending the American Association of State Compensation Insurance Funds convention here.

"A person should have the right of appeal to another body, not the one that made the original decision or a group set up by them," he said.

There was no quarrel with compensation commissioners "but we feel that it is only right and just that an injured workman who has an application for compensation rejected" should have an independent appeal.

"The injured worker has a right to be treated as a person and not as a claim number," he said.

RIGHT TO KNOW

"He has a right to know why certain decisions were made affecting him in language he can understand.

"Some of the letters which go out to claimants are an offence to human dignity and self-respect.

"The injured worker who questions the adjudication decision has a right to an appeal in which he can participate either directly or through his chosen representative, with a feeling that he has had his day in court.

"This is not now the case and it is this perhaps, more than anything else, which has caused widespread discontent among working people insofar as workmen's compensation legislation is concerned."

ACCIDENTS

On another subject, Mr. Morris said if any marked reduction in accidents is to be achieved there must be teamwork between the three parties concerned—government, management and labor.

Government should provide the legislation which will spell out procedures for adequate enforcement of safety regulations throughout industry;

The employer must provide proper safety equipment, be responsible for procedures set up for reporting of accidents and notify the union of any and all accidents;

Labor's role should be mainly one of education, convincing workers that safety is good for them, that accidents can be prevented and that a well-organized safety program on the job is the best form of insurance against accidents.

PREVENTION

There must be joint labor-management safety committees. For too long accident prevention has been "the private preserve of the employer and one which has been too largely neglected."

On this subject, Hector Wright, one of the B.C. Workmen's Compensation Board commissioners, said it was mainly through the IWA program that the accident frequency was cut in logging after 1949 and "to Joe Morris goes a lot of the credit."

The CLC official said labor is in general agreement with the system of workmen's compensation in Canada although it has several criticisms of shortcomings in present legislation.

He described accident prevention as "every bit as important to the Canadian labor movement" as a proper system of workmen's compensation, because one complemented the other.

OLD SYSTEM

And he emphasized the Canadian labor doesn't want to see workmen's compensation revert to the old system of individual workers suing individual employers after accidents, nor does it wnat to see workmen's compensation "a happy hunting ground for the commercial insurance carriers."

GARDNER AGENCIES

So Who's in a Hurry?

If an investor is offered a fixed return on a debenture or preferred share investment, he's often sold on the soundness of the investment by the "increased earnings" or the "rapid expansion" of the company concerned—none of which provide him with any security at all! As a matter of fact, too fast an expansion has been perhaps the largest single reason for bankruptcies over the years . . . and as far as increased earnings are concerned, no benefit accrues to the debenture holders' credit, but only to the Common Shareholders.

Victoria Mortgage is growing too, like almost every company these days, but our director is not "a man in a hurry." Low-risk mortgages are selected that will stand on their own in the event of recession; many mortgages are as low as 20% to 30% of prime real estate security. OVER 35% OF OUR MORTGAGES ARE AGAINST SECURITY THAT INCLUDES WATERFRONT PROPERTY. In addition, the company has substantial share capital and bonds guaranteed by the B.C. Government.

Make sure your money is as soundly invested as Victoria Mortgage Debentures. There's no need to take greater risk . . . unless you're in a hurry.

Five-year, 7½%; 2½-year, 7¼%; 1-year, 7%. Interest paid quarterly. No acquisition cost.

U.S. Eyes Transport Shake-Up

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Both Canada and the United States have launched legislative proposals to cram their sprawling transportation industries under one federal roof.

But, if the American experience so far is any token, the bill facing the Canadian Parliament would have been derailed almost before it left the station.

President Johnson proposed to Congress March 3 that a cabinet-level transportation department be formed for the first time, administratively similar to Canada's.

His transport aims in other bills include:

—Government - authorized safety standards for cars, trucks and tires.

—State grants for improved driver education, auto inspection and other safety developments.

—A start next year on a supersonic air transport for 1974.

—Increased research into such diverse transport aspects as the cause of highway accidents, how to curtail jet-aircraft noise, faster forms of ocean vessels, separate roads for trucks and — a real political crowd-pleaser — ways to get to and from airports faster and speedier urban and inter-city travel.

The president's visions of his new transport department involved lumping together about 10,000 federal employees and a budget of nearly $6,000,000,000 annually. Former presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy had had the same dreams.

MAKES EXCEPTIONS

But political soundings in advance made him make certain major exceptions before presenting his program.

Still, much of the untidy growth of assorted regulatory agencies was to be covered — the federal aviation agency and the civil aeronautics board, certain commerce department responsibilities, the bureau of public roads, the maritime administration, the coast guard, the Alaska railway, the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, the Great Lakes pilotage administraion and other bits and pieces to boot.

The department would take over the work now being supervised by 11 federal agencies, with one key exception to the provisions written into the Canadian formula for a Canadian transport commission.

Freight rates, passenger fares or mergers would have been left to the interstate commerce commission, the civil aeronautics board and the federal maritime commission, acting independently.

This major concession, stripping the bill of much of its power, testified to the power of the individual air, water, rail and road lobbies and their spokesmen in Congress who saw a unified transport command dulling their influence.

The House actually removed shipping from the bill, leaving it independent of any future transport department. More trouble is expected when the legislation goes before the Senate, with the airlines for one also seeking special exemption.

Japanese Fly to B.C. For Opening

Lt.-Gov. G. R. Pearkes will be key dignitary participating in formalities marking the official opening of the new $2 million plant of Titan Steel and Wire Co. Ltd. in North Surrey Sept. 16.

He will be joined by municipal, provincial and federal government officials in welcoming the start of the joint venture of Canadian and Japanese interests in a secondary industry.

Flying from Japan especially for the official opening will be several senior officers of Mitsui and Company and Kobe Steel Works, Ltd., major shareholders in the Titan company.

These include Noboru Inagaki, vice-president and executive director of Mitsui, and Yukuchi Tagawa, executive director of Kobe.

The mill is producing a wide variety of low and high carbon wire products which will replace much of the finished and semi-finished wire products previously imported from Japan by the Vancouver office of Mitsui and Company.

Milk Wholesale Price Raised by Farm Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Dairy farmers' demands for a manufacturing milk return of $4.25 a hundredweight were partially met Friday when J. J. Greene, agriculture minister, announced an immdeiate eight-cent increase to $3.33 in the base price.

The increase, to be passed on to the consumer through a two-cent raise in the minimum selling price of butter, brings to $4.08 the producer's at-the-farm return for his 3.5 per cent milk.

The previous return was $4, including a 75-cent net subsidy. The base price was raised to $3.25 last April 1, shortly after the announcement of the federal government's new dairy policy.

Mr. Greene promised a further 9.5 per cent increase in the base price this year provided Quebec and Ontario governments promise it will be fully passed on to farmers. Only Ontario, through its milk marketing board, now could guarantee this.

A second condition for the 9.5 per cent increase was equalization of differences in milk subsidies between Ontario and Quebec. Farmers in Quebec receive an additional provincial subsidy of 17.5 cents a hundredweight in the summer and 35 cents in the winter.

No such provincial subsidies exist in Ontario where farmers and government officials have claimed the Quebec subsidies disturb the free flow of milk between the two provinces.

Mr. Greene said removal of the provincial differences was in the interest of a sound national policy. Equalization could be achieved by either Quebec removing its subsidy or by Ontario launching a provincial subsidy on the Quebec level.

Ontario Agriculture Minister Stewart, who in July told dairy farmers massed at Queen's Park their problems were a federal responsibility, reiterated his earlier view that Ottawa should up the base price with 25 cents to $3.50.

"Never before has the Canadian consumer been better able to pay for the increase," said Mr. Stewart, who spoke before Mr. Green's announcement.

Mr. Greene said that paying more to cream producers would only increase inefficiency.

FARMERS CALL BUTTER STRIKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A two-cent increase in the price of a pound of butter, announced Fridaay by Agriculture Minister Greene, is inadequate and leaves no alternative but to strike, a spokesman for the Ontario Farmers' Union said.

Walter Miller, OFU vice-president, said following Mr. Greene's announcement, a strike by the farmers would take the form of a withdrawal of all dairy products from the consumers.

ATLANTIC ACCEPTANCE HEARINGS

Old Cow Caper Costly

By GORDON GRANT

TORONTO (CP)—Used cows . . . race horses . . . adventure in the Bahamas . . . restaurants . . . discount stores . . . loans without collateral . . . trips to Paris . . . fat profits.

These ingredients in one pot apparently are a recipe for disaster.

The mixture was concocted by Atlantic Acceptance Corp. and whipped up by the royal commission investigating the finance company's downfall in June, 1965.

The commission, under Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court, in six months of public and sometimes bizarre, hearings has taken evidence from 113 witnesses and heard millions of words of testimony.

The hearings reopen today following a summer recess and officials say they expect to be taking evidence until early 1967.

Atlantic collapsed when it couldn't pay a $5,000,000 debt—at the time its assets were listed at more than $145,000,000. The commission wants to find out, among other things, why such a large and apparently well-based company went under because of a paltry $5,000,000.

TWO FACTS EMERGE

The facts are clear:

1. Losses could be a smuch as $64,800,000.

2. C. P. Morgan, founder and president of Atlantic until its failure, and accountants William Walton and Harry Wagman have been mentioned more frequently in evidence than any other persons.

Mr. Morgan, according to testimony, was the central figure in Atlantic's operations and Mr. Justice Hughes has commented:

"I realize a man's judgment is never uniformly right, but it seems impossible to believe his judgment could be so uniformly wrong in all these enterprises."

Mr. Morgan's evidence has not been made public—he gave it from his bed prior to entering a Toronto hospital with a blood disorder.

One of the most unusual operations of Atlantic was its dealings in new and used cows. The company financed Valley Farms and Enterprises which sold cows to farmers, sometimes having to repossess for non-payment.

After two unprofitable years, the cow caper went kaput.

But Valley Farms, run on the instruction of Mr. Morgan, wasn't through. It went into the race horse business. The nags didn't treat the company well, either, and in three years $10,700 went down the drain, of which $7,000 was on racing operations and the remainder on buying and selling operations.

Another unusual facet of Valley Farms was that it gave $177,571 to Morgan, Walton and Wagman as repayment of loans which they didn't make and it didn't receive, a chartered accountant testified.

In line with its odd operating methods, the company also bought $125,000 of debentures in a company which was in receivership and wrote off the amount as an operating expense.

When the farm went bankrupt it owed Atlantic $1,300,000.

From the farm in eastern Ontario, the commission traced Atlantic's dealings to The Bahamas where the company had an $11,000,000 stake in the luxurious Lucayan Beach Hotel and various other operations associated with the hotel.

Albert Shepherd, commission counsel, said Atlantic might be alive today had it not been for its "adventure in The Bahamas."

Atlantic's money was tied up in the unprofitable venture with no quick way out. Mr. Shepherd said that had the investment been more liquid, the $5,000,000 debt could probably have been paid.

MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. (N.P.L.)
SHARE OFFERING

It has long been and still is the objective of OSSIE (Oswood G.) MACDONALD, President of Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. N.P.L.) to establish a COPPER SMELTER and allied industry on Vancouver Island.

To do this substantial proven ore reserves are required.

1. To establish such ore reserves it is necessary first to own or control large areas where favorable geological and structural conditions exist for large tonnage copper mineralization.

These conditions exist in the 35-mile Sooke belt as demonstrated by the SUNRO operation of Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. (N.P.L.) at Jordan River in the centre of this belt, 43 miles northwest from Victoria on Vancouver Island.

MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. was incorporated early in 1963 by Ossie MacDonald and it now controls thousands of acres of ground in this favourable Sooke belt.

2. To establish such ore reserves it is necessary, secondly, to explore these large areas locating mineralization or indications thereof.

For over 3 years now, exploration and development has been carried out by MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. in these areas in the way of geological mapping, soil sampling, prospecting, trenching and the running of geophysical surveys.

3. To establish such ore it is necessary, thirdly, to develop by means of diamond drilling the areas of mineralization that have been discovered and thus define the grade and tonnage.

WE ARE NOW AT THIS STAGE

To finance this, MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. (N.P.L.) is making an offer directly to the public of 300,000 shares at a price of 60c each.

A Prospectus is available upon request.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

As the sun sets in the west, Mona Lisa baby, Peter Ohler, 24, is the most successful football coach senior men's and large boy's division, in British Columbia, west of Hope.

This is not a status to be sniffed at. There are two in the field. In Vancouver where that other football team plays, now and then, Dave Skrien leads the coaching derby with one (1) victory.

Mr. Skrien's wild ones, the B.C. Lions, had to work hard to hold their successes to that number but they managed it. They have lost five (5) games. The Lions will try again Saturday at Empire Stadium.

They will host Calgary Stampeders. The Stamps have so many casualties they look like the entire in-patient division of Mayo Brothers.

They have lost FIVE first-stringers for the SEASON. If the Lions lose to these basket cases Ohler's competition for coaching honors could easily be decapitated.

You know, unless you have been vacationing in Saddleback Gulch, south of Sooke, that Ohler is the resident genius of the Victoria Steelers.

You never heard of the Steelers, friend? Relax. Some of them have never heard of themselves.

Directorate of 40—All Swingers

The Steelers are the brain child of Patrick Frumento, William Clark and now-and-then Bertram Nelson. They wanted something to do besides count flower baskets in the fall so they secured a franchise in the Pacific Football League.

They have a directorate of 40, businessmen and swingers. There is a rumor that after the season the directors en masse may take on the team but Frumento says it's pure hearsay.

Ohler was not the first coach recruited by the Steelers. But he may be the man they wanted and needed most.

He is young and articulate. And his background is not strictly pool hall. He is one of 11 boys who made the pure pros after learning their football lessons under Fred Owens at Vancouver College.

Paul Seale appeared to be one of the great ones before injuries hastened his retirement; Barney Therrien, Sonny Homer and Greg Findlay and others of Ohler's time who regularly cash pro cheques.

Ohler was a Lion three years, a backup quarterback for Joseph Kapp.

In those days Kapp was not getting dumped on his cadenza as often as he is today and his ends did not apply butter to their fingers before running pass patterns. Ohler's relationship to quarterbacking was much like Hubert Humphrey's to the presidency.

Ohler's main function was to kneel, take the snap from centre, position the ball for Peter Kempf to kick converts and field goals. Kempf scored something like 95 points in '64.

One Play . . . One Pass . . . One Major

In the 1965 Grey Cup, Ohler was set to perform his ritual when the snap came rolling out like a drunken jelly bean. Ohler fetched it and looking into the end zone saw Jim Carphin standing all alone. Quick pass. Six points for the Lions. No Grey Cup quarterback in history has matched his Ohler's record. One play. One pass. One touchdown.

All that kneeling Ohler did with the Lions (he retired to teach high school rather than go to Winnipeg who had drafted him) may stand him in good stead in his new endeavour.

The Steelers, in spite of Pat Frumento's enthusiasm, Ohler's skill, Bill Clark's optimism, and Leo Kozak in the line, are not the Green Bay Packers. They may not even be the Wheeling Whirlwinds or the Little Rock Lancelots.

They have beef—Clem Goulet at 235, Bob Boyd at 245, Bob Coutts, 230 and Lutz Keller, 230, block out considerable sunlight when they enter a room.

Others have promise. A few even have good tans.

A lot of bodies will get starched on the Steelers' line. But the offensive and defensive backs may have problems. Like survival.

At Least One Under Every Rock . . .

Ohler was running down the backs the other day. He said, "halfback Jim Pannell, Sacramento, five foot . . . " Pause. "Five foot . . . " Pause.

Then . . . "would you believe four-ten?"

Pannell actually is five-six. But there are people riding horses at racetracks who make Pannell look as if he is standing in a trench.

One of the essential charms of football is the moment of truth it demands. Ohler and Boyd, who played last year in the Continental League, are aware that Seattle in particular and Portland, Tacoma, Eugene and Edmonds in general are amply stocked with experienced personnel.

"You know what it's like in the U.S.," Boyd says, "there's a football player under every rock."

Ohler maintains that Seattle, rife with University of Washington grads, has a pool of about 300 district collegians to choose from. "They're good enough," he said, "to beat Toronto—and the Lions the way they're playing."

And the Steelers?

"I don't know," Ohler said, "if we can play in this league. Yet. But we probably have more spirit and aggressiveness than anybody. We're new and we want to prove something."

They get that chance tonight at Eugene. Gung ho! Peter. And stay loose. The way they're treating B.C. football coaches these days is terrible . . .

Woosnam's Signing Start of Soccer War?

LONDON (CP)—Big-time soccer promoters in North America have lured their first British professional in a big-money recruiting campaign that is likely to stir up a storm in world soccer.

British newspapers headlined the news on front pages and said it could be the start of a "soccer drain."

Phil Woosnam, a Welsh inside forward with Aston Villa of the English first division, said Wednesday he has agreed to take a job as manager-coach with the Atlanta, Ga., entry in the projected national professional soccer league. He will be paid a reported $18,000 for a six-month NPSL season — much more than he would earn in soccer here.

DEFIES WARNING

Woosnam, 33, who has played in international competition for Wales, thus defies a general warning against joining the NPSL issued this summer by the English Football Association and the International Federation of Football Associations (FIFA).

FIFA is withholding recognition of the NPSL — being organized by New York promoter Bill Cox and other wealthy businessmen — because the planned league lacks the blessing of the United States Football Association, a FIFA affiliate.

COOKE THE LEADER

The U.S. association is backing a rival organization led by millionaire sportsman Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association and the Los Angeles National Hockey League franchise.

Cooke's plan called for a professional soccer circuit operating for two months a year in Toronto, Vancouver, New York, Los Angelese, San Francisco, Chicago, Boston and Washington. The league would open in 1968.

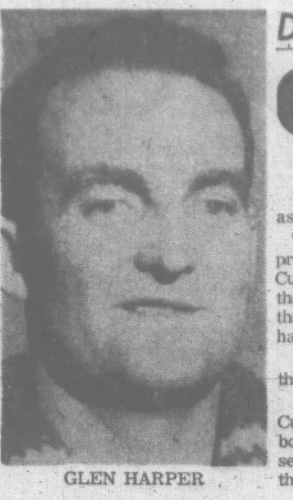
Cox's NPSL would open next April in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston, Hartford, Atlanta, St. Louis and San Diego, according to plans he announced in London last month. Lists of cities in the proposed league available here differ. Toronto is mentioned in some.

Cox has said he plans first to recruit coaches and managers in Europe, then gather players who are either just beginning or near the end of their professional careers in European soccer. Minimum annual pay for a player would be $5,000, the top $12,000 and average $8,000. Clubs would help get players jobs for the six non-playing months each year.

France Planning Expensive Effort

GRENOBLE, France (Reuters)—Sports Minister Francois Missoffe said Thursday France will spend about 1,000,000,000 francs ($220,000,000) on the 1968 winter Olympic games, to be held here.

Much of this will be on roads, accommodations and improved communications, which will be of benefit after the games are over.



GLEN HARPER

DUNCAN FOURSOME SNUBBED . . . . . . AS GAMES' REPRESENTATIVE

Curling Bosses Like 'Second Best'

By ERNIE FEDORUK

"What's cooking?" the curlers ask.

The archangels and high priests of the Pacific Coast Curling Association have something going, and the odor oozing through is high, ripe and handsome.

Hang onto your broom, boy, this one is a dilly!

The PCCA and the B.C. Curling Association — separate bodies — have been invited to send one (1) rink to represent the province in the forthcoming First Canadian Winter Games at Quebec (Feb. 11-19).

Since the rink's makeup is to be mixed and has to be declared by Dec. 1, it was generally conceded that the reigning O'Keefe mixed champions would best represent the province.

That means the Duncan foursome of Glen and Marg Harper and By and Vera Wilson.

But what is so obvious to everyone else isn't obvious to B.C.'s curling lords.

They want to send "second best"!

At a meeting on the mainland last week, PCCA directors approved, despite opposition from the Vancuver Island zone delegates, to send the John Smart rink from Kelowna.

Smart's crew was runner-up to the Harper rink in the provincial finals last February.

Presumably, Canada's other provinces intend to send their champions.

The way one curling official explained it, the Harper rink "has had one trip (to Fort William), so it would be nice if the BCCA champions (the provincial runners-up) had this trip."

Actually, what the PCCA directors hoped to do — at Harper's expense — was to pacify the BCCA for past differences. Long before, during and even after their split into two separate bodies, there always has been friction between the Coast and B.C. (Interior) associations.

Mainland directors, for some inexplicable reason, are simply trying to butter up the Interior boys.

The O'Keefe's brewery people who sponsor the national mixed playdowns, should feel slighted by the action. But the Winter Games aren't their show, so O'Keefe's will not become involved in the controversy.

But Clayton Wright, the Duncan club president, is hopping mad, and no one can blame him.

"This is a ridiculous move," said Wright. "After all, Canada does not send its runners-up to the world championships."

But if B.C. had its way, Canada probably would.

Giant Hopes Raked By Student Prince

By Associated Press

Ken Holtzman, student prince of Leo Durocher's Chicago pitching staff, picked up another summer credit Friday night by blanking San Francisco for 7⅔ innings as the last-place Cubs ambushed Juan Marichal and the Giants 6-0.

It was the ninth victory—high among Cub pitchers—for the rookie lefthander who will return to the University of Illinois at Chicago later this month to begin his senior year.

Until mid - June Holtzman, 20, a $65,000 bonus baby, was a once-a-week pitcher while concentrating on his studies. He beat Los Angeles 2-0 for his first decision in the majors but had won only three games when the school year ended. He's made the most of his summer vacation, however, winning four of his last five decisions for an over - all mark of 9-13.

NEEDED HELP

Holtzman stopped the Giants on two hits for seven innings while nursing a 1-0 lead. The Cubs gave him a two run cushion in the eighth, but he needed relief help with two out in the bottom of the inning when the Giants loaded the bases on a single and two walks.

Bill Hands, an ex-Giant, came out of the bullpen, struck out Ray Hart to end the eighth-inning threat and completed the four-hitter, pinning the loss on Marichal, now 21-6.

The Giants' loss dropped them into third place in the tight National League race, two percentage points behind the Dodgers and 1½ games behind league - leading Pittsburgh Pirates. The Dodgers blanked Houston Astros 7-0 on Claude Osteen's three - hitter and the Pirates edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 on Bill Mazeroski's bases - loaded sacrifice fly in the 12th inning.

BRAVES ON WARPATH

Atlanta Braves trimmed New York Mets 8-3 for their ninth victory in the last 10 games and Philadelphia Phillies downed Cincinnati Reds 7-6.

George Altman singled off Marichal in the fifth inning, stole second and scored the first Cub run on a single by Adolpho Phillips. San Francisco errors helped the Cubs push over five unearned runs in the last two innings, wrapping it up.

Osteen, pitching his first complete game since July 6, scattered three singles and brought his record to 15-11 while the Dodgers punished four Houston hurlers for 14 hits, including five doubles. Successive two-baggers by Wes Parker, Willie Davis and Ron Fairly delivered two runs in the third, giving Osteen all the help he required.

The Pirates loaded the bases in the 12th on Matty Alou's single, a sacrifice, an intentional walk to Roberto Clemente—who had stroked four hits—and an unintentional pass to pinch hitter Manny Mota. Mazeroski then came through with his fly to centre, breaking the 2-2 deadlock.

Rico Carty lashed four hits, driving in four runs, and Felipe Alou and Joe Torre homered, leading the Braves past the Mets. Atlanta snapped a 3-3 tie in the eighth with a four-run burst keyed by Carty's two-run double.

In the American League, Minnesota twins beat Baltimore Orioles 6-1, New York Yankees edged Boston Red Sox 2-1, and in a trio of 10 innings contests, Cleveland defeated California 8-7, Chicago White Sox clipped Washington 1-0, and Kansas city nipped Detroit Tigers 2-1.

BOSOX WERE EXCITING BUT MANAGER EXITING

BILLY HERMAN

BOSTON (AP)—Billy Herman was dismissed as manager of Boston Red Sox Friday and coach Pete Runnels was named interim manager of the American League baseball club.

Herman became manager in 1965. The Red Sox finished ninth last season and are in the same position this year, one-half game ahead of New York Yankees.

"Although the Red Sox have played more exciting baseball under Herman this year, we think a change was necessary to insure that the club will continue to climb in the AL standing," said general manager Dick O'Connell.

Lions Shore Up Defensive Wall

(Times News Services)

British Columbia Lions have beefed up their defence in a bid to start a climb from the Western Football Conference cellar, but Calgary Stampeders plan to test Lions' quarterback protection as well.

Stampeder coach Jerry Williams planned to dress import George Carr, a late cut called back to the club this week, at defensive end in hopes of containing Lions' quarterback Joe Kapp tonight.

"Kapp has to be about the best quarterback in Canadian football and I've often marvelled how he can release that ball while going down under a swarm of tacklers."

Stampeders figure to use Carr's speed to hold Kapp's rollout moves.

Lions' coach Dave Skrien cut veteran Mack Burton and inserted newcomer Bill Symons, a late cut from Green Bay Packers of the National League, in the defensive secondary.

Lions casualty picture is bright for once. Tackle Lonnie Dennis, recovering from a back injury, is expected to dress and Neil Beaumont, Bill Munsey and Willie Fleming are reported recovered.

(Tonight's game will be telecast in the Victoria area only by way of cablevision, Channel 13, starting at 8.)

Two games Sunday wrap up the weekend's football fare. Saskatchewan will visit Winnipeg while Edmonton plays at Toronto.

Canadians Eliminated From Rowing Events

BLED, Yugoslavia (AP)—The second world rowing championships went into the semi-finals in four events today with race officials keeping up their watch for anxious crews that jump the start.

Interest centred on the eight-oared crews and on the battle for finalist positions between East and West Germany, competing as two different teams for the first time in rowing. All seven crews of each country survived the last two days of qualifying heats—a feat that no other of the more than 30 countries competing here could match.

The three Canadian entries were eliminated.

In the eights Canada, represented by St. Catharines, Ont., winners of the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, was third in its heat with a time of 6:05.28. Holland won the race in 6:03.12 and Hungary was second in 6:04.95.

Daryl MacDonald and Tony Biernacki of St. Catharines were fourth in the coxless pairs in 7:26.11 with Denmark winning in 7:07.95. The U.S. was second with 7:09.21 and Yugoslavia third in 7:10.04.

ENTER FOR CANADA

The Burnaby Lake Aquatic Association of Vancouver supplied the entry in the coxless fours which was won by Romania in 6:27.71. The U.S. was second with 6:30.47 and Canada third in 6:33.52.

Members of the Burnaby team were Roger Jackson, 25, Bob Stubbs, 27, Daryl Sturdy, 26, and Doug Banting, 17.

Officials of the World Rowing Federation said they would continue a crackdown on boats that start too fast.

Several coaches complained after Thursday's first qualifying heats that some boats had been allowed to take off on the starters drawn-out "get ready" instead of on "go."

An outstanding Swiss coxless four was disqualified from a heat it had been expected to win after two false starts. The Swiss had placed third in the 1965 European championships.

Body Blocks Merger

CHICAGO (AP) — A group called Chicago Football Associates' previously seeking an American Football League franchise, Friday announced filing of a $12,000,000 suit to prevent the planned merger of the National and American football leagues.

Robert Nussbaum, Chicago stockbroker and head of the group, said the suit was filed in United States District Court Friday.

Nussbaum, who formerly operated Chicago Panthers, a semi-pro team, said, "Our suit frankly was prompted by the stand taken yesterday by the government."

This was rejection by Rep. Emanuel Celler (Dem — NY), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and its antitrust subcommittee of a plea by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle to exempt the NFL-AFL merger from antitrust laws.

The suit charged that Chicago Football Associates were illegally denied an American Football League franchise in Chicago as a result of the intended merger.

Nassbaum said:

"Our attorneys say we are on solid grounds in our suit for treble damages which is based on two and a half years of work trying to get a franchise and damages for loss of prospective profits from club operations, including television income."

Rep. Celler, in rejecting Rozelle's plea, instructed the two leagues to go ahead with plans to combine the two leagues, commenting, "There hasn't been any suit filed or any questions raised."

Ticket Sales Ahead

Victoria Maple Leafs are "running a little ahead" of last year's pace in their season-ticket selling campaign.

Leafs' manager Buck Houle said today "about 300" season tickets already have been sold for Western Hockey League games at Memorial Arena.

Last year's season-ticket holders have until next Thursday to renew options on their favorite pews. After that date, all seats will become "fair game" and Leafs will launch a concentrated ticket-selling campaign.

Incidentally, several hundred more new theatre-type seats are ready to be installed in the Arena. In all, 2,700 "counterback" seats will be in use when the regular season opens.

With each passing day, Portland Buckaroos loom as the team to watch in the coming WHL campaign.

Portland coach Hal Laycoe pumped more firepower into the lineup this week.

The Bucks acquired speedy Willie O'Ree from Los Angeles Blades in exchange for goalkeeper Dave Kelly and veteran forward Tom McVie. In addition to O'Ree, the Bucks also will receive "some cash" or rights to a junior player at the end of the season.

O'Ree led the league in goals two years ago with 38 and last year banged in 33 in 62 games.

Los Angeles also is ready to lay out some cash for defenceman Doug Messier in a straight-purchase deal. Laycoe has acquired defenceman Tracy Pratt, son of Babe, and that makes Messier expendable.

FIVE PARKS

Soccer Action Split

The Pacific Coast Soccer League will try to promote true inter-city rivalry this season.

President Bill Findler released the first half of the 84-game schedule for the eight teams and announced that games will be played at five venues.

Victoria O'Keefes, of course, will play at Macdonald Park.

Joe Johnson's UBC Thunderbirds will play some of their home games at Varsity Stadium; North Shore Luckies have scheduled games at North Vancouver's Kinsmen Stadium, while New Westminster Royals will play home dates at Queens Park Stadium during the latter part of the season.

The other teams in the league — Vancouver Firefighters, Burnaby Villa, St. Andrews and Columbus — will continue playing their home games at Callister.

Findler said he hoped the use of Queens Park would foster a cross-Kingsway rivalry reminiscent of the days when Vancouver Canucks and New Westminster Royals staged bitter hockey duels.

The season will get under way Saturday, Sept. 17, with Firefighters and Burnaby meeting in Callister Park. Victoria will face Columbus on the same pitch the following day.

Columbus will supply the opposition for Victoria's first home stand, Sept. 24.

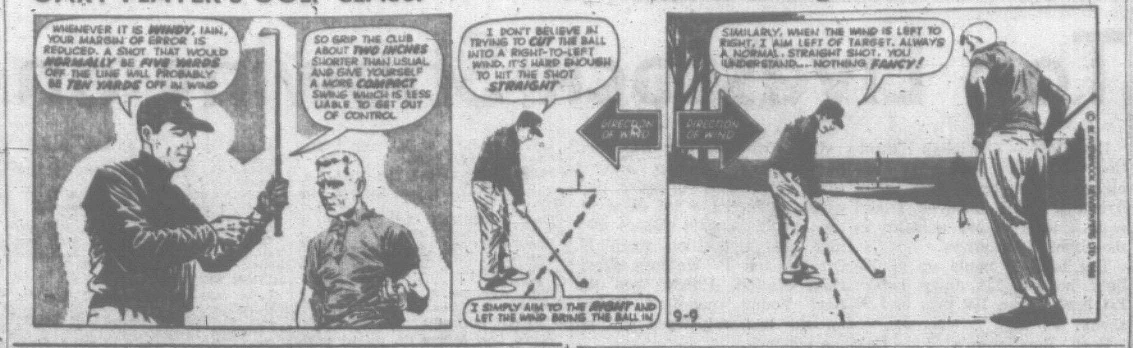
GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: How to be bright when it's breezy . . .



WHENEVER IT IS WINDY, IAIN, YOUR MARGIN OF ERROR IS REDUCED. A SHOT THAT WOULD NORMALLY BE FIVE YARDS OFF THE LINE WILL PROBABLY BE TEN YARDS OFF IN WIND
SO GRIP THE CLUB ABOUT TWO INCHES SHORTER THAN USUAL AND GIVE YOURSELF A MORE COMPACT SWING WHICH IS LESS LIABLE TO GET OUT OF CONTROL
I DON'T BELIEVE IN TRYING TO CUT THE BALL INTO A RIGHT-TO-LEFT WIND. IT'S HARD ENOUGH TO HIT THE SHOT STRAIGHT
DIRECTION OF WIND
I SIMPLY AIM TO THE RIGHT AND LET THE WIND BRING THE BALL IN

SAILING MASTS AREN'T WHAT THEY USED TO BE

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — One of Australia's two America's Cup challenge contenders, Dame Pattie, was dismasted on her first sea trial.

She was sailing in a light breeze under mainsail and large Genoa jib. The 91-foot aluminium alloy spar, weighing 1,000 pounds, broke off 20 feet from the deck and crashed over the side, sweeping crew members off their feet in a tangle of rigging.

Gretel, Dame Pattie's rival for the right to represent Australia in the next Cup challenge against the United States in September, 1967, also was dismasted when sailing off the New South Wales coast last month.

Best Company Haidas' Target

Victoria's Haida Chiefs, anxious to trot in top-flight basketball company, have put in a bid to enter the Vancouver Senior "A" Men's League.

Entry proposals by the Victoria club have been rejected on other occasions by the mainland league, but Hank Casilio, vice-president of the B.C. Basketball Association, feels the Chiefs have a valid basis for requesting entrance this time.

Casilio has written to the association and the Vancouver league's executive, pointing out that the Chiefs have made an attempt to form a Vancouver Island league but were unsuccessful

Representatives from Victoria and Alberni, which also is requesting entrance into the Mainland circuit, met in Nanaimo recently with officials from Powell River, Courtenay and Cumberland-Comox.

Victoria and Port Alberni suggested the formation of an Island "A" league, but their plea was rejected.

Powell River pleaded poverty, Courtenay and Cumberland-Comox said they could not get sufficient "A" class players. The three communities then decided to form their own North Island loop.

As a result, Casilio has requested that Victoria and Alberni be permitted to enter teams in the Vancouver league.

Mrs. Price Wins Pattinson Event

Mrs. B. "Mike" Price scored a net 74 to win the Pattinson Trophy competition at Uplands Golf Club. Mrs. Carl Locatelli was runner-up with a net 75.

Mrs. M. Worth recorded a net 78 total to finish first in a "B" medal round while Mrs. W. Parr topped the "C" division with 82.

Buttons Defended

Senior button holders Pete McIntyre and Bob Anderson of Victoria Golf Club defeated Gorge Vale challengers Ray Spouse and Jack Brown on the 15th hole at Gorge Vale. Next challengers will be Ed Lovell and Dick Egan.

ISLAND TRIO PICKED

Offensive Surprise In Store for Lions?

JIM RYAN

Victoria Rugby Union fans will have a threefold interest in the game next Wednesday when B.C. All-Stars play the touring British Lions at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

Selected to toil for the All-Stars are Don Burgess, Jim Ryan and Tom Browne.

Burgess, a 33-year-old fullback, is a veteran of international play and will add his talents as a place-kicker for the B.C. side. The 23-year-old Ryan has been named to fill in at left wing while Browne will play centre.

HUNT CAPTAIN

Rounding out the All-Stars will be team captain Ted Hunt, rated the finest standoff ever developed in Canada; Ross McDonald, Pete Grantham, Gary Fumano, Bill Taylor, Dave Milne, Dick Layzell, Charlie Pentland, Mike Chambers, Al Bianco, Tim Cumming and Brian McKee.

Assistant coach Buzz Moore feels the B.C. team may "surprise" the Lions.

"For one thing," he said, "we'll be stressing offence and hitting. Canadian teams too often tended to play defensively against international teams in the past."

The Canadian tactics could lead to a rough game. The Lions, coming off a 33-game tour, were recently criticized by New Zealand rugby observers for rough play by the pack.

As well, the Lions may have been reminded that it took a last-minute try and convert to salvage a 16-11 victory over B.C. in a 1959 meeting.

New Zealand's All-Blacks today beat the Lions 24-11 in Auckland. But the British were gallant losers — fighting for most of the match without flanker Alun Pask, the Welsh captain who was carried off with a broken collar bone after 27 minutes.

Victory gave the All-Blacks an unprecedented sweep of a four-match series in New Zealand. They won the previous tests 20-3, 16-12 and 19-6.

U.S. Net Hopes At End of Line

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) Fred Stolle's rapier-like service returns defeated Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 Friday and set up an all-foreign semi-finals in the U.S. tennis championships.

Three Australians and defending champion Manuel Santana of Spain will battle it out for finals' berths.

Queenslander Roy Emerson, winner of the title in 1961 and 1964, paced his Davis Cup teammate into the round of four with a 10-12, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2 triumph over another Aussie, Owen Davidson.

The only thing Americans had to cheer about in the tournament was the plucky play of 17-year-old Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, who battled her way into the women's semi-finals with an upset 6-4, 6-4 victory over fourth-seeded Francoise Durr of France.

Miss Casals and Nancy Richey of San Angelos, Tex., the only American women survivors, face a bleak prospect.

Miss Casals' semi-final opponent today is Maria Bueno of Brazil.

The third-seeded Miss Richey, co-ranked with Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King as the No. 1 woman player in the United States, plays Mrs. King's second round conqueror, 18-year-old Kerry Melville of Australia.

The men's semi-finals send Sanatana, the Wimbledon king and No. 1 seed, against Australian John Newcombe, 22, and Emerson against Stolle.

Junior Club Skates Into District Loop

A new junior "A" team for boys 20 years of age and under is being formed to replace the defunct Army entry in the Esquimalt District Hockey League.

Midget and juvenile players who feel they can make the club are welcome to attend the juniors' first practice Sunday at 6 p.m. at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Players are asked to bring their own equipment to the first workout.

Holdover units in the Friday night league are University of Victoria Vikings, Esquimalt Pontiacs and Navy.

Field Hockey For Oak Bay

The newly-formed Oak Bay women's grass hockey club will hold its first clinic Sunday at 2 p.m. at Windsor Park.

Girls and women of all ages are invited to attend and are asked to bring along field hockey sticks, where possible.

The club, sanctioned by the Oak Bay Sports Commission, plans to include juniors, intermediates and seniors within its membership.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting either club president Pat Hall at at EV 6-6294, secretary Ann Stainbridge (EV 3-8618), coach Nancy Hill (EV 2-9901) or team captain Nita Hibbert (GR 7-2571).

Bantam League Opens Sunday

All six clubs in the Norm Fieldgate Bantam Football League will see action Sunday during the first of the regular Sunday tripleheaders at Bullen Park.

Triple-headers will be played each Sunday throughout the season.

Esquimalt and Victoria Trojans pry the lid open at 11:30 a.m. Gordon Head will tackle St. Louis College at 1 p.m. and Glen Lake will meet Oak Bay at 2:30.

The bantams play eight-man football. Players must be under 16 years of age and weigh no more than 160 pounds.

An Ace at Uplands

Jean Rimmington recorded her first hole-in-one Thursday on the 135-yard, 16th hole at Uplands Golf Club, playing in a threesome with her husband, John, and Mrs. E. Poitras.

Larks Looked Best But Points Go West

Montreal Fumbles Opportunities As Esks Regain Share of Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Neill Armstrong's Edmonton Eskimos share first spot in the Western Football Conference today, but don't ask the coach or the official statistician how they got there.

"A win is a win, but we should have done better," Armstrong said after his club had edged Montreal Alouettes 8-3 Friday night before less than 18,000 fans.

"We weren't moving as fast as we should, even though most of the boys tried hard," he added. "We'll have to do a better job than this if we want to finish on top or somewhere near the top."

THE RIDERS

The Edmonton victory moved the club into a first place tie with Saskatchewan Roughriders and marked the team's fourth game in the last 15 days.

"Even so, we're probably slightly less tired than Montreal," Armstrong said.

In the Eastern Conference club's dressing room coach Darrell Mudra said the Montrealers had "1,000 chances to win, but missed them all."

And the official statistician would have to agree with him.

The Als worked for 18 first downs to six marked up by the western club and put together a respectable total offence of 313 yards—207 of that amount coming from the passing arms of quarterbacks Bernie Faloney and George Bork.

THOMAS OUT

By comparison the Eskies ran for only 65 yards without their top rusher — halfback Jim Thomas—and picked up 86 more through the air. Thomas suffered a severe charleyhorse against B.C. Lions one week ago and didn't make the eastern trip.

However, the winners had enough points on quarterback Randy Kerbow's 41-yard second-quarter single and a 37-yard pass-and-run touchdown from Kerbow to end E. A. Sims and Tommy-Joe Coffey's convert to sink the punchless Als.

Sims broke a tackle by Montreal's Jim Walter near the 15-yard line and went in for the major standing up.

The game's only touchdown was set up after a fumble by the Als' halfback Don Lisbon.

KEMPF KICKS ONE

Peter Kempf picked up the Als' only points as he connected on one field goal. He has now accounted for all 23 points the Alouettes have scored in their last four games and is the East's leading point-getter with 38, eight more than Hamilton Ticats' Tommy Grant.

Montreal had a touchdown called back early in the fourth quarter after Bork threw a screen pass to Lisbon at the Montreal 26 and the speedy halfback ran away from everyone on the field. However, a clipping penalty was called against Montreal to nullify the play.

"That clip by Ken Galloway occurred away behind the play," coach Mudra said. "It was a useless clip and we lost a game we should have won by 10 points."

Kerbow threw 14 times for the Eskies, but only connected on three of his passes. Faloney and Bork combined for nine of 18.

COMMONWEALTH COMPETITION

Comox Wins Bomb Trophy

COMOX — A Neptune crew from CFB Comox, competing with air crews from other Commonwealth countries, has won the Fincastle Trophy for bombing efficiency.

This is the second time in five years that Canada has won the trophy.

The Comox team was one of three Canadian crews to compete against three crews each from Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom.

The crew completed three perfect day bombing runs in three minutes, 20 seconds, the fastest time in competition.

This added to points gained by the east coast's Maritime Patrol Squadron qualified Canada as the winner.

The Fincastle Trophy was presented for Commonwealth competition in 1960 by a British couple, Mr. and Mrs. Aird White, in memory of their son who was killed while serving as a gunner in Coastal Command during the Second World War.

The trophy was won by an Australian crew last year

SUNDAY MEETING ON DISPUTE

COURTENAY — Union and company officials will meet Sunday to discuss a dispute that has tied up Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. logging operations in the Comox area.

The meeting was arranged by Jack Moore, regional president of the International Woodworkers of America, after local union officials appealed for help in getting talks started.

The logging operations, employing 250 men, have been idle since Thursday morning.

Union officials said the dispute involves travel time pay, wages and safety procedures.

Mr. Moore said officials from the IWA's regional headquarters in Vancouver will take part in Sunday's talks with company representatives.

Boy Bitten By Rabid Bat

NANAIMO — Dr. H. L. Simon of the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit, said Friday three bats have been found in the area which have been rabid.

One of them flew through an open window of a Chemainus house and bit a nine-year-old sleeping boy.

"Parents living in houses which are in forested areas or in areas where bats have been seen should close their windows at night," said Dr. Simon.

"All parents should be aware of this danger and should report any similar incidents to the family doctor."

Pig War Marked By Park Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed into law Friday a bill creating a new national historical park near the Canadian boundary where the shooting of a British-owned pig once threatened an armed confrontation between the U.S. and Britain.

The legislation, which Johnson hailed as "proof to all that even the most explosive international issues can be resolved by means other than war," established San Juan Island National Historical Park in Puget Sound, first planned a decade ago.

Johnson recalled the falling-out with Britain more than a century ago over the death of one pig. He said:

"In 1859, two great powers — Great Britain and the United States — became involved in a bitter dispute over 'the affair of the pig.'

"This affair — which did not develop into actual armed conflict — derived from the shooting of a British-owned pig found rooting in the garden of an American settler. For 13 years these two great nations maintained armed forces in the disputed San Juan archipelago.

"The question of sovereignty was resolved by the Treaty of Washington in 1871, and the final arbitration of the question was accomplished by the German emperor in 1872. For the first time in the history of the United States there was no boundary dispute with Great Britain."

HUNTERS FINED

Indians Unprotected On Private Property

DUNCAN — The famous Supreme Court ruling that Indians may hunt out of season does not give them the right to hunt over private property.

This was established in court here Thursday when Benny Canute and Norman Mitchell were fined $10 each for being in possession of two deer on Salt Spring Island July 25.

They were seen loading two fawns into a boat.

Canute and Mitchell were charged under the new provincial Wildlife Act. They changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty after their counsel, Don Cunliffe, consulted with Tom Berger, the Vancouver lawyer who successfully fought the conviction of two Duncan Indians for hunting out of season

ADMITTED

Mr. Cunliffe said: "The accused freely admitted hunting and taking the deer.

"They may have been under the misapprehension the decision in the famous White and Bob case protected them.

"The particular treaty does not give them protection here, especially as there was private property involved."

The Crown asked for the minimum penalty, a $10 fine.

Joe Elliott, a member of the Cowichan Indian Band, said the local conservation officer has been invited to attend a meeting on the reserve to explain the new Wildlife Act.

In Vancouver today, Mr. Berger said Canute and Mitchell were not protected by the treaty because they were hunting over private property.

"The decision in the White and Bob case upheld the right of Indians to hunt over unoccupied Crown lands. It does not give them the right to hunt over private land."

TALKS BEGIN NEXT WEEK ON STOPPAGE

COURTENAY — The International Woodworkers of America will try to start negotiations next week with top officials of Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. to try to end a work stoppage by 250 employees in the Comox logging division.

IWA regional president Jack Moore arrived here today for consultations with local union officials.

The men walked off the job in a dispute over loggers' travel time pay. A union spokesman said talks with local company officials have made no progress and an attempt will be made to meet senior company officials from Vancouver.

592 EXHIBITED AT COWICHAN FAIR

Top Livestock Showing on Island

DUNCAN — Cowichan Exhibition officials this year are claiming the best showing of livestock on Vancouver Island with a total of 592 animals in the running for prizes.

The total is made up of 140 light horses, 134 dairy cattle, 128 beef cattle, 100 pigs and 90 sheep.

Bert Baughman's Fir Oak Stock Ranch, Mosier, Oregon, took the grand championship bull award and the grand champion female ribbon. G. E. and J. L. Tatton, Sooke, won both reserve championships.

Other strong competitors were J. M. and E. R. McMinn, Saanich; J. L. Bartholow and J. Scaife, Victoria.

Four exhibitors shared the prizes in the Hereford contest.

C Bar N Ranch, Nanaimo, had grand champion female. R. Ball, Victoria, had reserve female. G. W. Swan, Victoria, had grand champion male and T. D. Groves, Westholme, reserve male. R. A. Jones, Victoria, also stood up well with animals in several classes.

FOUR EXHIBITORS

The Highland cattle section had four exhibitors. The junior championship in females, which went on to win the grand championship, was Eleanor of Craiglea, owned by Ruth Whittaker, Cowichan Station. This heifer was a 1965 4-H calf. The reserve female championship was won by Mrs. Doug McAdams, Maple Bay. Grand champion bull honors went to J. Muchart, Langley, and reserve to Islay Mutter, Victoria.

In the Aberdeen Angus class the Woodwynn Farms herd from Saanichton won all championships. Turner Meadows, Qualicum, took some first prizes and gave strong competition all the way. Don Alberg and D. M. Johnston also had some good entries.

Tom Hopkins, Cloverdale, judged all breeds of beef cattle and the ringside agreed with most of his placings.

In the dairy cattle the Jersey breed had the heaviest entry and the four main breeders shared the championship ribbons. Grand champion bull went to J. A. Wright, Saanichton, and reserve to Harry Standen, Cowichan Station. Grand champion female went to R. L. Mutrie, Saanichton, and reserve to George Aylard, Sidney. The Mutrie cow also won the coveted prize for the best-uddered cow of any breed.

HOLSTEIN DUEL

The Holstein judging was mainly a duel between William Taylor, Saanichton, and Gordon Rendle, Victoria, with a few local entries. Taylor took both grand championships.

The Ayrshire showing was smaller than in former years. John Balme, Cobble Hill, won all the female classes but J. L. Saville, Sidney, was given the bull championship.

The Guernsey prizes went largely to T. Y. Bazett, Maple Bay, though Genoa Farms, Genoa Bay, took out some good females.

Bruno Giacomazzi, Aldergrove, judged Holsteins and Jerseys, and Frank Saville, Sardis, judged the Guernseys and Ayrshires.

Alex Turner, Qualicum, placed all the sheep, W. and K. Gould, Nanaimo, was the main winner in Suffolks; Don Beaton, Qualicum, in Dorsets; S. and K. Smethurst, Saanich, in Southdowns; and Hamish Sibbald, Cobble Hill, in Cheviots. The Graylands Cup for best ewe went to Beaton and the Groves Cup for best entry of sheep to Sibbald.

S. J. Hill, Cobble Hill, and Sam Hanna, Duncan, showed some first-class Yorkshire pigs which attracted a lot of attention. In the market classes they met stiff opposition from H. Ottosen and P. Wallace, Cowichan Station. Hanna won the Bert Young memorial trophy for the best registered sow on the grounds.

BENNETT MUST GO!

LOOK AT THE RECORD

- Bennett has handed over our rich forest, mineral and hydro resources to foreign corporations.
- Bennett's Socred steamroller has introduced the worst anti-labor legislation in Canada at the behest of big employers.
- Bennett called this election to assure big investors he can guarantee them high profits, which he calls "stability".
- He changed constituency boundaries to benefit his own party to achieve his aim.

ERNIE KNOTT

IF YOU OBJECT TO THIS SHAMEFUL SELLOUT

Then on Sept. 12 use your ballot to oust the Bennett government. Vote only for candidates pledged to place the needs of the people of B.C. ahead of private corporate profits.

A COMMUNIST PROGRAM FOR B.C.

1. Return all natural resources to the people of British Columbia and develop them in the public interest through crown owned corporations.
2. Establish an Automation Control Board with direct labor representation to ensure a fair distribution of the benefits of automation.
3. Reduce labor strife by repealing anti-labor legislation and introducing a new Labor Act to improve collective bargaining procedures.
4. Provide increased funds for education, health and welfare by taxation based on ability to pay.
5. Have our Legislature demand an end to Ottawa's complicity in the barbarous U.S. war in Viet Nam.

HERE'S WHAT YOUR VOTE MEANS

A vote for a Communist candidate is at the same time a demand for the replacement of our corporation-controlled society by a democratic society, where the needs of the people come first.

Television 1966-67 Premieres 35 Shows On Five Color Nets

It's that time of the year again! Television's annual moment of truth has arrived. This week a new season begins with new thrills, new triumphs, new disasters.

Premiere attractions this year feature 35 new weekly prime-time series, most of which debut this week. The new roster of shows includes the usual large quota of comedies (14 new laughers join 14 holdovers), more feature movies than ever before with five being shown weekly in prime time, spy shows, comebacks including Milton Berle, Garry Moore, Ann Sheridan and Jean Arthur, old heroes including Tarzan and The Green Hornet and an extraordinary series of high-powered specials called ABC Stage 67.

Along with the new roster, many of the old-timers — those which survived the deadly rating-tests — will reappear after the long summer full of reruns and specials. The majority of old and new shows will be shown in color on the five major networks and on the independent channels.

To assist viewers in quickly identifying the new programs and select those which will appeal to the individual taste, this week's Times television section is presenting a by-program synopsis of the new shows.

For time and channel, viewers can refer to the program listings on these pages.

★ ★ ★

"ABC STAGE 67" could turn out to be, as its proud parents at ABC predict, "one of the most exciting and challenging programs ever presented by a national television network." All it has to do is look as good on the screen as it does on paper. A wide range of programs are in the works. Here are some of them: DRAMAS — "A Christmas Memory," by Truman Capote, with Geraldine Page; "The Human Voice," by Jean Cocteau, with Ingrid Bergman; "Noon Wine," by Katherine Anne Porter, with Jason Robards Jr. and Olivia de Havilland; "Dare I Weep, Dare I Mourn," by John Le Carre, with James Mason and Hugh Griffith; and the series' opening show, "The Love Song of Barney Kempinski," by Murray Schisgal, with Alan Arkin and Sir John Gielgud. MUSICAL SHOWS — "The Canterville Ghost," based on Oscar Wilde's story, with songs by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, and starring Sir Michael Redgrave; "Olympus 7-0000," a musical fantasy by Jerome Chodorov and Richard Adler, with Donald O'Connor; "Rodgers and Hart Today," a songfest with Bobby Darin, Petula Clark and Count Basie; "Sour Grapes," a French musical-variety show; and "The Bob Dylan Show." OTHERS — "David Frost's Night Out in London," with Sir Laurence Olivier, Peter Sellers and Albert Finney; "The Kennedy Wit," with Jack Paar; "The Brave Rifles," recalling the Battle of the Bulge; and a look at Negro humor with Harry Belafonte. Most shows will be an hour; a few, 90 minutes.

★ ★ ★

"THAT GIRL" is Marlo Thomas, Danny's bright-eyed daughter, getting her big break in the role of a girl who's looking for her big break. Ann Marie, as she's called, wants to be an actress. She goes to New York and acquires the things every aspiring Bernhardt needs: a boy friend (Ted Bessell), an agent (George Carlin), a drama coach (Billy DeWolfe) and a wisecracking friend (Bonnie Scott). While she waits impatiently for the world to recognize her talents, she takes odd jobs, copes with parents who don't always understand her (Lew Parker and Rosemary De Camp), rushes from one audition to another and has the time of her life.

★ ★ ★

"MISSION IMPOSSIBLE" is exactly what it sounds like: An elite team of undercover agents hop from one hot spot to another, performing incredible feats. The brains of the outfit is Dan Briggs (Steven Hill), who calls on specialists to help pull off the stunts. His accomplices include an electronics expert (Greg Morris), a strongman (Peter Lupus) and, when he's needed, an actor with a genius for makeup and impersonation (Martin Landau). Rounding out the squad is a tasty dish named Cinnamon Carter (Barbara Bain), who comes in handy whenever it's necessary to distract enemy operatives from the swift completion of their appointed rounds — or sceptical viewers from way-out scripts.

★ ★ ★

"RUN, BUDDY, RUN" is all spoof. Buddy, a nebbish accountant, is on the lam because he has overheard some mobsters plotting a murder. The hoods have spread the word. So Buddy runs and runs and runs. The mob pursues and pursues and pursues. Bullets fly, cars careen. Moon-faced Jack Sheldon (The Cara Williams Show) is Buddy; Bruce Gordon, who was Frank Nitti in The Untouchables, now is the notorious underworld overlord, Devere; Jim Connell is Devere's prissy son; and Nick Georgiade and Gregg Palmer also run.

OCCASIONAL WIFE—The fire escape provides an important link between the lives of business executive Peter Christopher (Michael Callan) and attractive Greta Patterson (Patricia Harty) whom he has hired on a platonic basis to pose as his wife, in NBC-TV's new situation comedy color series "Occasional Wife" which will have its premiere Tuesday, at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

"THE RAT PATROL" re-fights the North African campaign during the Second World War. The rodents of the title are four desert commandos — Chris George as Sgt. Sam Troy, the hard-as-nails leader; Gary Raymond as Sgt. Jack Moffitt, a quietly competent Englishman; Justin Tarr as Pvt. Tully Pettigrew, a Kentucky moonshine runner, and Larry Casey as Mark Hitchcock, a rambunctious Ivy Leaguer. They zip about the desert in two jeeps, harassing and demoralizing the Afrika Corps and bugging one Nazi in particular, a desert rat fink played by Hans Gudegast.

"THE PRUITTS OF SOUTHAMPTON" are just like the Rockefellers and the Vanderbilts, except for two things: (1) They're broke. (2) Mrs. Pruitt looks, dresses and acts like Phyllis Diller. That's because she is Phyllis Diller, clowning her way through the role of a tapped-out society matron with all the delicacy of a bulldozer. For reasons that don't matter very much, the Pruitts are obliged to keep up appearances of wealth while trying to reconcile themselves to the squalid life of a family with only eight rooms, one butler and one car. Cast includes Reginald Gardiner, Gypsy Rose Lee, John McGiver, Richard Deacon, Grady Sutton, Lisa Loring, Pam Freeman.

★ ★ ★

"IT'S ABOUT TIME" is about two not-very-bright astronauts (Frank Aletter, Jack Mullaney), who break through the time barrier and land in the Stone Age. It's about the not-very-bright cave family (Imogene Coca, Joe E. Ross, Mary Grace, Pat Cardi) that befriends them. It's about the not-very-bright chieftain (Cliff Norton) and his not-very-bright lieutenant (Mike Mazurki). It's about dinosaur hunts, mastodon steaks, evil spirits and cavemen dragging cavewomen around by the hair.

★ ★ ★

"FAMILY AFFAIR" is about the footloose batchelor and his haughty British manservant who suddenly become the foster parents of three children. Bill Davis (Brian Keith) has a plush pad in New York and nothing on his mind except deciding which delicious creature to dally with on any given evening. Then three orphans are left on his doorstep, and Davis puts them under the care of his man French (Sebastion Cabot).

★ ★ ★

"LOVE ON A ROOFTOP" is this year's newly-wed comedy. The lovebirds are Julie (Judy Carne) and David (Peter Deuel). Their nest is a barely furnished, windowless flat with rooftop privileges, affording them a glorious view of San Francisco. Julie calls the roof their "patio." David, however, views things more realistically. Julie's father (Herbert Voland), a blustering used-car tycoon, is singularly unenthusiastic about the apartment. Rich Little and Barbara Bostock play a pair of gabby neighbors.

★ ★ ★

"THE MAN WHO NEVER WAS" is Peter Murphy, an American espionage agent who assumes the identity of a deceased billionaire playboy, Mark Wainwright, to dupe the East German police. Murphy has his work cut out for him. Wainwright flew his own jet, drove racing cars, was a champion skeet shooter and five-

THE STAR of The Rodger Miller Show

MICKEY ROONEY

Old 'Ham' Now Directs Television

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mickey Rooney is hard at work in the profession he has known nearly all of his 45 years. But he admits he has not yet recovered from what he refers to as "the tragedy."

It took place last Jan. 31 when his fifth wife was slain by a rival for her affections, a would-be actor from Yugoslavia, who then took his own life. She was the mother of four of Rooney's children.

Rooney has been working almost continuously since. Recently he returned from filmmaking in Italy and reported for television assignments. He will be seen on CBS on the opening shows of both Jean Arthur and Red Skelton. Last weekend Mickey announced his engagement to Margie Lane.

Last week Rooney was functioning in another guise: Director of The Jean Arthur Show. A craftsman who has learned every nuance of comic invention, he supplanted guest star Wally Cox in rehearsing a scene with Miss Arthur that drew guffaws from the film crew.

FIRST ATTEMPT

"This is my first directing in television, but I did direct a movie at Columbia a few years back," he said. "Let's face it — I've also done a lot of directing that I never got credit for. Every actor has to."

He was wearing his director's costume of slacks, turtleneck shirt and golf sweater with a bucket hat atop his thinning blonde locks. The Rooney ebullience was lacking, but not his enthusiasm for work.

He had been in Italy filming The Devil In Love with Vittorio Gassman — "I play his sidekick, a sort of aging Puck," said Rooney, who played the Shakespearean sprite in Warner Brothers' all-star Midsummer Night's Dream in 1935. He leaves this month for a night club date in Australia, then returns for more films and television.

"Work is a great catarsis," said the actor. "It's the best thing for me right now, because I still haven't had a comeback from the tragedy. I'm getting there, but it will take some more time."

Variety Keynote of Fall TV Schedule

STARRY-EYED when stricken by a strange malady after venturing on a barren planet, Dr. Elizabeth Dehner (guest star Sally Kellerman) is aided by spaceship commander James T. Kirk (William Shatner) in "Where No Man Has Gone Before" on "Star Trek" colorcast Thursday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 5.

goal polo player, and shot to a two handicap in golf. Fortunately for Murphy, Wainwright's attractive widow has agreed to play along with the deception, which is set against the background of Europe's cities, where the series is being filmed. Robert Lansing, formerly of 12 O'clock High, is Murphy; Dana Wynter plays the widow Wainwright.

"THE MONROES" has a Western setting and is a saga of courage and strength, pitting man against his fellow man and against nature. Specifically, it's the story of a family of five orphans who struggle to make a life for themselves in the wilderness of the Wyoming Territory. The Monroes are Clayt, 18 (Michael Anderson Jr.); Kathleen, 16 (Barbara Hershey); Big Twin and Little Twin, 13 (Keith and Kevin Schultz); and Amy, 6 (Tammy Locke). In their struggle for survival they get some help from a friendly Indian, Jim (Ron Soble), and, grudgingly, from Major Mapoy (Liam Sullivan), a dour land baron who learns to respect the Monroes' determination but is confident that they won't stick it out. The scenery (the show is filmed at Jackson Hole, Wyo.) is gorgeous.

★ ★ ★

"JERICHO" is the code name for a trio of Allied agents who operate behind enemy lines during the Second World War. They are the familiar mixture of American (Don Francks), Englishman (John Leyton) and Frenchman (Marino Mase). They have something extra going for them: the convenient sutpidity of all the Nazis they run into.

★ ★ ★

"HAWK" is a cop. But he's a TV cop, which means that he's an Iroquois Indian who resembles Marlon Brando and wears a double-breasted blue blazer. Full name: John Hawk. Assignment: the Manhattan district attorney's special detective squad. Hawk's specialy is night people, particularly the ones who go around killing other night people. The show is filmed on the streets of New York. Burt Reynolds is seen as Hawk, Wayne Grice as his eager-beaver assistant and John Marley as a newsstand proprietor who knows everything that's going on in the city.

★ ★ ★

"THE TIME TUNNEL" is the latest chunk of fantasy carved out by producer Irwin Allen (Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, Lost in Space). This time his itinerant heroes, a pair of young scientists, are on an excursion through time. It seems their experimental time machine has a few bugs in it and its operators can't control the destinations of the two travellers. So one week they're back in prehistoric times, another week they're on a rocket to the moon, or aboard the Titanic, or the Battle of Gettysburg. The yo-yo-ing scientists are played by Jame Darren and Robert Colbert. Meanwhile, back at the time machine, you can find their supporting cast—Lee Meriwether, John Zaremba and Whit Bissel—twisting dials like crazy and biting their fingernails.

★ ★ ★

"TARZAN" brings Edgar Rice Burrough's imperishable ape man to the television jungle. Burroughs, however, would have trouble recognizing TV's Tarzan. This Tarzan went to "the finest schools" after the apes raised him. This is, clearly, no "Me Tarzan, you Jane" clod; in fact' there's no Jane at all in his life. There's his trusty sidechimp, Cheetah, plus an orphan boy named Jai (Manuel Padilla Jr.), assorted aborigines, territorial cops, poachers and diamond thieves, and every conceivable variety of tropical flora and fauna (the show is filmed, in large part, in Latin America). Himself is Ron Ely, a rugged testimonial to the virtues of outdoor living.

★ ★ ★

T.H.E. CAT" stands for Thomas Hewitt Edward Cat (Robert Loggia), who, they say, used to be a cat burglar. In any case he now is a professional bodyguard. He brings a rather impressive set of talents to his work—he scales walls, walks tightropes and carries a shiv up his sleeve. He spends his off-duty hours in a murky bistro called Casa del Gato owned by his gypsy friend Pepe (Robert Carricart). The locale is a contemporary metropolis.

★ ★ ★

"THE TAMMY GRIMES SHOW" stars the saucy comedienne as a "madcap heiress. This particular madcap heiress, Tammy Ward, has a twin brother (Dick Sargent) who is her exact opposite—he's a completely symmetrial square. The series recounts Tammy's persistent attempts to get her hands on her inheritence so that she can do all the uninhibited things madcap heriesses are wont to do—wear bizarre clothes, keep a roomfull of tropical birds, frug the night away, buy a baseball player with a credit card, fly away to a ski lodge at the drop of a yodel. Despite the eternal vigilance of her skinflint Uncle Simon (Hiram Sherman), Tammy seems capable of living in the style to which madcap heiresses are accustomed.

★ ★ ★

"THE JEAN ARTHUR SHOW" displays the comedienne with the enchantingly cracked voice who delighted moviegoers in "The More the Merrier," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and many other cinema comedies. Her TV series casts her as a lawyer who has the brains, the crusading zeal and the zest for battle of a Lawrence Preston. Like Preston, she also has a son (Ron Harper) who is her law partner. But the similarity to The Defenders goes no further than that. For this is situation comedy, pure and simple. A number of the situations involve a reformed hood played by Richard Conte.

★ ★ ★

"HEY LANDLORD!" takes a carefree young man from Ohio and sets him loose in New Yok City, where an uncle has bequeathed him an old brownstone. Woody Banner spends his life looking after his building, becoming involved with its tenants (it has been subdivided into apartments), trying on vaious jobs and girls for size, and putting up with his roommate. The roomy is Chuck Hookstratten, a brash city boy who wants to be a comedian. The two bachelors hit it off pretty well, but occasionally things get a bit strained. When they get sick of each other, there is a whole city full of beautiful girls waiting to be swept off their feet. Will Hutchins (Sugarfoot) is Woody; Sandy Baron is Chuck; and Michael Constantine, Pamela Rodgers and Miko Mayama are their neighbors.

★ ★ ★

"THE GARRY MOORE SHOW" will accentuate comedy and will lean heavily on a stock company of semi-regular performers in its bid to make Moore's return to television a triumphant one. The company is a mixture of old pros and newcomers, all of them adept at comedy; Durward Kirby, Jackie Vernon, Eddie Lawrence, John Byner, Dick Davey, Patsy Elliott, Carol Corbett, Pete Barbutti and Ron Carey, among others. Guest stars will be used sparingly: Phil Silvers, Red Buttons, Morey Amsterdam, Rose Marie, Jim Backus and Frank Fontaine are among those expected to show.

★ ★ ★

"THE MONKEES" is coming. And win, lose or draw, it's a series which, at least, is different. The premise is conventional enough: A rock-'n'-roll quartet romps through miscellaneous comic misadventures, pausing to sing. The difference is in the way the show is done. Just as its four leading men are patterned on the Beatles, its production techniques are borrowed in large measure from the Beatles' movies. The whole thing is played within a non-realistic framework, with frenetic changes of costume and scene, slapstick chases, photographic pranks of all sorts. The four boys are Davy, Peter, Micky and "Wool Hat" (he usually wears one), played by David Jones, Peter Tork, Micky Dolenz and Mike Nesmith.

★ ★ ★

"THE HERO" not only has feet of clay; he's all thumbs, too. Sam Garret's a pleasant enough chap, but let's face it, he's a klutz. It wouldn't matter very much except for the fact that millions of TV viewers know and idolize him as the peerless "Jed Clayton, U.S. Marshal." That's the situation; most of the comedy comes from sight gags — Sam walking into doors, Sam hammering his thumb when he hangs a picture, Sam tripping over scenery, Sam getting his foot caught in a curtain rope and being hoisted off the floor, Sam getting his trigger finger caught in a toy gun ... There's also byplay between our maladroit hero (Richard Mulligan) and his wife (Mariette Hartley), son (Bobby Horan), neighbor (Victor French) and son of neighbor (Joey Baio), who keeps ambushing and pummelling Sam.

★ ★ ★

"THE ROGER MILLER SHOW" shapes up as a musical-variety series tailored to fit the unique dimensions of its star, the barefoot boy with chic who has become a one-man hit parade during the past year or so. There will be guests; lined up so far are George Burns, Petula Clark, Bill Cosby, Bobby Darin, Vince Edwards, Ernie Ford, Arthur Godfrey, Liberace, Anna Moffo, the Kingston Trio, and Peter, Paul and Mary. A lively group of singers and dancers called the Doodletown Pipers will lend regular support.

★ ★ ★

"THE GREEN HORNET" is a reasonably faithful translation of the old radio series. Its fearless hero is still Britt Reid, who by day is the debonair editor and publisher of the Daily Sentinel but by night takes up the wearing of the green — green felt fedora, green overcoat, green muffler, green mask — to become the scourge of organized crime known as The Green Hornet. At his side is his faithful manservant, Kato, who drives the Hornet's gadget-festooned limousine, Black Beauty.

★ ★ ★

"SHANE" like the 1953 movie that fathered it, is about a stranger with a fast gun and a mysterious past who takes the side of the homesteaders in their fight for survival against the cattlemen in a Wyoming valley.

Q. I was involved in an auto collision recently, the other driver being totally at fault. I found it very difficult to get compensation for car rental while my own car was being repaired. What is the standard procedure in such matters?

A. These matters are complicated and there is no standard solution. You would be well advised to add insurance against "loss of use" which is available at a very low cost.

Mystery Still Shrouds Woman's Death

Three hours of evidence at a coroner's inquest has left the death of an elderly Saanich woman last Saturday still shroudd in mystery.

Mrs. Nancy Beggs, 86, was found dead in her four-room bungalow at 1812 Feltham Rd. with an electric extension cord wrapped round her neck.

The body of the elderly widow was discovered by her son lying under a plastic bedspread in a spare bedroom. He rushed to his mother's house after a next-door neighbor failed to get a response when she knocked at Mrs. Begg's door for her daily visit.

Details of the case were revealed by a dozen witnesses at Friday night's inquest in the Sands Funeral Chapel.

PUZZLE

Here are some of the puzzles facing Saanich detectives:

- An autopsy has revealed Mrs. Beggs died of asphyxiation. Doctors found a puffed and red welt-like mark on her neck. When the body was found, both her hands were free, the electric cord was looped once about her neck but not tied.
- Her son Robert, a greens superintendent at Victoria Golf Club, testified he found all the doors and windows of his mother's house locked when he arrived.
- Firemen called to the house with a resuscitator found an oil stove in the kitchen going "full blast" and the temperature about 100 degrees.

They said if left much longer, the stove might have set adjacent walls aflame.

- Detectives searching the house found evidence Mrs. Beggs had about $50,000 in investments and close to $5,800 in the bank.
- An unidentified amount of cash in the dead woman's purse was untouched and there was no indication the house had been searched.

The inquest will resume Sept. 23 at the Saanich courtroom when a medical report on a "foreign substance" found near the body will be introduced in evidence.

Mr. Beggs explained that the cord he found around his mother's neck connected a refrigerator in the room with the only outlet, a hanging light fixture.

He demonstrated for the jury how the cord was looped once around Mrs. Begg's neck and speculated that his mother might have become entwined in it as she plugged it into the fixture and then fainted, possibly from the excessive heat.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre termed the explanation "highly unlikely."

Mrs. Beggs suffered from glaucoma, had lost her sight in one eye and was affected in the other, her son said.

A compound leg fracture several years ago had added to her unsteadiness.

Mrs. Rosetta Harris, the dead woman's neighbor who is celebrating her 81st birthday today, said she visited Mrs. Beggs twice daily and helped her put drops in her eyes.

SUICIDE OUT

Asked by the coroner if Mrs. Beggs might have contemplated suicide, she replied, "My goodness, no. She would never do a think like that."

Detectives Ronald Coulter and Anthony Clarke both said tests with the plugs showed they came free from the extension and the refrigerator easily.

"I don't believe so," replied Detective Coulter when asked whether he thought the cord hanging from the fixture to the top of the refrigerator could have proved a hazard.

The search of the house, he said, produced some old gold coins dating back to the 1800s. These were found in an ancient suitcase.

Asked if the house was in good order, he said parts were thick with dust and there were mice or rat droppings in drawers and closets. Paper which had been nibbled also indicated the presence of rodents.

Mrs. Beggs' son and daughter-in-law said they had wanted her to move in with them for years but she had always put them off. Mr. Beggs said his mother had finally agreed to move in with them at the end of this month.

She was "rapidly approaching" the point where she could no longer take proper care of herself, Mrs. Beggs Jr. said of her mother-in-law.

Both described her as fiercely independent and opposed to any household assistance.

Youth, 17, Pleads Guilty To Assault

A 17-year-old youth who tried to drag a drive-in waitress into his car pleaded guilty in court Thursday to assault.

David Quan of Mesachie Lake, B.C. will be sentenced Sept. 15 after Magistrate Ostler has studied a pre-sentence report.

The incident took place at the A and W Drive-In, 3335 Douglas Sept. 4 when court was told Quan went to a counter to order a hamburger.

A few moments later the waitress came to the car where the accused was sitting and asked why someone had taken a hamburger from the counter which did not belong to them.

Quan got out of the car and grabbed the girl. She broke free as he was trying to drag her to the auto.

'Bennett Too Big For His Britches'

MA SIGNALS VICTORY FOR CAMPBELL

The local election campaign was finally sparked Friday night ... by a 79-year-old woman.

Margaret "Ma" Murray, the peppery newspaperwoman from Lillooet, gave the biggest lift of his campaign to Jim Campbell, Liberal candidate in Saanich and The Islands.

Sometimes cussin', often emotional, always fervent, she enthralled a crowd of more than 300 persons for 90 minutes in Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall.

Ma said she had only one purpose in coming here. "I'm not so stupid as to think the government will be turned out on Monday.

"But I want to cut Premier Bennett down to size. If he lost even a few seats it would do him good."

Ma's appeal?: Let everyone who opposes Social Credit forget party ties and vote for the opposition candidate with the best chance of knocking out a Social Crediter.

She made it clear that she has no time for Liberal leader Ray Perrault or NDP leader Robert Strachan. "They're a pair of knotheads."

SMART COOKIE

But the man she really can't stand is Premier Bennett. "I give Bennett a lot of credit. There's no doubt he's a smart cookie. But he has made mistakes. I wouldn't mind that but he sweeps them under the carpet and thumbs his nose at the people who have to pay for them.

"He's got too big for his britches and the only thing to do is give him a kick in them and tighten them up a bit."

Ma said she gets "hopping mad" when the premier claims there are no issues in this election. "He is facing the biggest trouble he ever had. The Peace River dam is two generations ahead of its time. There's no population up there and no secondary industries to use the power from the dam.".

COST SOARING

She said the cost of the Peace development is soaring and all of it has to be financed in British Columbia, unlike the Columbia which was financed by U.S. payments for future downstream benefits.

Ma said she "can't get over" Bennett's plan for a $500 home-purchase grant. She spoke emotionally of newlyweds making their own way in the world, saying "it is far sweeter" than depending on money given to them.

Ma said Premier Bennett is trying to "pull the wool over your eyes with talk of northern development. He spoofs you because he knows you don't know what is going on in the north. He doesn't know himself."

But the big issue in the election, said Ma, is that "dictatorship is too close for comfort." She said that if Social Credit is returned with an increased majority then Premier Bennett "will do what he likes with our money, our resources and our reputation. He'll do it without an aye, yes or no or what the hell."

Ma said the only way to beat the premier is by ganging up on him and, in Saanich, the voters should support Jim Campbell, "a homespun, a mighty fine candidate, a down-to-earth guy."

THEY MAKE THE COMMUNITY A BETTER AND SAFER PLACE

Few people realize that Journeymen Mechanics in the plumbing business are often responsible for lower fire insurance rates.

But it is a fact.

Rare are the modern business buildings these days lacking an overhead sprinkling system which automatically turns itself on in the event of fire.

The building lacking such an intricate system pays far more in insurance than the building with a sprinkler system installed.

The work of installation is delicate. Temperatures must be gauged perfectly to prevent the unhappy circumstance of the system turning itself on with resulting damage just because a room temperature is higher than it should be.

For such delicate and fine-tuned work you need an expert.

A Journeyman Mechanic who has trained seriously for his task is such an expert. He not only makes the community in which you live more comfortable, he makes it safer too.

Fierce Competition Looms in Garden Show

DARK HORSE HAS A GOOD CHANCE

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Competition between gardeners at horticultural shows may not be as spectacular as a battle royal between football players, but it's every bit as keen and as tough.

As a game, it has more players than any other sport in Greater Victoria . . . more than 600 contestants.

Take for example the contest that is shapping up for major awards at the Victoria Horticultural Society fall show at the Curling Rink next weekend.

The contest to produce prize winning vegetables, fruits and flowers has been going on unrelentlessly since spring in backyards, potting sheds and greenhouses.

It has involved plenty of back-breaking spade work, wars against diseases and insects, plus all the known resources of the horticultural sciences.

What the gardeners are mainly vieing for are two coveted trophies. The first, the R.S. Bevan Memorial trophy awarded to the exhibitor o vegetables who receives the highest aggregate of points in both the Society's summer and fall show.

The other, the Buckerfield Ltd. Challenge trophy. It goes to the exhibitor who chaulks up the most points in all sections —flowers, vegetables and fruits.

In the ring for the Bevan trophy are Ken Hincks, 760 Goldstream; Harry Parker, 736 Benvenuto; and Bill Kempster, 730 Greenlea. All three have been top all-round exhibitors for years.

Mr. Hinks won it last year and stands a good chance of scoring another victory next week.

The favorites for the Buckerfield trophy are Geof. Hollyhead, 3401 Cook; Andy Anderson, 904 Island Road; Gordon Bentham, 3272 Wicklow, and Harry Parker.

Mr. Parker won it last year —mainly on points for his vegetables and fruits.

Of course, there is always a chance in the gardening game of a "dark horse" winning both trophies.

Gardeners on the whole are usually secretive about their exhibits and usually its only at a show that they each discover what the other has been up to. That's why a newcomer, without warning, sometimes, walks away with all major prizes.

Another major award at the show wil be for chrysanthemums—one of the feature attractions of the exhibitions. There will be hundreds of varieties on display, including imports from Britain.

There are plenty of good mum growers in Victoria, but the ma nto watch in contest is Andy Anderson.

Tom Sawyer, an official of the society, who has been keeping a sharp eye on developments, thinks competition at the show will be stiffer than ever.

"It's going to be touch and go for most exhibitors," he said. "One of the reasons is that growing conditions for most fruits, vegetables and flowers have been excellent this year. This means there is going to be many top-quality exhibits.

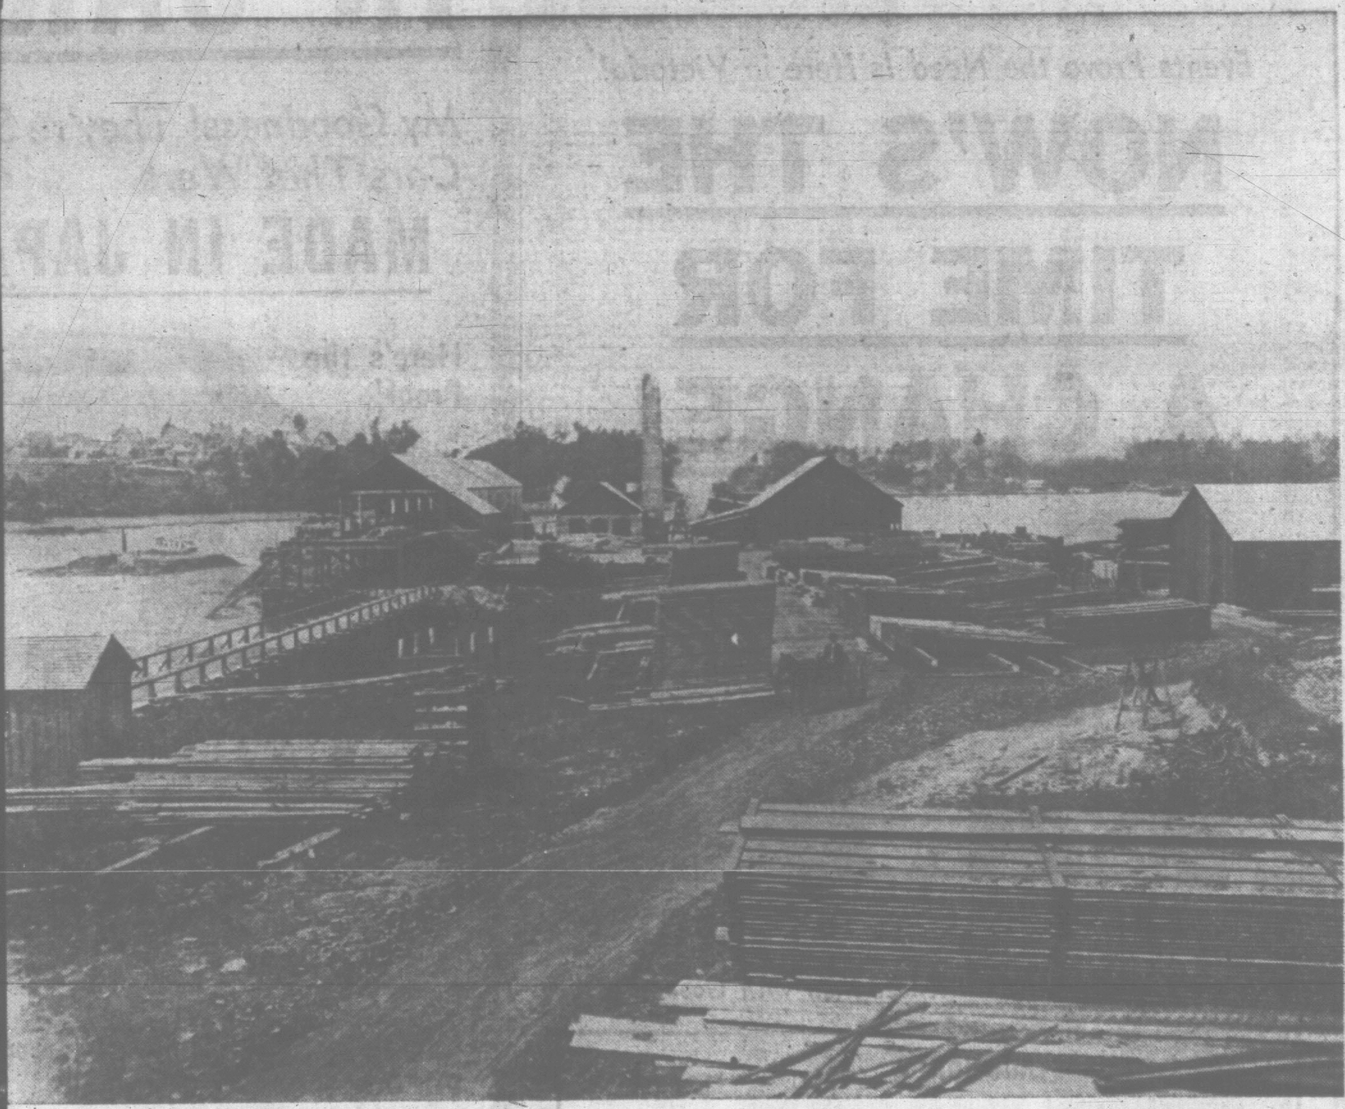
Long-time residents on the Victoria scene



The Cameron Sawmill, foot of Mackenzie Street, around 1906.
Mr. J. O. Cameron is the driver of the carriage at centre.

British Columbia Forest Products or our antecedents have been part of the Victoria scene for over sixty years now. Things have changed a little since this photograph of the Cameron Lumber Company mill was taken just after the turn of the century. About the only thing to mark this as the site of today's Victoria Sawmills and Plywood Plant is the rock islet at left centre—still a landmark in the Inner Harbour. Of course, companies grow through the years, too.

From a small group of businesses which included the Cameron firm, British Columbia Forest Products has grown into one of Canada's largest forest products companies. Over 3,600 people are now employed in our divisions throughout the Province, with more than 1,100 of them here in Victoria alone. All this change in one man's lifetime, and the biggest years are still ahead.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENS

Humus, Manure Preserve Precious Water

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

The trial and error method over several centuries has taught gardeners that soils had to be mixed with "mould," as they called it, to make them productive.

Today this same mould is called humus and the sources of humus are manures with bedding materials and decayed vegetation.

When these are incorporated into a garden soil or a farm field, the physical condition of the soil is greatly improved.

It becomes more friable, the air can penetrate more easily, bacterial activity increases, more plant food becomes available to the plants and precious water is held in the soil for a longer period.

Our plants feed by absorbing (if we may use that term) water from the surrounding soil by means of the extremely fine hairs on their roots, of which new ones are being continually made in a loose and friable soil.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Plant foods that are necessary to strong healthy plants must be in a form which will dissolve in water before they can enter the roots.

All mineral soil contains some plant food elements but these are usually in the form of compounds that are insoluble in water and nature's way of liberating such plant food is through acids created by the decomposition of vegetable matter.

If there is no vegetable matter present in the soil to decompose, this action cannot take place. While there may be plenty of food elements present, they cannot be utilized by the plants.

When a soil has the proper mixture of mineral and organic matter, certain transformations are necessary and these are made by the bacteria in the soil.

NOT SOGGY

The bacteria thrive only under certain conditions. The soil must be soft, loose, well supplied with air, continually moist but not soggy, and contain plenty of vegetable organic matter which is the food of the bacteria.

In soil that is dry or soggy wet, these beneficial bacteria die, as they also do in soil which is compacted, hard, and lacking in air. When the bacteria die the plants suffer because they have no agency to prepare their food.

Problem soils as found in the home garden may be eighter of two types — a soil in which clay predominates, or a soil in which the main ingredient is sand and gravel. Neither of these, by any stretch of the imagination, can be considered a good garden loam, which, we are told, is essential to success with plants.

In the clay or the sandy-gravelly soils we have the base of a good soil, and fortunately, either can be made into a loose, friable, moisture-retentive loam, suitable for the survival of both plants and the bacteria so essential to their well being.

I say fortunately, because either of these soil bases can be ameliorated by adding humus.

The humus may be of vegetable or animal origin, that is, partly decayed vegetable wastes or animal manure.

When these are added to clay, the structure is opened, or loosened, air can penetrate more easily to remove the excess moisture, and as the humus decays further, certain resins are formed which cause the extremely fine grains of clay to unite into individual crumbs and thus improve the structure.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Plant out the biennials as soon as spaces are available, for they need to be well established before soil becomes cold. Included are sweet-William, Canterbury-bells, wallflowers, forget-me-nots and polyanthus primulas.

Plant the dormant corms of hardy Cyclamen neapolitanum to flower later. Plant two to three inches deep in leaf-mould, since roots will form from the top edges of the corms as well as from their base.

Chrysanthemums in pots for late blooming need plenty of air, food and water.

Remove shading from greenhouse glass.

Check coldframe covers for repairs needed.

Lift potatoes after the tops become yellow and allow the tubers to dry for one hour in wind and sun.

If still planting winter cabbages, remember to use lime and firm the plants well.

Allow squash, tomatoes and sweet peppers to remain on plants as long as weather is warm but keep an eye and ear open for frost warnings.

Mystery of 'Creeping' Houses

Sometime around the middle of the last century, an experience of two freed slaves of Trinidad gave birth to a story that delights visitors to the island to this day.

The mystery of the creeping houses, it is called, and it all began shortly after the two ex-slaves built homes for themselves on what they thought was ground of rock-hard foundation. Several weeks after they had finished building their houses, they got up one morning to find, much to their astonishment, that both buildings had moved during the night.

There was no explanation for the movement and the two men discussed the mystery for most of the day, concluding with the only conclusion possible, that some practical joker had played a trick on them. So, with the hope of nabbling the prankster, they stayed up that night—and the night after that, and the next night and the next—but nothing more happened. Gradually, the two of them relaxed and returned to their daily routine.

★ ★ ★

About two weeks later the new settlers got up to find an alarming situation. Their houses had moved—or had been moved—several feet farther from the dirt road they had used coming home the night before. The terrified pair packed their belongings and fled, convinced that they were dealing with the supernatural.

Up to this day no one has solved the mystery of the creeping houses, although it is known now that the settlers built their homes on the edge of the 114-acre asphalt deposit that Trinidadians call Pitch Lake, which is located at La Brea, some 70-odd miles south of Port of Spain.

★ ★ ★

One thing is certain. Those settlers were lucky. Their houses were soon nowhere in sight and it is believed that the lake swallowed them up.

Some years ago, in this century, the well-preserved trunk of a tree, established to be 4,000 years old, appeared one morning, breaking through the surface of pitch. Workmen sawed off a six-foot section and the following morning when they came back the trunk had disappeared.

Pitch Lake was discovered by that intrepid English adventurer, Sir Walter Raleigh, who caulked his ships at La Brea during his visit there in 1595. He reported that the area was caled by the natives "Pische" and by the Spaniards "Tierra de Brea". Later, the military governor, Sir Thomas Picton, reported, "the island contains an inexhaustible supply of excellent pitch."

This assessment was not wrong. Trinidad's Pitch Lake supplies most of the roads of the world with the best asphalt that has ever been found. Seventy-five per cent of London's roads are paved with Trinidad pitch. And although millions of tons of the black gold have been dug out of the "lake" since it was first discovered, the surface level has fallen less than 25 feet.

★ ★ ★

Pitch Lake, now world famous, is believed to be thousands of years old. Pitch workers, during the course of their excavations, have found relics of past eras there—for example, the fossil remains of a mastadon, the pre-historic member of the elephant family that roamed this part of the new world.

A legend is associated with the lake. The story goes that a tribe of Chayma Indians, one of the aboriginal tribes in this Land of the Humming Bird, were punished by the gods on this very spot at La Brea where they lived. The Indians, celebrating the defeat of their enemies, killed and ate the sacred humming bird.

This so angered the Great Spirit that he caused the earth to open up and swallow the Indians and their village, and in their place rose the dark and mysterious lake of pitch.

2,500 Travel Agents To Attend Conference

NEW YORK — Useful business practices and techniques by which travel agents can increase sales, improve professional services to the public and promote and sell tourist attractions in the United States and Canada will receive major emphasis at the 36th World Travel Congress of the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) in Seattle Oct. 2-8.

Advance registration for the annual meeting of ASTA, the world's largest trade association of travel agents, points to a record attendance by some 2,500 leaders who play key decision-making roles in travel and tourism in more than 100 countries.

Enroute to and from Seattle, hundreds of travel agent delegates, as well as salesmen from other parts of the industry, will have an opportunity to inspect tourist and vacation destinations in large sectors of the western United States, including Hawaii, Canada and Mexico through a series of tours and "city stopovers" sponsored at special rates by area tourist promotion groups, hotels, resorts and steamship companies.

Among resolutions expected to be recommended by the 21,500 agents are the phasing out of visas and passports, simplification of customs' procedures, easing of currency controls, simplifying and speeding up baggage handling and the elimination of nuisance taxes on tourists. ASTA long has criticized the latter levies for creating a residue of ill-feeling towards some countries which far outweighs any revenues raised.

Going to London? Here's a good idea!

Bring back some tax-free French Perfume, Swiss Watches and Jamaican Rum from Amsterdam.

Fly Canadian Pacific Airlines to London and we'll throw Amsterdam into the bargain.

And what a bargain! Amsterdam has more canals than Venice, over 500 bridges, quaint 16th Century gabled houses and modern architecture. It has excellent hotels, first class entertainment and good restaurants.

The duty-free shopping center at Amsterdam's airport is the largest in the world – selling everything from tulip bulbs to diamonds. You'll be amazed at the low price of liquor, cameras, watches – and even French perfume.

Best of all – it's convenient to jet to London by way of Amsterdam. CPA will fly you non-stop to Amsterdam from Vancouver – and London is less than an hour away by connection. Only $539* round trip from Victoria.

For not one guilder more, you can visit two great cities. Arrange it with your travel agent or call any Canadian Pacific office.

14-21 day economy round trip including connecting carrier – in effect most months of the year.*

Paradise For Drivers

Ireland is truly the motorist's paradise, especially in the fall. There are more paved roads and fewer cars per square mile than any place in the world.

In the Emerald Isle a driver can really see the country and not just the rear of the car in front of him. Rarely will you see another auto, the roads are that empty.

If you are partial to the special privileges of the motorist who can travel privately with family or friends, and stop when, where and as long as you please, then the 10-day grand tour suggested by the Irish Tourist Board is worth considering. It covers 1,200 miles but includes most of the best known places in Ireland. Also, it can be done more leisurely: just stay longer at any place you find especially appealing.

BEGIN IN DUBLIN

The trip begins in Dublin where a car can be rented easily. Now here are just some of the stops recommended on this grand driving tour:

Youghal, an historic town where Sir Walter Raleigh smoked tobacco for the first time (he was once mayor of the town), and Cork, Ireland's third largest city where an unusual musical request can be made. In addition to chiming on the hour, the Shandon bells are played for visitors who request to hear them.

Of course, Blarney Castle is included. All the world has heard of its Blarney Stone which in exchange for a kiss gives you a gift of eloquence, if you believe the legend.

The suggested grand auto tour of Ireland continues on to places made famous in song, drama and poetry. On the way to Galway, there is Tralee, where William Mulshinock wrote about his famous Irish Rose.

At Adare you will find Ireland untouched by time and barely moved by progress. Here there are no television antennas sprouting from the roof tops of the whitewashed, thatched cottages, which are the same as they were centuries ago.

HISTORIC CITY

If you continue to follow the grand tour itinerary you will reach Limerick, the historic city on the Shannon River which produces the beautiful Irish lace that reaches the shops of the world. At Limerick you can sample the pleasures of royalty by dining at the celebrated Bunratty Castle. The drive will take you past the fascinating, brooding cliffs of Moher which have a sheer rise of 700 feet from the sea and extend for five miles. The cliffs stand like stern, majestic guardians of the water.

At this point there is no turning back. Driving through the nearly empty roads of Ireland you are engulfed in a natural wonderland.

As yet industry has not intruded upon nature's bounty of beauty. The itinerary will take you to Donegal, on to Bridge End where you cross the border into Northern Ireland. You get to Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, where you can stop and leisurely visit its historical landmarks. From Belfast you return to Dublin and this trip is completed.

Ancient Hawaiian Fishing Village Restored

Hawaii's visitors often ask what Hawaii's people do when they look for diversion and a visit to Sea Life Park is high on the Hawaii resident's list of things to do.

In a wonderfully pictureque setting on a gently sloping lava flow, Sea Life Park looks out over Oahu island's famed Makapuu Point encompassing a protected cove surrounded by rugged cliffs.

Always growing, Sea Life Park's newest addition is Kaupo Fishing Village on the actual site of an ancient Hawaiian fishing community. The tall, thatched house of the alii (royalty) is surrounded by replicas of a Hawaiian canoe shed, villagers' homes, a stream and waterfall.

Whaler's Cove attracts youngsters from eight to 80 with its fascinating replica of the square-rigged whaling ship "Essex" which can be boarded from a timber pier. The portholes below deck offer a stunning view of Hawaii's underwater marine life.

Hawaii's spinning porpoises call Whaler's Cove home and perform dizzying leaps and spins for visitors. This is the only place in the world where these friendly, intelligent animals can be seen and they enjoy their performances as much as the audience.

A gradually descending ramp takes the visitor into the world of marine life on a descent into the sea. Glass panels enclose a breathtaking Hawaiian Reef populated by Hawaii's myriad fishes and corals in their natural habitat. Lava grottoes, reef formations and limestone caves afford these graceful marine creatures an opportunity to display their enchanting world.

Sea Life Park has its own Ocean Science Theatre and here porpoises are given the chance they so dearly love to show off their intelligence, humor and physical agility. The all-glass walls of the theatre give the viewer an unobstructed surface and underwater view of this unique mammal's talents in echo-location (sonar).

Just a 30-minute ride from Waikiki Beach along Oahu's majestic seacoast, Sea Life Park offers hours of diversion to the vacationer. It is open daily except Monday from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and porpoise performances are scheduled every 45 minutes. Special evening shows are scheduled through October on Tuesday, Friday and Saturday, and dinner and cocktails may be enjoyed on these evenings at the park's restaurant, The Galley.

Hawaii's unique exhibit of marine life as Sea Life Park opens a new world of natural wonders beneath the surface of the sea

P&O invented the word "posh." Wealthy travelers to India used to be given what P&O called "P.O.S.H." cabins (*P*ort *O*ut, *S*tarboard *H*ome) so that they got the shady side of the ship both ways. Today, "posh" is still a synonym for the best aboard P&O.

A crewman for every 2 passengers. You'll sail aboard one of P&O's great white liners, each fully air-conditioned and staffed with a crewman for every two passengers. Your ship's stores include such delicacies as Scotch salmon and Strasbourg pâté. The wine cellars hold nearly 10,000 bottles. And P&O even provides English nannies to keep the children out of your hair!

Shipboard activities are vast. Among them: swimming, dancing, deck tennis, horse races, bridge, British bingo. You could even tavern hop across the Indian Ocean and visit 5 different taverns on one P&O liner.

See the uncommon part of the world with P&O. Clip the coupon today for free brochures. Then see your travel agent for reservations.

YOUNG TRIO SAW BLAZE START

Teen-Agers Set Mountain Fire

By DON VIPOND

Three youngsters told Saanich police Friday they saw two older boys start the bush fire which burned more than 100 acres on Mount Douglas this week.

The young trio, one boy aged eight and two 10, said they watched while two boys, about 13, lit matches and threw them in the tinder-dry bush.

•

When the fire caught, all five boys tried to put it out but it quickly spread out of control. Police are continuing their search for the two suspects.

Meanwhile, Saanich firemen expect to end their patrols on the smoking mountain tonight.

Rain early today moved in a freakish path, said assistant chief Tom Moss. It fell all around the area but did not touch the mountain itself.

•

But a steadier rain later in the day was dampening the mountain, he added, and a crew pumping water on the southwest corner would finish about 6 p.m.

Scores of volunteers with shovels and wet sacks turned out to help firemen Tuesday night and Wednesday when the blaze swept over one of the district's prime lookout and tourist attraction.

Arthur Mayse

British Columbia's Legislative Assembly has been described as the most exclusive club in the province, but those elected to it don't spend more than a few weeks of their year in the clubhouse. When the session ends, they scatter to their homes in the ridings, where they get on with their less-publicized chores.

To learn more about this side of an MLA's busy life, I tracked Oak Bay Liberal Alan Macfarlane, the serving member for my home riding, from his campaign headquarters to the courthouse, and caught up with him in his law office.

It became apparent as he talked that the range of problems laid on a member's doorstep by the constituents he serves is wide indeed.

The phone call that catches him at his dinner could be from a party convinced that the new hydro installation across the way is playing heck with his television reception. This may or may not be so; but in any case, there's an investigation to be made, and it's going to take legwork and time.

The next message may be from a worried old-age pensioner, or a young husband on Workmen's Compensation, who feels that his case should be reviewed.

Both mean work for the member. There are letters to be written, records to be checked, and interviews arranged.

★

These by-products of success at the polls, Mr. Macfarlane, accepts calmly even when, as sometimes happens, the person who asks his help is not among his constituents.

Once he was called from a neighbor riding by a man whose cottage had been knocked off its foundations by a rush of water. The fault, this householder insisted, was the provincial government's. A park road had been put in; but it conducted water as well as traffic, and prolonged rains turned it into a veritable sluice. The damage to his house ran high. He felt that the government had been niggardly in its settlement.

"So," he concluded, "I thought I'd see what you could do for me."

Allan Macfarlane, for the past six years the only non-government member south of Duncan, went to work on the case, winding up with a fat correspondence file, and a fair settlement.

Time is the ingredient which no member has enough of. The problems, big and little, keep coming.

"But it's a challenge," he said, "and a member likes to think that, as well as helping individuals, he is deepening his knowledge of the riding's needs.

★

I asked the Oak Bay member what he felt to be the chief present need in his riding. He came up with a prompt and vigorous answer.

"It's for a better deal between government and the municipality. We have to make provision for securing necessary services at a fair rate. Otherwise, a lot of our fixed-income residents are in danger of being taxed out of their homes.

"I don't want to overdramatize the situation, but beleieve me, some of those people are being driven to despair."

When Allan Macfarlane gets his teeth in a subject, he paces. There isn't too much pacing-room in his office, but he made the most of it, with a pause to answer the phone that never stays silent for long.

"Each of us," he said when he was clear, "has three sets of taxes—provincial, municipal and federal. That's a big load to carry, and one that calls for maximum co-operation by the three governments in sharing and spending."

We had talked deep into his lunchtime. He had calls to make and campaign helpers to consult. It's a busy life for an MLA at all times, but the pace, at election time, grows hectic.

On Monday evening, though, the men who will occupy next sessions' seats can expect a slight lull. They will spend it anxiously waiting for election returns.

FERRY OFFICERS UNHAPPY

Dispute Still Boiling

The ferry dispute involving masters, mates and engineers remained unsolved today.

Sixteen officers and four representatives of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild met twice with B.C. Ferries general manager Monty Aldous Friday.

One representative later called the meetings "most unsatisfactory."

Robert Cook, national guild president, said "we do not feel too much use came from it."

He said several guild proposals put to management would have to be approved by the government's legal department because it was felt they conflicted with the Civil Service Act.

One of the proposals was for an arbitration procedure of grievances similar to the types of rights available under the Labor Relations Act.

"The government is prepared to sit down and allow discussion on problems but it is not prepared to recognize an organization of the choice of members nor is it prepared to grant the same types of protection other workers have," he said.

Lawyers representing both sides were conferring today and Mr. Cook said meetings of officers at the four ferry terminals are scheduled for Sunday.

WET YOUR LIPS TODAY AS IT'S A DRY MONDAY

British Columbia will be a dry province Monday.

Liquor stores, bars and beer parlors will be closed on election day.

But when the polls close at 8 p.m., the cocktail bars and beer parlors will open. However liquor stores will remain closed all day.

3 YEARS ADDED TO SENTENCE

An escaped convict who stole a car and then wrecked it in a police chase was sentenced to an additional three years in prison today.

"Until you come to your senses you will spend the rest of your life in jail," Magistrate Ostler told George William Plowman, 22.

He sentenced the Winnipeg man to three years for breaking into a Colwood service station and stealing a car and two years for escaping from William Head prison nearly two weeks ago.

The terms will be served concurrently but the three-year term will begin with the expiration of a four-year term Plowman was serving for breaking an entering when he escaped.

Plowman was caught nine days ago after police spotted the stolen car at the Thetis Lake overpass and chased it north on the Trans-Canada Highway at 100 miles an hour.

The stolen car overturned when it tried to squeeze past a tractor-trailer roadblock near Mill Bay.

48 CHARGES IN 40 YEARS

When Gustav Eznel was convicted of theft in central court today it lengthened his record to 48 convictions in 40 years.

"You've been stealing for 40 years?" a disbelieving magistrate asked the defendant before sentencing him to three months in jail for the theft Friday of an alasm clock worth $11.50 from the Hudson Bay Co.

Youth, 17, Killed Hitching Ride

Steps Into Path Of Oncoming Car

A 17-year-old youth, hitch-hiking home to Bamberton from the Cowichan Exhibition, was killed shortly after midnight when struck by a car.

Dead is Thomas Lloyd Dunbar, a Grade 9 student at Mount Prevost School, Duncan.

He was one of a party of three boys who had been waiting for a ride on the Trans-Canada Highway near Shepherd Road.

His companions, Donald McKenzie, Bamberton, and Ronald Malahoff, Mill Bay, were not injured.

McKenzie told police it had just started to rain shortly after midnight and the highway was slippery.

"We had been to the Cowichan Exhibition and got a ride to just near the spot.

STEPPED ONTO PAVEMENT

"There was supposed to be another ride waiting for us and Tom stepped onto the pavement to see if it was our lift and that was when he was hit."

Police said the driver of the car, Preben Skobgord-Anderson, of Cowichan Lake Road, Duncan, had pulled out to pass a southbound vehicle and Dunbar was directly in his path.

Kiwanis ambulance rushed the boy to King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, but he was dead on arrival of multiple injuries.

He is survived by his parents, three brothers and a sister.

Another pedestrian, Robert Bruce, 21, of Wilson Road, Duncan, is in satisfactory condition in hospital following an accident Friday night with a car on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Allenby Road junction.

Bruce suffered a broken leg and face cuts when hit by a passing car.

Police said Bruce was in the southbound traffic lane when hit by the car being driven by James Patrick Ryan, Duncan.

HUCK FINN FOLLOWER GUILTY

A 16-year-old Huckleberry Finn, who fled his boarding school aboard a $1,000 motorboat and sailed to Vancouver, pleaded guilty in central court today to two charges of theft and one of breaking and entering.

He was remanded to Sept. 19 for pre-sentence and psychiatric reports.

David Richards left Cedar College Sept. 1 and stole a 14-foot 25-horsepower boat from the Shore Acres Marina in nearby Mill Bay.

Reaching Victoria Sunday he picked up a nine-year-old friend then broke into the Undersea Gardens at the Oak Bay Marina where he had worked earlier.

WELFARE WINDOWS SMASHED

A man who did not want to be sent back to Ontario by the local welfare office deliberately smashed windows in a social worker's office, court was told Friday.

Robert Mungall, 40, of 23 Menzies had his case remanded to Sept. 19 for sentence when he pleaded guilty to wilful damage under $50.

Social worker Harold Leppky said he told the accused that if he did not return to Ontario, his welfare assistance here would cease.

Mungall then picked up a file box from his desk and used it to smash the office window and a glass in the door.

Earlier he had threatened to commit an offence so he could get room and board in jail.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in central court Friday when convicted of careless driving:

Michael Cox, 1661 Cedar, after he was seen speeding on Douglas and racing on Bay Thursday at speeds up to 45 miles an hour, fined $100 and licence suspended.

Gregory Smith, 946 Selkirk, after he accelerated erratically in the 3800 block Carey Road Wednesday, fined $35.

Liberals Accuse Bonner Of Cheap Electioneering

Attorney-General Robert Bonner was accused by Greater Victoria Liberal candidates of "really cheap electioneering."

The Liberals were annoyed by Mr. Bonner's comments on the federal government's plan to freeze a national medical plan until 1968.

Mr. Bonner said Friday in Vancouver, Liberal B.C. Members of Parliament should resign and provincial leader Ray Perrault should withdraw from the Sept. 12 election.

In a joint statement, the Victoria Liberals said:

"Just as everyone is concerned about rising prices, so every thinking man will back measures designed to hold prices down.

"It is really cheap electioneering on Mr. Bonner's part to sneer at a government in Ottawa who sees its duty clearly and does it."

The statement adds: "We are very sorry medicare has been postponed for one year. Mr. Bonner need not fear.

"This is not a Socred one-year postponment like the Duncan courthouse, the Victoria vocational school, the provincial museum and the new Pat Bay Highway, or the many other projects promised at election times and postponed year after year here in B.C."

The statement is signed by James Campbell, Saanich-The Islands; David Elrix, Esquimalt; Alan Macfarlane, Oak Bay; John W. Porteous and Frank Preston, Victoria.

Part Bottle Found in Car After Accident

Two youths were each fined $35 in central court Friday when they pleaded guilty to being minors in possession of liquor.

Harold Turnham, 19, of 1151 McClure was also fined $100 for failing to stop at a stop sign.

His car collided with another at Ontario and Montreal Streets Aug. 20. Police found a part bottle of rye in the car.

Kenneth Cottini, 18, of 3103 Glasgow was charged after officers found a gallon-bottle of wine in his car when they stopped it Aug. 28.

NAMED "CANADIAN CENTENNIAL" in honor of Canada's birthday, the beautiful British-developed mum, is on exhibition at the Chrysanthemum Society show at Centennial United Church Hall today. Examining the blooms is W. Vanderstoep, a mum enthusiast.

British Gardeners Name Mum for Centennial

A beautiful white chrysanthemum has been developed and named "Canadian Centennial" by British gardeners in honor of Canada's centennial year.

It was sent by air for exhibition at the two-day show of the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society which opened at Centennial United Church Hall Friday.

But the bloom won't be available to gardeners until next year.

"It's a beauty," said A. H. "Andy" Anderson, 904 Island, one of British Columbia's outstanding mum growers. "I would say it's the best white incurve."

The show, which features early flowering chrysanthemums and dahlias, is open until nine tonight.

Geoff Holyhead won the Woodward's Perpetual Trophy for the highest aggregate in the show, as well as the Roy Hebden Trophy and MCS Silver Medal for the highest aggregate in mums.

Victoria's new ball season began with a flourish, Friday evening with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police's regimental ball held in the gymnasium of the Work Point Barracks. Among those in the receiving line were, left to right, Supt. and Mrs. G. R. Engel, Assistant Commissioner and Mrs. F. S. Spalding and Supt. and Mrs. E. A. Pennock.

A pleated bandeau circled the empire waistline of the gown and the bodice featured accents of tiny pearl droplets. A tiered coronet of seed pearls and crystals held her hand-rolled veil of silk illusion net. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink delight roses and ivy.

Pink and white gladioli were at the altar of St. Aidan's United Church when Rev. A. G. MacLeod heard marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. DEAR ABBY . . .

Some People Are Plain Ignorant

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My mother was Jewish. My father was not. I married a Gentile, and I suppose there are people who do not know my background although I have never tried to hide it.

To get to the point: Recently I was a guest at a cocktail party in the home of some very prominent and respected gentile people. Another guest started making small talk with me, and in casual conversation he made some very degrading remarks about "the Jews." I remained silent, but of course I was hurt.

Now I am wondering if perhaps I should have said something. And if so, what?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Bigotry and bad manners are boorish, whether perpetrated on one who is half-Jewish or 99.44 per cent Chippewa. Unless one would reveal his own insecurity, the best response is sincere (and silent) pity rather than uttered (and futile) censure. You cannot hope to educate a bigot with one short lecture at a cocktail party.

DEAR ABBY: This concerns my husband who I shall call "Stupid" because that's what he is. Stupid met a married woman who is nuts about the zodiac horoscope and he is up to his ears in astrology. She asked him when his birthday was and when mine was, and then she told him that he should be married to a Scorpio (that's what she is) not a Virgo, (that's what I am) if he wanted a long life and a romantic one.

Stupid won't make any decisions or go on a trip or anything unless he asks his zodiac lady first. He believes everything she tells him. This woman is about to break up my home. What should I do?

STUPID'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Married women who put stars in the eyes of married men are buying a one-way ticket to outer space. Tell Stupid to come down to earth and knock off the foolishness.

DEAR ABBY: I am a very affectionate guy who married what I thought was a very affectionate girl, but boy, how she's changed.

At first she started making excuses like, "You'll muss my hair." Then it was, "I'm tired." Now it's come to the point where she says she doesn't care for "all that kid stuff."

I am 30 and she is 28. I made out better when I was single. Any advice?

MARRIAGE ON THE ROCKS

DEAR MARRIAGE: Level with her. Ask her why the big freeze. Perhaps you are less lovable now than you used to be. If all that has changed is your wife's attitude, get to the bottom of that. When a marriage goes on the rocks, the rocks are usually in the mattress.

DEAR ABBY: What would you say about parents who punish their children by depriving them of their music lessons? My husband is a guitar teacher and his students love to take lessons. We often get calls from parents who tell us that Johnny can't take his lesson this week because he has misbehaved. Don't people realize that this is our livelihood? TEACHER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I would hope that children are given music lessons not so much to provide a livelihood for teachers, but to avail the child of a musical education.

Parents should find another way to "punish" their "little Johnny" and give him guitar lessons with no strings attached.

Viva Venezia! . . .

A long-awaited shipment of Venetian glass has just arrived at Sydney Reynold's . . . High time, too . . . because the way our American visitors have been snapping up the previous lot, there wasn't too much left for us Victorians! . . . We've told you before about these Venetian crystal liqueur sets . . . red, green, blue or smoke glass, lavish with gold and decorated with raised painted flowers . . . which are so very attractive yet quite inexpensive . . . This time something new has been added . . . liqueur sets of satiny glass with an etched design in white enamel . . . There are also vases, huge goblets, small dishes and powder boxes in this design . . . as well as fascinating musical table bells (Take note, you people lucky enough to have maids) . . . We also spied some new Bohemian crystal . . . a full suite of air-twist stemware in pistachio (sort of a greenish amber color) . . . Everything from liqueur glasses to water goblets . . . (the latter priced at just $3.75 each, so this gives you some idea) . . . There are some gorgeous free form vases in heavy amber glass . . . and some new Portuguese wine sets of green, amber and a purply smoke glass which we consider very lovely . . . Sydney Reynolds Limited, 801 Government St., EV 3-3931.

Manufacturers are beginning to give the lowly sweatshirt some style. The newest look is a shirt with king-sized pockets, both front and back. It's finished with ribbed trim at collar, sleeves and tail. Originally made for men, but going over big with women in the U.S.

New coats for cooler days . . .

We get a curious satisfaction out of buying a new overcoat in the fall . . . more so than at any other time of year . . . probably because Wilson's fall and winter coats are always so tempting . . . Dressy, sporty, casual or elegant . . . they're always just right for the occasion! . . . We really flipped over one we saw last week . . . the most beautiful shade of cornflower blue in a wool hopsacking weave . . . with the new "pup tent" silhouette . . . narrow at the top . . . gradually widening out to the hemline where a broad stiffened interfacing holds it out with a flair . . . set-in sleeves, and flap pockets set low almost at the thighs . . . You should be on the tall side to do justice to its dashing lines . . . A coat with a jaunty air is a Scotch heather tweed . . . big brown and white checks with a wrapover front and polo tie belt . . . snuggly fox collar . . . A good heavy walking suit is nice to have in one's wardrobe too, come the chilly days of Autumn . . . There's a double-breasted brown one with opossum collar . . . jacket extending well down over the hips . . . Another lighter-weight suit is a crimson, brown and black knit, with black leather buttons . . . belted low around the hips . . . Three-quarter length jacket . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Purple emerged as the fashionable color of the Italian collections. The range was from mauve to royal, but a vibrant violet shade was the favorite.

H of G has revolutionary new machine . . .

It's just wonderful that's all! . . . We're not usually given to extravagent statements . . . but that new machine at House of Glamour which speeds up hair coloring to a fraction of normal time . . . is almost too good to be true! . . . Being a fairly busy person and jealous of our time, you'll appreciate how we felt when we had shampoo, color, set and comb-out . . . all in the space of an hour and a quarter . . . instead of the 2½ to 3 hours we usually spent on the days we had a color job done! . . . In case you're wondering, this machine looks much like a hair dryer . . . it has ultra-violet lights inside, which are reflected on to a highly polished surface . . . and this in some mysterious way sets hair color in about one-tenth the normal time . . . There's no heat that you can feel . . . no noise . . . you wouldn't know it was on . . . and the products and method of applying color etc. are absolutely unchanged . . . End results are just the same . . . only difference is you get them sooner . . . Time is precious to all of us . . . and much and all as we enjoy our sessions at H of G . . . it's really wonderful to get our beautifying over with fast . . . Why don't you try it too at the salon which excels in hair coloring . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

The newest Italian rival to the Palazzo pyjama is the Caftan, the flowing robe with wide sleeves and collarless V-neckline worn by men in the middle East. In contrast to the Caftan, the Palazzo pyjamas have much less flowing fullness.

A new concept in trans-Atlantic travel . . .

There are two kinds of people planning on going to Europe in 1967 . . . those whose time is limited and who must cram as much as possible into a definite period . . . and those with leisure and a distaste for hurry . . . who like to savor every day to the full . . . Naturally, those in the former category should go by air . . . which, of course, is just fine . . . But if you belong in the second category, do consider travelling at least one way by ship . . . it's the greatest, in our book! . . . Paulin's were telling us last week about the new concept in trans-Atlantic travel . . . taking a more southerly route via Bermuda so as to make the crossing more of a cruise instead of just a route from here to there . . . Cunard is talking of doing this . . . and Holland-America Line has already started . . . Next May 25 the Stattendam will sail from New York to Rotterdam via Bermuda, Madeira, Lisbon, Vigo, Guernsey and London . . . a 16-day crossing which is a holiday cruise in itself and will put you in fine shape to start enjoying your tour of Europe . . . If this sounds good to you, talk to Paulin's . . . they can book you on the Stattendam now . . . or tell you all about other exciting trans-Atlantic travel possibilities! . . . George Paulin Travel Service, 1006 Government St., 382-9168.

Fall's slim neat ensembles call for extra attention to the state of the figure. It's harder to hide a little waistline roll or an extra inch on the hips than has been the case under loose-fitting shifts.

Freshen up for fall . . .

One thing we do right after Labour Day every year is take every blessed thing out of our clothes closet . . . try on all the clothes we haven't worn since last spring . . . then decide what still looks good . . . what needs repairing, shortening, etc. . . . what to give to Goodwill . . . Next we pick up the phone to Paisley Cleaners and have them come get practically everything for a good cleaning and rejuvenating . . . as well as doing those minor alterations and repair jobs we never seem to have time to tackle ourselves . . . That way we start off the new season with a spic and span wardrobe in perfect condition . . . It's a system we heartily recommend . . . just as we unreservedly recommend Paisley for the cleaning end of it . . . Your clothes come back from Paisley simply immaculate . . . expertly pressed . . . and, in the case of knits and sweaters, properly blocked to regain their pristine smartness . . . Paisley's really know and understand good clothes . . . treat them with the respect they deserve . . . so you'll never need have a moment's anxiety about the cleaning outcome . . . This applies equally to elaborate evening gowns . . . beaded and sequined sweaters . . . fragile things of all sorts, as well as to your cashmeres, silks and woolens . . . We got a pre-view just before Labour Day . . . of the new imported brocades and velvets . . . some of which were still in their crates in the stockroom, but are undoubtedly on full view now . . . The quilted brocades . . . white, black, Kelly green . . . are most effective . . . and there's a lovely dark green brocade covered with gold roses . . . these are all $7 a yard . . . others are priced from $5.98 to $15.98 . . . We saw a gorgeous iridescent sequin cloth which would make lovely tops or shells for after-five outfits . . . A new season demands a smart new chapeau and Mrs. Irving Snider is deciding on a high rising globe of gleaming felt. IN STEP WITH STYLE

Look at Fashions in Vancouver

Last week I spent a couple of fashion-filled days in Vancouver and found fall 1966 in full swing.

The main purpose of the trip was to commentate the two Make-a-Hat contests which take place each year in the building at National Exhibition.

Damaske

When Mrs. H. H. Steen, chairman of all women's events, says "Go," the contestants choose supplies from well-stocked tables and within one-half hour two well-qualified judges choose the winning chapeaux. The home economics teachers of Vancouver are responsible for purchasing all the wonderful supplies. They feel that the contest stimulates an interest in millinery which is an important part of the total fashion picture.

Following the judging, all the contestants model their creations which, by the way, they keep. It is a fun show and it is remarkable to watch each hat take shape before your eyes.

I saw the big PNE fashion show "Accent on Fashion" twice, once from the audience and once from the dressing room. I get a bang out of seeing a show this way—you get to see all the tricks of the trade.

Simpson-Sears sponsored the fast-moving colorful show and it gave a well-rounded picture of fall and winter fashions for the average income family.

The pant suit was shown in several smart versions and fall's favorite, the walking suit, was worn by each model from the teen-ager to the matron.

Chiffon, the most feminine of fabrics, stole top honors in the late-day fashions. The fall fashion show is always a great attraction at the PNE — every seat was filled and people were standing four deep.

My next fashion jaunt was quite different and most interesting. I visited Emmanuel Rechter, a slender Italian, in his combined shop and factory on Seymour Street.

Slims, slacks or pants; whatever you call them they are the most important thing in this man's life. Mr. Rechter, or Don Manuel, as he likes to be called, studied designing and cutting in Milan and Zurich. The difficulties of fitting jodpurs and ski pants led him to specialize in every type of trousers a woman would ever need.

He keeps 1,500 semi-finished pairs of pants in stock at all times, any pair of which can be fitted and finished while the customer waits. Bolts of fabric are piled high and if you are willing to wait for three or four hours your slacks can be made from scratch. "Pantalones" (which means slacks in Spanish) is Mr. Rechter's signature and when he puts this label to a pair of slacks they are guaranteed to be a perfect fit.

Pants by mail order are an important part of this specialized business. A catalogue contains 37 different styles, 16 figure variations, prices, fabrics and self-measurement forms. Pantalones find their well-tailored way to the remotest spots in B.C.

My last fashion foray enabled me to meet a most interesting husband and wife fashion team. The attractive show windows of the Granville Street store displayed the new fall millinery creations of Mr. John, Schiaparelli, Ellen Faith, Eve-Marie and many more well-known designers.

A conventional millinery shop? Not by a long shot—Grace and Morris Sayles will beg, buy or make any type of hat that a customer requires.

The street floor is attractively decorated in the conventional way but the two upper floors are a hat-maker's paradise. Gleaming fur pelts surround Morris Sayles' working area. He chooses the skins for his fur hats with great care and handles them with a confidence born of many years' experience.

Grace Sayles, tall, elegant with her fair hair piled high on her head is herself, a marvellous model for her millinery creations. Grace manipulates the beautiful Irish and Italian beaver hoods with the hands of an expert. Nothing is impossible and Grace never says no to a customer. She copies magazine pictures, amateur sketches and creates designs for those women who are not quite certain what they want. Every spare moment, however, is taken up by her particular forte, which is headcovering for wedding party members. Grace has created thousands of dainty headdresses for brides and attendants.

The motto of this dynamic couple is "We can supply anything you wear on your head."

Be Most Popular Mom In Your Neighborhood

By Penny Saver

The pride of most kitchens, in the eyes of youngsters, is the cookie jar that's never without sugary confections. You can always pick the Mom with the most ample cookie jar, because that is the kitchen where most of the neighborhood youngsters gather after school or during play-time breaks. The most popular Mom in our neighborhood, by these standards, is the one who makes dozens of cookies and decorates them with unique designs, sugar, nuts and fruit.

This charming neighbor uses cookie presses to form patterns on all of her cookies. With designs of pine cones, cherries and dogwood, these presses sell for 59 cents each. They are handmade in Victoria, and each design is original and different. Impress tea-time guests with these cookie impressions. They're easy to use and the results are fun to eat.

With the fall harvest of apples, most housewives are no doubt busy making apple sauce and many other recipes calling for the fruit. Try freezing peeled apple wedges so that fresh apple pies can star your winter menu.

With the device that I found, you can store bushels of wedges in your freezer in one afternoon's work. It's an apple corer and wedger combined. Peel the fruit first, then fit this chromium-plated instrument over the apple. Press down, and the apple is cored and divided into eight uniform wedges. This kitchen aid sells for $1.25 in one shop.

Thinking of uniformity when it comes to storing foods in your freezer, I found an item that will make perfect-sized hamburger patties every time. It's a hamburger mold that can form two different thicknesses of hamburgers. The metal device is priced at 95 cents.

Remember Penny's number is 382-3131. Give her a call if you want to know where she found these items.

BLONDES FAVOR BLUE

TORONTO (CP)—Blue is the color for blondes, fashion experts say. So if you're blonde by nature or inclination and born in September, you're double sapphire-prone.

Wear a cornflower blue sapphire and confound the popular saying that blondes are dumb. For sapphires were held by the ancients to be stones of wisdom. They were said to impart the attributes to clear thinking to their September-born wearers.

One September-born woman who fits into this clear-thinking category was Queen Elizabeth I. Another is Greta Garbo.

CEREMONY IN ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

WILL MAKE HOME IN NANAIMO

LAMBOURNE-JONES WEDDING HELD IN CITY TODAY

Following a honeymoon trip to Los Angeles and San Francisco, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Eugene Lambourne will make their home in Nanaimo.

The bride, the former Rhoda Louise Jones, is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Farmer, 1664 Burton Avenue, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lambourne, 2526 Victor Street.

Baskets of white and gold chrysanthemums were at the altar of St. Patrick's Church this afternoon, for the service at which Fr. A. E. Leonard officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin, trimmed with lace. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a scoop neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Jewelry accents were a gold cross and the groom's gift of pearl earrings. Her tiered veil misted from a seed pearl headpiece and she carried yellow gladioli and white heather in her cascade bouquet.

Gold crystal charm formed the gowns worn by matron of honor Mrs. J. R. Oliver, and bridesmaid Miss Julie Taylor. The bride's cousin, little Heather McIntosh was flower girl in a similar outfit, styled with a bodice hand-smocked in yellow, beige, green and blue.

The senior attendants wore self-fabric rose headpieces, edged with net, and the flower girl had a wreath of chrysantremums. All carried bouquets of bronze chrysanthemums.

Donald Lambourne was best man for his brother. Ushering the guests to pews marked with white and gold daisies and white ribbon were David Jones, the bride's brother, and the groom's uncle, Gerald Gallant.

THREE-TIER CAKE

The bride's aunt made and decorated the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in St. Alban's Church Hall. Alexander MacCallam proposed the toast to his great-niece.

Travelling from out-of-town for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Jones of New Westminster, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Nelson and G. Gallant, of Vancouver.

For travelling on honeymoon, the bride donned a cream dress, which she topped with a gold and white wool coat. Her accessories were in gold and cream tones, and her corsage was of yellow gladioli and white heather.

Bride Wears Heirloom Necklace As a 'Something Old' Talisman

An heirloom necklace of gold and pearls, belonging to the groom's mother, fulfilled the tradition of "something old" for Pamela Joan Wintrup this afternoon when she became the bride of Sub-Lt. Richard John Bonnell, RCN.

The necklace was the only jewelry accent to the bride's A-line gown of norganza. A full train swept back from a bridal rose at the empire waistline and the bodice featured belled sleeves trimmed with small organza flowers. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted to her shoulders from a petalled headpiece of peau de faille. She carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis and ivy.

Arrangements of white dahlias and gladioli were at the altar of Christ Church Cathedral when Dean Brian Whitlow heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Wintrup, San Francisco, and Mr. Wintrup, Winnipeg, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Bonnell, 398 Fraser Street.

Organist Richard Proudman played Purcell's "Trumpet Air" as the bride entered the church on the arm of her grandfather, George Bond. Bill Dyson sang "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring" during the signing of the register.

Empire-line gowns of soft gold crystal charm over taffeta were worn by matron of honor Mrs. G. Taylor and bridesmaid Miss Janet Eckersley. Their wedding ring headpieces were en tone and they carried bouquets of copper-toned chrysanthemums.

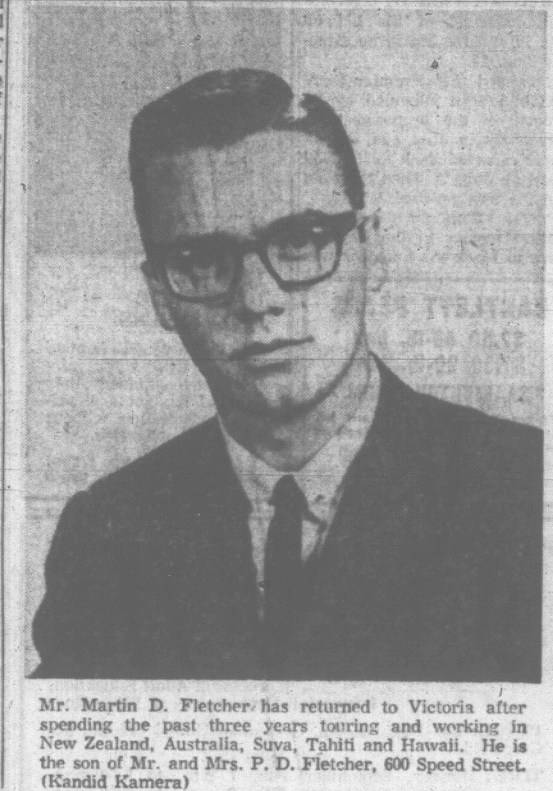
Little Jillyan Shipley, the groom's niece, was in a frock of apple green crystal charm over taffeta, with a matching headpiece. She carried a basket of bronze shasta daisies.

Sub-Lt. D. J. McClean was best man and ushering guests were Sub-Lt. D. S. Mitchell and Sub-Lt. W. J. Rupka.

The groom's brother, A. M. Donnell, proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following in the wardroom at Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt. A small vase of stephanotis topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table.

The couple will make their home at 1661 Fell Street, following a honeymoon trip to the Okanagan and Harrison Hot Springs. For travelling, the new Mrs. Bonnell chose a camel-hair suit, which she complemented with a suede cap and cobra-skin accessories. Her corsage was of bronze chrysanthemums.

Out-of-town guests attending included the bride's mother and Mr. Ted Tyrrell of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Taylor and Miss Meta Russell of Vancouver.



Mr. Martin D. Fletcher has returned to Victoria after spending the past three years touring and working in New Zealand, Australia, Suva, Tahiti and Hawaii. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Fletcher, 600 Speed Street. (Kandid Kamera)

Honor in recognition of academic achievement has come to Mrs. Dewan (Marilyn) Callahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKay, 3275 Norfolk Road. Mrs. Callahan has been awarded a $2,000 scholarship under the national welfare grants program. The Victoria scholar is working toward her master degree in social work at the University of British Columbia. (Atlas Studios)

PORTLAND VOWS

Darwin McBratney Married In Oregon Church Service

A wedding of interest to many in Victoria took place this afternoon in Holy Cross Catholic Church, Portland, Ore., when Dorothy Marie Crum became the bride of Darwin Ford McBratney.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Crum of Portland. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. T. Ford McBratney, 217 Government Street, Victoria.

The color theme of the wedding, sea-spray green and ivory, was carried out in the floral arrangements decorating the church for the service at which Fr. William Vaughters officiated.

IVORY ORGANZA

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory-toned organza, enhanced with accents of re-embroidered lace. Her ivory veil misted to elbow-length from a pillbox headpiece, covered with lily of the valley. As jewelry, she wore a gold cross and chain that had been worn by her mother at her wedding.

The bride's three attendants dressed alike in empire-line gowns of sea-spray green sheer crepe over taffeta. Accenting the ensembles were petalled organza headpieces, trimmed with tulle en tone, and bouquets of small chrysanthemums.

Maid of honor was Miss Gretchen M. Ludwig, Portland; bridesmatron was Mrs. Richard Crum, Aloha, Ore., and bridesmaid, Miss Cheryl McBratney, Victoria.

Delford Balch, Beaver, Ore., was best man and ushering the guests to their pews were Richard A. Crum, Aloha, Ore., and Garry Allen, Victoria.

A reception followed in the Terrace Room of the University of Portland.

An A-line semi-fitted dress in spruce green tones was the choice of the new Mrs. McBratney for travelling on honeymoon to Reno, Nev. Her accessories were bone.

The couple will be making their home in Portland.

Mind Illness Record Linked To Assassin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dimitri Tsafendas, possibly the same man who assassinated Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa, has a record of mental illness and immigration troubles in the United States, which he first entered by crossing the Canadian border from St. Stephen, N.B.

The immigration service said it has provided to the state department, for relay to the South African government, a lengthy reord on Dimitrios Tsafendakis, who also spelled his name Dimitri Tsafendas and several other ways.

The records show the man visited the United States at least seven times from 1942 to 1947 as a merchant seaman during and just after the Second World War. He was in hospital in Boston and in Charleston, S.C.

He was described as a native of Portuguese Mozambique, 46 years of age. Tsafendakis is listed in immigration records as born Jan. 14, 1918, in Lourenco Marques, Mozambique.

DEPORTED THREE TIMES

He was deported on three occasions and four other times he was permitted to ship out as a merchant seaman, immigration records show.

Tsafendakis first entered the the United States at Calais, Me., Dec. 9, 1942, by walking across the ice of the St. Croix River from St. Stephen, N.B. He was picked up by immigration officials for illegal entry two days later.

Admitted to Boston Psychopathic Hospital April 3, 1943, he was transferred later to the Metropolitan State Hospital at Waltham, Mass., where he remained until June 24, 1943. Again, on March 18, 1946, he was taken to the Boston hospital and was transferred to Grafton State Hospital, where he remained until July 31, 1947. He was deported for the last time in September, 1947.

In September, 1944, he had been treated at Roper Hospital, Charleston, S.C., and the immigration board ordered him excluded from the country on mental grounds. He nevertheless was able to return several times as a merchant seaman before his hospital treatment and final deportation.

STILL BEHIND BARS in Atlanta, Ga., is "black power" advocate Stokely Carmichael. Carmichael was arrested Thursday night on a charge of inciting a riot by 1,000 Negroes. He said Friday he would remain in jail as a "political prisoner" while lawyers ask a federal court to prevent local authorities from prosecuting him.

OVER LETTER

FBI Comes Calling In Canada

SARNIA (CP)—Mrs. E. L. McKegney of Sarnia said Friday she was questioned for an hour by a United States secret service agent Aug. 26, a month after she wrote a letter to President Johnson opposing U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Police Chief James Torrance confirmed that an agent from Detroit, L. S. Bates, had been accompanied by a city policeman when he questioned Mrs. McKegney.

RCMP Sgt. J. T. Fraser said Bates had not talked to the RCMP.

Chief Torrance said it was "quite in order" for his men to co-operate with U.S. agents who want to question Sarnia residents.

Mrs. McKegney said Bates asked questions about her background, her weight and age, her political leanings, and whether she had ever been in a hospital.

THREAT MISSIVE

She said he told her that her letter constituted a "threat" against the life of the president.

Mrs. McKegney said she had not kept a copy of the letter, but could not recall that it contained any threats.

Mrs. McKegney is a member of the Sarnia Committee to End the War in Viet Nam, formed several months ago.

Nova Scotia Blocks Phone Takeover Bid

HALIFAX (CP)—A bill severely limiting the voting rights of shareholders of Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., received third and final reading in the Nova Scotia legislature this morning and was sent to the lieutenant-governor for Royal Assent.

Passage of the bill blocked a takeover bid of Maritime by Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, but the final battle could be fought in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Progressive Conservative Premier Robert Stanfield introduced the bill at a special session of the legislature Friday to limit the voting powers of shareholders in M. T. and T. and thus prevent any individual group or company from gaining control of the Nova Scotia utility.

The legislation would limit a person, group or company with more than 1,000 shares in Maritime to 1,000 votes at meetings of the utility. Proxy voting would not be affected.

The bill would also obligate shareholders to state their ownership.

Share transfers would also be recorded. Another section states that 45 days' notice will be required for a special meeting, instead of the present 10 days.

QUESTIONS LEGALITY

Gordon Cooper, counsel for Bell, told the committee meeting Friday night there may be a "serious constitutional question with respect to the validity of this legislation."

He added that it was too early yet to have a definite opinion as to whether or not there is a constitutional question.

If the constitutionality of the legislation was challenged it would go before the Supreme Court of Canada, which would then decide whether or not the subject matter fell within the jurisdiction of the province.

James A. Hobbs, an executive vice-president of Bell and a director of both Maritime and New Brunswick Telegraph and Telephone Co., appeared before the committee on Bell's behalf.

He said the bill will ease the fears of the Montreal-based company that foreign interests would attempt to take over the Maritime utilities, "but only for the time being."

He added that Bell viewed with considerable concern and misgiving what it considers the deprivation of its right to vote shares it has held for some years—Bell held six per cent of the outstanding common stock of Maritime before the takeover bid—and also of its right to vote shares acquired more recently.

VOICES CONCERN

Mr. Hobbs said Bell was motivated in the takeover bid solely out of concern that the Maritime companies might fall into the hands of foreign interests.

He named three companies—Continental Telephone Co., General Telephone and Electronics which operates in Canada as Anglo-Canadian Telephone, and International Telephone and Telegraph.

All three are United States companies and the first two have figured in recent takeover bids in Ontario and Quebec, Mr. Hobbs said.

Under questioning, the Bell vice-president said his company reached a decision to make the takeover bids in July. New Brunswick Tel and Tel directors were informed of the bid on Aug. 17 and the Maritime directors Aug. 18.

He added that Premier Stanfield had been informed by "a director of the proposed takeover early in July and the director reported back to the Bell board on July 27 when the final decision was reached."

Premier Stanfield told the legislature earlier in the day the move to block the takeover was prompted by fears of a conflict of interest because Bell also owned Northern Electric Co., which manufactures telephone equipment.

Bell's takeover application comes up before the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa Monday and Nova Scotia will be represented at the hearing.

Waldo Predicts Sweep of Island

Social Credit candidates will sweep Vancouver Island with the exception of one seat, Victoria city candidate Waldo Skillings predicted Friday night.

The one seat the Socreds can't capture is Cowichan-Malahat, the riding of New Democratic Pary leader Robert Strachan, Mr. Skillings told a meeting of 18 persons in Oaklands Elementary School.

He forecast that Alan Macfarlane, the Liberal candidate for Oak Bay, would lose his seat to Socred Dr. Charles Ennals.

"People don't need to feel sorry for the incumbent Oak Bay member," Mr. Skilling said. "He will go back into private practice and be elevated to a judgeship in a few years."

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, also running as Socred candidate for Victoria city, predicted his party would capture 45 out of the 55 seats.

Mr. Chant said the federal government would not have had to postpone its medicare plan if it had followed British Columbia' example of eliminating net debt.

He promised that Greater Victoria will soon have a vocational training school.

"When we started the Victoria Law Courts building, our critics said it would never be anything more than a hole in the ground but we did it in about four years."

Mr. Skillings said B.C. needs a forceful government because there are bound to be "trying times ahead."

"There is nothing wrong with having a large budgetary reserve. The people should applaud the government because no money is being wasted.

"For example, if I give my wife the housekeeping money and she goes and blows it all in one week, my sons and I have to eat hamburger for the rest of the month.

"You can't run a home or government that way."

Court Ruling Comment Cut From Papers

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Editorial comment on Friday's high court ruling here that the 1965 Rhodesian constitution and the government of Ian Smith were not lawful was censored from both Rhodesian daily newspapers today.

The newspapers—the Rhodesia Herald here and The Chronicle in Bulawayo—carried splash reports of the judgment.

Their editorial columns inside were completely blank to indicate where comment had been censored.

The high court judgment had said that although the regime of Smith was illegal, it was nonetheless the only effective government in Rhodesia

Poland Bars Graham

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says he'll make a private trip to Scotland this month instead of a speaking visit to Poland because the Polish government denied him a visa. Graham's office announced that the Polish embassy in Washington told the evangelist that now is not an appropriate time for a visit.

New UC Moderator Could Spark More Controversy

By NEIL LOUTTIT

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The principal of United College in Winnipeg, involved in a controversy seven years ago in which his resignation was demanded, today finds himself in a position that could generate more controversy.

Rt. Rev. Wilfred C. Lockhart, 59, was elected moderator of the United Church of Canada at the opening Wednesday night of the church's 22nd general council. He is the third moderator from Winnipeg.

The 382 voting delegates chose Dr. Lockhart from among five nominees to head Canada's largest Protestant denomination. He succeeds Very Rev. Ernest M. Howse of Toronto who retires after a two-year term.

The other nominees were Rev. Frank L. Myers, Regina; Rev. D. Douglas Smith, Montreal; Rev. George A. Wishart, Windsor, Ont.; Rev. E. Melville Atkin, Hamilton, and Rev. Elias Andrews, Kingston.

Dr. Lockhart was the centre of controversy at United College after he acquired a letter written by Prof. Harry Crowe to another professor.

He was accused by some of his faculty of infringing on academic freedom. He resigned and later withdrew his resignation.

The controversy resulted in several staff resignations, including that of Prof. Crowe.

EROSION IS PROBLEM

In his acceptance speech, Dr. Lockhart said erosion of Christian principles in the modern world is the greatest problem facing Christianity.

At a news conference following his election, he described the principles of union with the Anglican Church—a report of the first joint Anglican-United committee on the union of the two faiths—as "only the beginning."

Commissioners to the general council will vote on the principles later this week. The Anglican Church approved them last year.

"We must go on to a joint Anglican - United commission," Dr. Lockhart said. "But we must take our time to ensure there are no fringes, we must not leave anybody out on the flanks."

He said impatience would be the wrong attitude but hoped the principles would be accepted by the United Church at this council.

He wants the final decision on union to come from church councils rather than individual members of congregations.

Dr. Lockhart also spoke on Canada's divorce laws and the drop-out rate of ministers. He said divorce should include grounds other than adultery and suggested that demands placed on modern-day ministers likely is a large factor in determining the drop-out rate.

HAS DOUBTS

"Ministers are expected to be competent preachers, teachers and community leaders. I doubt if the Archangel Gabriel could qualify."

Born in Dundalk, Ont., Dr. Lockhart, former minister at St. Luke and Kingsway-Lambton churches in Toronto, has been involved in ecumenical work since 1938.

He was named principal of United College in 1955.

SPECIAL SERVICES are planned Sunday at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church to mark the congregation's 100th year.

Landmark Church Marks Centenary

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, housed in one of Victoria's oldest downtown landmarks, is 100 years old.

The venerable red brick building at the corner of Douglas and Broughton Streets figures prominently in many early prints of the city — long before modern streamlined buildings sprang up around it.

The church was opened on Jan. 11, 1890. But the history of its congregation goes back to Sept. 5, 1866, when a group of Presbyterians met in the Mechanics' Institute on Yates Street.

Centennial celebrations begin with special services in the church Sunday. A public meeting will be held in the auditorium Tuesday at 8 p.m. when the address will be given by provincial archivist Willard Ireland.

EARLY MEMBERS

Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George Pearkes will attend the morning service on Sunday, Sept. 18, and there will be a congregational banquet in the Kirk Hall Tuesday, Sept. 20, at which some 33 long-term members will be honored.

They include: William Angus, Mrs. R. Armstrong, Mrs. S. Ball, Mrs. W. T. M. Barrett, Mrs. E. W. Boak, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Burnett, Miss Margaret Clay, Miss Mary Clay, Mr. and Mrs. David Scott, Mrs. J. W. Cameron, Miss Helen Cruickshank, Miss Alice Aldridge.

Mrs. P. H. Elliott, Mrs. J.G. Florence, Miss Bertha Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Green, Mrs. R. W. Cornall, Mrs. S. E. Heald, Mrs. A. Hood, Mrs. F. Moore, Mrs. J. Mossop, Mrs. E. Moyes, Mrs. P. S. Ormison, Miss Jean Roberts, Miss Kathlee Roberts, Mrs. David Reid, Mrs. F. B. Shaver, Miss Margaret Sanson, Mrs. E. M. Whyte, Mrs. H. H. Wilson.

Centennial services will end Sunday, Sept. 25, with the visit of Rev. G. D. Johnston, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and the dedication of three stained-glass windows.

Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, now in his 29th year as minister of St. Andrew's, will conduct a centennial communion service Sunday at 11 a.m. and in the evening will raise the challenging question Shall We Continue?

Dr. McLEAN
. . . liberal

First minister of St. Andrew's was Rev. Thomas Somerville, who came here in 1866 as a representative of the Church of Scotland.

ELEVEN YEARS

Rev. Simon McGregor of West Branch, N.S., took over from Mr. Somerville in 1870 and served the church for 11 years. He was succeeded by Rev. Robert Stephen, who was pastor until 1887.

That year St. Andrew's withdrew from the Church of Scotland and united with the Presbyterian Church of Canada. Rev. P. McFarlane McLeod was called from Toronto and inducted as pastor on March 7, 1888.

It was during his pastorate that the present church was built at the corner of Douglas and Broughton. Mr. McLeod was famed for his powerful sermons and the church was crowded at every service.

In 1894, Rev. Leslie Clay from Moose Jaw, Sask., took over the ministry and in 1906 the last dollar owed on the church building was paid off.

LAST DOLLAR

St. Andrew's has always been independent. When the Presbyterian Church in Canada united with the Methodist and Congregational churches in 1925, St. Andrew's voted to remain Presbyterian.

"We're still Presbyterian, but with a liberal outlook towards all Christian churches," says Dr. McLean, a former city councillor who has been with St. Andrew's since 1938.

New Concept Of Leadership

A new concept of Christian leadership is under discussion this weekend at the Anglican church of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay.

The occasion is an inter-church training institute sponsored by the Greater Victoria Council of Churches through its committee on evangelism and by the Anglican Board of Religious Education.

"Our chief aim is to help people plan, lead and take part in group discussions within their own churches," says Rev. H. Gordon Walker, chairman of the committee on evangelism.

The training institute opened Friday evening, and continues today and Sunday afternoon.

"Out of this involvement came a remarkable set of prophecies, some fulfilled and some yet unfulfilled. Our studies of his life and prophecies will be from a practical and relevant viewpoint."

'Priests Hit Bv Wave Of Doubt'

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (Reuters)—Pope Paul said Friday a wave of doubt, unease and disquiet has affected many Roman Catholic priests since the recent Vatican ecumenical council.

He said it is necessary to prevent the ferment of ideas and novelties brought by the council from leading to an arbitrary instability of thought and lack of cohesion inside the church.

Speaking to a group of Italian priests in an audience at his summer residence here, the Pope said:

"It seems to us most important that the spirit of our church should find again its lucidity and its balance.

"Nobody is unaware that a wave of doubt, unease, and disquiet has poured into the souls of many priests, often giving rise to a most varied, complex and disordered set of problems, respected habits of piety and ecclesiastical custom, till yesterday held deservedly in honor."

Vatican observers noted that it was the second time this week he has upbraided a section of the church—which he has not identified—for a loss of faith and a greater worldliness.

Wednesday, he told a general audience that some people in the Roman Catholic Church are casting doubts about the eternal truths of the faith. Some perhaps have the desire of opening up toward the non-Roman Catholic world, he said.

GOSPEL singing in the modern manner will be demonstrated by Choraliers Quartet in the Apostolic Church, Blanshard and Queens, this Sunday at 11 a.m. The Choraliers have been promoting gospel concerts in Vancouver since early 1962 and have appeared often on TV and radio. "They travel widely in Canada and the United States and sing in churches of all denominations," says Rev. Alan McLean, minister of the Alliance Church.

'Conference Must Be Frank In Talking Church Union'

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury, urged the United Church of Canada to state "fully and frankly" its reservations about union with the Anglican Church of Canada.

He said it is important for both churches to discuss openly the difficulties they face in their projected merger.

The 61-year-old archbishop spoke at a press conference after arriving from Montreal on his month-long tour of Canada, the first undertaken by the leader of the mother church of world Anglicanism.

He was asked about concern that the United Church will feel inhibited in discussing union at its general council this week in Waterloo, Ont.

WILL DISCUSS PRINCIPLES

The council will be considering 10 principles of union. If approved, detailed committee work will begin on specific aspects of bringing the two communions together.

The Anglican Church approved the principles at its general synod last year with enthusiasm and almost no opposition. Clergy and laymen of both churches have suggested that more debate at the general synod would have set a better precedent for the United Church.

The archbishop has already had extensive talks with Anglican clergy in the Atlantic provinces.

He said the talks covered "current difficulties about belief in God and problems of faith," relations with the Roman Catholic Church and other Protestant churches, and the role of the Anglican communion.

He said he is "very moved" by evidence in Canda of better relations between the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches.

Here and elsewhere in the world "we are more and more able to treat one another as allies rather than as rivals in Christendom."

Dr. Ramsey has also spoken to youth groups since arriving Aug. 30.

"Christian youth in Canada as I've seen them combine seriousness of purpose with great good humor — a combination of qualities valuable in the world."

•

Hurdles Anglicans Must Jump

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, Archbishop of Canterbury, says there are three main points that stand in the way of unity between the Anglican church and the Roman Catholic church.

He said these are:

1. The doctrine of the infalibility of the Pope.
2. The doctrine of the assumption of Our Lady must be treated as an article of faith.
3. The doctrine that the Roman Catholic Church is the sole Catholic church in the world.

Dr. Ramsey said he could not put a timetable on world church union but "we shall live to see many changes that will bring that day closer."

He said the relations between the Anglican Church in Canada and the United Church of Canada have taken "a turn for the better." The Anglican Church was "deeply engaged in examining the possibility of union with the United Church.

CEREMONIES IN SAME TOWN

Church, State Clash Expected at Rallies

WARSAW (Reuters) — The long - standing rivalry between church and state of Poland entered a new phase today as Roman Catholic and Communist leaders planned separate ceremonies as part of Poland's millenium celebrations.

Today's round of celebrations, which commemorate the 1,000 anniversary of Polish statehood and Christianity, were being staged in the former Teutonic stronghold of Torun (Thorn), in northeastern Poland.

Two days of church festivities were planned for the city, with Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski and two other bishops leading the ceremonies. Sunday the Polish primate will take part in an ecumenical session in Torun's Cathedral of St. John.

Poland's National Front, a mass political grouping under Communist control, planned to celebrate the 500th anniversary of a Polish victory over the Teutonic knights in the 14th century. The battle as won by King Wladyslaw Lokietek, who re-established the unity of the Polish state.

INVOKE ASTRONOMER

Both church and state, which have already clashed during previous millenium celebrations this year, were expected to invoke the name of the astronomer, Nicolaus Copernicus, who was born in Torun in 1473 and ranks as one of Poland's most famous sons.

Earlier this year, the government of Wladyslaw Gomulka accused the church of trying to hold its millenium ceremonies in opposition to the state.

It also accused the church of meddling in politics by inviting German bishops to attend the millenium ceremonies and by appealing for a reconciliation between Germany and Poland.

The dispute led to a government ban on a visit by Pope Paul, who was invited by Cardinal Wyszynski to attend the millenium celebrations last spring.

The government also took steps to reduce attendance at the various church ceremonies by curtailing train services to religious shrines and by restricting church processions.

Funeral Held For Former Rugby Player

A native son of Victoria, Mr. Caviness played rugby for Victoria High School, Victoria College and other teams. He served overseas with the RCAF during the Second World War.

Mr. Caviness is survived by the widow, Mavis, at their home at 2183 Guernsey; two sons, Barry and John; a grandson, Dean; and his step-father, Stewart McTaggart of Victoria.

30,000 ON HUNGER STRIKE

Wave of Suicides Over China Purge

TOKYO (AP)—Mass beatings, a wave of suicides and a hunger strike by more than 30,000 disciples of Mao Tse-tung were reported from China Friday as teen-aged Red Guards continued their purge of old ideas.

Travellers arriving in Hong Kong said Red Guard activities touched off a wave of suicides in Canton. Several bodies were seen in Canton's Pearl River. A woman from Hong Kong jumped off a building after being accused of spying for Nationalist China, they said.

A Japanese newspaper man in Peking said a newspaper seen in the capital's streets reported a mass hunger strike was started Sept. 5 by students and teachers in Sian province after the provincial Communist party committee rejected demands from a "proletarian revolutionary rebel corps."

As word of their plight spread, 30,000 persons from 200 schools in Sian and 200 representatives from other areas went on a supporting hunger strike in front of the party committee headquarters, the account added.

Sian was the scene of a fight between workers and revolutionary students for three days in August, the Japanese report said.

Travellers arriving in Hong Kong said scores of Red Guards were beaten by indignant villagers in Kwangtung (Canton) province after the teen-agers set fire to a temple and the flames spread to 13 neighboring huts, destroying them.

Chinese in Bangkok who send money to relatives living in mainland China were not getting the usual receipts for their money orders, informed sources said. They suggested that the Red Guards were intercepting the remittances.

The Hungarian news agency MTI reported from Peking that the district of the capital where Mao lives and the Communist party headquarters is located will be renamed "The Heart of the World Revolution."

Meanwhile, the New China news agency said that young Red Guards have begun to leave Peking for the countryside to help with the harvest. Others were ready to leave the Chinese capital and learn from the peasants, it added.

The guards, who have been swarming through Peking spreading China's new "cultural revolution," had been told to leave the city by Saturday.

The Soviet news agency Tass, however, published a report that Red Guards were still converging on Peking and now constituted more than half of the city's population.)

Adventists Active In 200 Countries

Seventh-Day Adventists now teach the gospel in 800 different languages and dialects.

"We operate in more than 200 countries and territories and we have a world membership exceeding 1,750,000," says Rev. Laverne R. Krenzler, new pastor of Victoria's Seventh-Day Adventist Church, at 1402 Vancouver Street.

Mr. Krenzler said the church has 4,000 members in British Columbia and about 18,000 in Canada.

"Several islands in the South Pacific are entirely populated by Adventists, and one of them is Pitcairn, originally populated by the mutineers from the Bounty.

"Some of their descendants joined our faith about 70 years ago."

Many Adventists are vegetarians and the church operates two vegetarian food factories in the United States and several in Australia.

Mr. Krenzler comes to Victoria from Kelowna, where he ministered to four Adventist churches. He succeeds Pastor Arthur Spenst, who left here last month to study for a master's degree at Andrew's University, Michigan.

How do Seventh-Day Adventists differ fro mother churchgoers?

"Mainly in that we believe Saturday is the Sabbath Day, according to the scriptures," believe in baptism by total immersion, as the Baptists do."

Mr. Krenzler is proud of the fact that the Adventist Church operates 20 health and welfare centres in B.C., and hundreds more throughout Canada.

The new pastor is accompanied by his wife and their two daughters, Janice, 9 and Donna, 14. They will reside at 1536 Belcher Avenue.

Space Flight Scientist Joins Uvic Department of Psychology

New faculty appointments will further strengthen the department of psychology at the University of Victoria.

The new members include two German-born experts. One is a specialist in the stresses of flight in outer space and the other on the psychology of speech.

Joining the faculty as visiting associate professor is Dr. Hans Werner Wendt, 43, a Berlin-born consultant in psychology to many U.S. agencies concerned with aviation and space research.

Dr. Wendt received his doctorate from the University of Marburg in 1952, then spent a year in advanced study at Harvard University. From 1954 to 1959, while he was on the faculty of a German university, he acted as field director for an international project in social research. He returned to the United States in 1959, and joined the department of psychology at Valparaiso University, Indiana, after two years as an engineering psychologist in New York. He has been chairman of the department since 1964.

Dr. Wendt's interests in experimental psychology cover motivation and behavior under stress. His work on reactions to changing environments led him into studies of factors affecting performance in U.S. space flights.

Other newcomers to the department are Dr. Otfried Spreen, associate professor, and Drs. Howard J. Simmons and Richard B. May, both assistant professors.

NEW COURSE

Dr. Spreen, 39, was born in Germany, where he received his doctorate at the University of Freiburg. At the University of Iowa, where he was a senior research associate, he held appointments in the departments of neurology and psychology. He will teach a new undergraduate course in psycholinguistics, examining the mental processes involved in communication through speech, in co-operation with the department of linguistics. He will also teach experimental psychology at the graduate level, and direct research in the department's neuropsycology laboratory.

AT CORNELL

Dr. Simmons, 33, is a native of Pittsburgh, and taught most recently at Cornell University. He holds his doctorate in psychology from the University of Illionois, and a B.Sc. in mathematics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has had considerable experience in computer programming, gained partly while on active duty with the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

Dr. May, 27, completed his doctorate at Claremont Graduate School, California, this year. He was born in Seattle, and gained his B.A. from Whitman College in Washington State. He will teach courses in advanced statistics, research methods, and experimental problems.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald and James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Association

Sometimes it turns out that a very bad suit break is a blessing in disguise.

South was worried about the correct way to play his heart game. Should trumps break 2-2 he would have no trouble making an overtrick. He could simply pull trumps and eventually concede one spade and one club. With a 3-1 break things wouldn't be as nice. If South played out his ace and king, an opponent might be mean enough to lead the third trump and spoil South's plan to ruff both a club and spade in dummy. On the other hand, if he only played out one trump he might lose two overruffs to divided trumps.

South let West hold the first spade. He did not really fear that East would ruff a spade continuation. In fact, he hoped East would, since that would let South use his ace of spades to get a club discard.

West continued spades. South took his ace and played out the ace of trumps. West showed out and at first glance South appeared doomed to defeat. He had lost a spade and seemed destined to lose two trumps and a club. The only way to make the hand would be to cause his club loser to disappear into thin air.

South was able to do just that. He needed luck in spades, clubs and diamonds to compensate for the bad luck in trumps, but he got it.

He ruffed a spade in dummy, played ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond, entered dummy with the king of clubs, ruffed another diamond, entered dummy with the ace of clubs, ruffed his last diamond, cashed his king of trumps and conceded the last two tricks to East's high trumps.

OAK BAY TUDOR
COMPACT ! YET ROOMY
3 BEDROOMS PLUS DEN
2 BATHS
$23,000

Architect-designed in 1929 and very little worse for wear today considering its age is this roomy Tudor home in South Oak Bay. Seated on a shrubbed garden lot on Newport Avenue across from the Golf Course and only steps to buses, schools and shops, this home radiates an atmosphere of charm from its battened gables and leaded windows.

When the brisk winds blow this winter you'll thank your lucky stars you found this gem as you relax in the colonial living room in front of a glowing presto log while Jack Frost nips at the bay window. A cheery call from the compact kitchen will bring the kiddies scrambling down the stairs from the big bedroom and daughter from her own bedroom to the large separate chandeliered dining room where another presto log glows under a white mantled hearth. Over dinner and after in the cozy den you may meditate on the development of the huge storage room upstairs to give another bedroom and den so that the immediate den may be changed to a breakfast area. Yes, its worth while and it would make you a tidy profit up on resale. The hot water heating system would be no problem to extend as the plumbing was originally put in for just such a venture. Also part of the basement could be developed to give a sizeable recreation room very economically.

Your lucky stars are shining, don't let them fade, call now for appointment to view.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO ROME
SH-H-H OAK BAY

The designer who planned this 2 yr. old home was surely inspired by the expression that "ALL ROADS LEAD TO ROME" because he had created as the central core of this home a large family room around which the activity of the whole house seems to revolve. HERE ARE A FEW OF THE OTHER FEATURES I KNOW WILL EXCITE YOU:

- The entrance hall with its commanding wall mirror and elegant chandelier beckon you on to more and more beautiful things all planned for practical family living and gracious entertaining.
- An expansive living room—24x16—having two fine features; a floor-to-ceiling natural stone fireplace and a bay window obviously positioned to take advantage of the high open outlook.
- A truly intimate "candlelight and wine" dining room dominated by an Italian crystal chandelier. Sliding glass doors lead onto a natural slate patio, ideal for formal or informal dining.
- 4 generous bedrooms with oodles of closet and storage space. The master bedroom has its own 4-piece bathroom (no need here to queue up for the bath).
- As well as the bathroom in the master bedroom there are TWO other intelligently planned bathrooms; the family bathroom has 5 pieces with a divisioning door separating the toilet and tub from the the twin washbasins. And tucked away conveniently beside the family room and den is another 2-piece bathroom.
- Only a woman could have planned this kitchen; double sinks, portable dishwasher, mono-unit built-in range and oven, budget planning area and breakfast bar.
- A den for Mom and Dad to hide away in AND a big, big, big rumpus room to let the children have all their fun and games.
- Over 2,100 sq. ft. of enjoyable living PLUS the double garage and laundry room.

WATERFRONT — UNBELIEVABLY LOVELY
60' SANDY BEACH
3 or 4 BEDROOMS

This is truly exquisite. The decor will make you gasp. Can you imagine slipping into a carpeted entrance with beams and double living room: the front one (14x18) with picture window overlooking the bay; the central one with floor-to-ceiling fireplace with raised hearth covering the entire inside wall and topped with beams is 14x14. This is adjacent to a 9x12 dining room opening to lovely sundeck. The main floor has three bedrooms (largest 12x16) and two bathrooms. The entire top floor apart from the kitchen is carpeted and most restful. The kitchen is distinctive with blue antiqued cupboards gleaming arborite, eating area and beamed ceiling. From the centre hall you step down under the cutest Shakespearean balcony to a recreation room (or 4th bedroom) which opens to its own ground level second balcony. From here it is about 7 paces to free flowing clean sand. Ahead is the most beautiful sand bar at low tide and bountiful fishing at high tide. The Danish builder has spared no cost in making 1,800 finished feet on their 60' beach frontage. There is only one like this. Retired executives will truly like the pocket-sized lawn and easily maintained floral beds. Ten minutes to town. Asking $39,995.

Training Program Expanded

An expanded vocational training program will go into effect for Victoria in April of next year, Education Minister Leslie Peterson disclosed Friday.

Speaking at a wind-up election meeting on behalf of John Tisdalle, Social Credit candidate for Saanich-The Islands, the minister said the top floor of the Begg Building, Yates and Quadra Streets, has been rented and will be converted into temporary classrooms.

The classrooms will supplement those already in use in the Windermere Building on Courtney Street and in the vocational training building on Menzies Street, he said.

OFFERED IN SPRING

"Nearly 50 per cent of the training program that will be available when the new B.C. vocational school in Victoria is completed will be offered in the temporary quarters next spring," he said.

The minister also detailed planning of the new school to be constructed at Burnside and the Trans-Canada highway has started.

"However, planning a building takes time," he said. "So in order to get ahead with the program, we have rented the Begg building."

The new programs to be given in the temporary quarters are accounting, business machines and key punch operating, programming and computer machine operation, electricity and electronics and business machine repair.

Commercial clerical, commercial secretarial and commercial upgrading, now taught in the Windermere building; will also be taught there, he said.

Drafting, topographical, mechanical, structural and electrical will be offered in the Windermere building, and practical nursing and basic training for skill development in applied science, mathematics and English, in the Menzies Street building.

The minister made the announcement after accusing the federal liberal government of failing to carry out their proposed educational program

PROMISES

"I'm tired of seeing Liberals trying to sell university students their so-called education program," he said. "All they do is make promises, promises, promises—like they always do—and never carry them out."

He said B.C. had hoped to have an integrated provincial-federal education program in effect by now.

This would have provided increased scholarships, grants and bursaries to university students, plus equalization grants for students living out of town, he said.

"But the federal government has decided to cut back its educational expenditures," he said. "It's the usual promises but no action."

HIKE GRANTS

But the minister said B.C. would increase its scholarship grants despite Ottawa's failure to fulfill its part of the bargain.

When asked by a student whether the government would provide equalization grants to students without federal assisance, Mr. Peterson replied "no."

He also accused the NDP of contributing to labor unrests and strikes.

Mr. Tisdalle said he would like the government to expand Macdonald Park near Sidney.

FORCED TALKS THREAT HURLED BY THATCHER

REGINA (CP) — Workers striking against the Saskatchewan Power Corp. were given an ultimatum Friday by Premier Ross Thatcher.

THATCHER
. . . no appeal

They were advised to accept a six-per-cent package wage increase by 9 a.m. CST Monday or face compulsory arbitration without appeal.

Mr. Thatcher met leaders of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International union Friay to try to arrange a settlement of the strike involving about 1,200 natural gas and clerical workers.

A special session of the legislature began Wednesday after the strike started Sept. 2.

The legislature approved against CCF opposition and trade union denunciation the Essential Services Emergency Act which, if proclaimed law, would provide for compulsory arbitration without appeal in disputes involving workers furnishing water, heat, electricity and natural gas and workers in hospitals, old-age centres, nursing homes and similar institutions.

Following the meeting with the premier Friday, union leaders met with SPC representatives in four hours of bargaining and the government's final offer was presented.

WOULD ACT QUICKLY

"We told the union leaders if the offer was not accepted by Monday morning, a cabinet meeting would be called immediately to proclaim the act and the cabinet would proclaim a state of emergency under the act very quickly," Mr. Thatcher said.

Union leaders were told the final offer was "not negotiable" but it was rejected by the union which reduced its original demand for an eight-per-cent increase to six and one-half per cent, the premier said.

"We gave the union leaders to 9 a.m. Monday in order that they could put the final government offer before their membserhip."

No further meetings were to be held with the union during the weekend unless the union indicated a willingness "to accept our final statement," he said.

Under the act a cabinet proclamation of a state of emergency would require the union to get its workers back on the job within 10 days or face decertification.

Union and management have five days from the date of proclamation of emergency to name one member each to an arbitration board. If the two members failed to name a chairman—a judge of any provincial court—the cabinet has power to appoint a chairman. The board's decision would be binding without appeal.

Pay Hike Eats Up Defence Savings

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department under - spent its 1965-66 budget of $1,561,000,000 by $13,000,000.

The taxpayer won't be so lucky this year.

Officials say the 1966-67 defence budget of $1,572,000,000 wouldn't have been all used up either except for one thing—the pay increase for the armed forces expected next month.

This pay increase will require a supplementary appropriation by Parliament, probably around $25,000,000. This will bring the defence outlay in this fiscal year which began April 1, 1966, to nearly $1,600,000,000 compared with $1,548,000,000 in 1965-66.

The pay increase will run to much more than $25,000,000. But savings in other fields will limit the supplementary appropriation required to that amount.

Officials said Friday spectacular savings have been made through armed forces integration since the big defence buildup of 1961-62 brought on by the Berlin crisis of that period.

SAVED MONEY

They said that without integration the defence department now would be requiring an extra $150,000,000 annually.

Since 1962, the number of servicemen has dropped by 20,000 to 105,000 and the number of civilian personnel in the defence department by 7,000 to 38,000.

This alone represents a saving of about $125,000,000. Other savings have been made in administration and in the closing of some defence installations.

However, pay increases and rising costs for weapons and equipment have tended to wipe out most of these savings. For instance, despite the loss of 7,000 civilian personnel, the civilian wage bill in the department is practically unchanged.

For this reason, the defence department plans a 1967-68 defence budget of about $1,650,000,000, an increase of $100,000,000 over the 1965-66 defence expenditures.

Whether it will get this amount remains to be seen.

Finance Minister Sharp said Thursday: "We are seeking to hold down the size of the defence budget despite the inescapable increases in pay and in the prices of what we have to buy."

For this reason the armed forces pay increase probably won't be as large as the 14 per cent previously predicted.

In the current fiscal year, Defence Minister Hellyer has aimed at increasing the weapons allotment to 17.5 per cent of the defence budget compared with about 13 per cent in 1965-66.

Officials said his objective of raising this percentage still further to 20 or 25 per cent is unlikely to be realized until the present inflationary period is ended.

POLICY of neutralism will be continued by Burma and could be foundation for world peace, Gen. Ne Win said Thursday night in Washington. Burma's chief of state was speaking at a White House dinner. President Johnson in welcoming the neutralist said Ne Win's "views are opinions are welcomed here."

Police to Back Up School Segregation

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—School boards which have assigned Negroes to teach white pupils have a warning from Gov. George Wallace today to remove them or he may invoke the state's "police power" to do it.

That could mean the deployment of state police to carry out the governor's ultimatum. Wallace used them three years ago to block temporarily initial integration of Alabama schools.

His warning was directed to school authorities in Tuscaloosa and Lauderdale counties and any others which may have desegregated faculties without a federal court order.

The governor said those boards have violated the newly—enacted state law which nullifies agreements to comply with the desegregation guidelines drawn up by the federal health, education and welfare department.

He called on them to take immediate action to reassign teachers to schools of their own race, and at the same time to "make a re-examination and re-evaluation" of pupil assignments.

Sudden Big Sea Blamed for Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — A sudden heavy sea has been blamed for the loss of the Vancouver fishing boat Ocean Star that capsized in the Gulf of Georgia last Jan. 28, drowning all seven members of her crew.

Grit Scores SC 'Alibi' On Promises

The Social Credit government has a "built-in alibi" to cover its failure to keep its election promises, Victoria Liberal candidate Frank Preston charged at the wind-up rally of his campaign.

"One great thing which has been overlooked in this election is the government's built-in alibi to cover failure of its present promises, to be carried out in the next legislative term if re-elected," he told the meeting in Burnside elementary school.

"The government offers you many bribes over the next seven years.

"If it is returned and runs true to form we can expect another provincial election in three to four years.

"When questions are raised as they will be, as to the government's failure to implement its policies promised in 1966, the answer will be: "But we said seven years! Give us another term and we will finish the job.

GIMMICK

"This may be a great gimmick thought up by a slick publicity firm and backed by an unending stream of money.

"They are presenting an exaggerated picture and it doesn't say much for the Socred's idea of the average voter's intelligence."

The candidate stated the choice before the voters as: "Not between a government that gets things done and a group of people supposedly daring to criticize the omniscient, but a choice between a government which merely says its gets things done and an alternative set of policies put forth by people who really care."

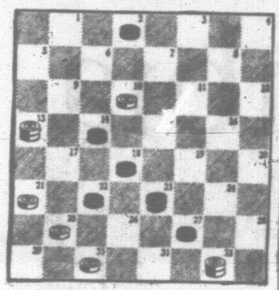
CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



In this checker contest, right, Black captures a White checker and White's position improves. Black captures another white checker and, again, White's position improves. Once more, Black captures an opposing piece and White's now in his best position yet. With this kind of adversity, how can White lose?

White checkers moving up the board, to move first and win in six moves is the challenge. How's it done?

Winning moves, as devised by long-time champ Millard Hopper, are given below.

Solution: White 13—17 Black 22—29, White 17—22, Black 18—25, White 21—17, Black 14—21, White 30—26, Black 23—30, White 32—23, Black 30—26, White 28—30.

PLAY THE ALPHABET GAME

Here's a new party game to try. It's called the "Alphabet Game."

There can be any number of participants. Each is given a pencil, a pair of scissors, and an old newspaper. The object is to find all 26 letters of the alphabet in initials of printed headlines.

As each player finds a word beginning with the first letter he cuts it out. That is, he starts with any word beginning with A. Then he looks for one starting with B somewhere following, then C, etc. See who can get farthest in a given time.

SUM MATH SHORT CUTS

Suppose the sum of the numbers from 1 to 50, booth inclusive, is to be asccertained without adding up the long column of numbers. The lightning calculator first notes that these numbers can be arranged in 25 pairs thus: 1 and 50, 2 and 49, 3 and 48, and so on and the sum of the two numbers in each pair is always 51. Since there are 25 pairs of numbers he multiplies 51 by 25 which equals 1,275, which is the sum of the numbers 1-50. Add the column separately if you are doubtful.

BOIL DOWN THIS BEACH PARTY?

A party of inter-related persons composed of a mother, father, uncle, aunt, two cousins, sister, brother, niece and nephew arrived in a popular seaside resort in one car and had no difficulty getting hotel accommodations, because the number of persons in the group wasn't as large as the enumeration above suggests.

What is the least number of persons who could comprise such a party?

It's fewer than you might expect.

Answer: Four. They were a man, woman, boy and girl. The man and the woman were brother and sister. One had a son and the other a daughter. They were also uncle and aunt while the boy and the girl were nephew, niece and cousins.

WATCH YOUR STEPLADDER

You want to put some curtain rods into sockets four yards above the floor. You know that you can reach up a bit more than two yards with outstretched arms. Now you measure your stepladder, which is a little over two yards long. You set up the ladder, pick up the rods, and climb to the top rung. To your surprise you cannot reach the sockets.

What mistake have you made?

Think this over a bit before answering.

Answer: You have measured the length of the ladder instead of its height. When you step up a ladder its legs stand at an angle to the floor and thus shorten the ladder's height.

WHAT'S IN A NAME, EH?

Three good friends are named Painter, Baker and Carpenter. By profession they are a painter, baker and carpenter, but not necessarily in that order. Baker and the painter live in the same apartment house. Carpenter and the baker are left-handed. Painter and the carpenter have children. Baker and the baker are relatives.

Now, what is each man's profession?

Answer: Baker is the carpenter. Painter is the baker. Carpenter is the painter.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

England's football triumph was celebrated philatelically Aug. 18 by overprinting the 4d value of the British World Cup issue "England-Winners." There were wild scrambles at the post ofice wickets and the issue of 12,000,000 sold out in a couple of days. Speculators are now asking 50% over face value.

New stamps in decimal currency have been announced for Australia's Antarctic Territory. The new series comprises ten denominations, all designs being the work of John Mason of Melbourne.

They will be printed in multicolor rotogravure at the Government Printing Office, Melbourne in sheets of 48 — incidentally an odd arrangement for a decimal issue.

The designs will feature life in the Antarctic. Stamps will not be supplied with courtesy cancellations.

The revised value of the British Virgin Is., formed by surchanging the current 70c, $1.40, and $2.80 with 50c, $1.50, and $3. respectively will be released on the 12th.

●

The United Nations will mark the international coffee agreement on the 19th with two commemoratives — a 5c and 11c.

While on the subject of the U.N. — The European headquarters of the organization have decided to send a mobile exhibition of U.N. stamps on tour of the countries of Europe.

The oversized trailer housing the exhibition will be in London for four days in October during which time it will be parked in Trafalgar Square.

●

Jamaica's "Jamaica Letter" commemorative issue which was due Sept. 6 has been postponed to a later date.

The new £2 Malawi featuring a butterfly turns out to be a beautiful stamp, and if you're in an extravagant mood it would make a very attractive addition to your album.

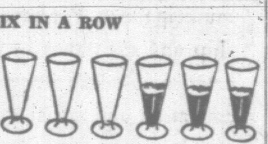
This stamp will be followed Oct. 12 by a 9d Christmas stamp, featuring a view of Bethlehem.

The Turks and Caicos Islands will shortly issue three stamps (1d, 8d, and 1sh 6d) to make the 200th anniversary of their ties with Britain.

* * *

The strange fluctuations in the wholesale prices of U.S. stamps in N.Y. since the beginning of the year can surely only be explained by price manipulation on the part of speculators who have more or less cornered the market.

SIX IN A ROW



Six juice glasses are standing in a row, as below, the first empty and the last three half full.

It is possible to change this arrangement by handling and moving only one glass so that no empty glass is next to another empty one and no half-full glass is next to another half-full glass.

The wits-tester is one of eighty in More Posers, by Philip Kaplan, a new reprint (Macfadden-Bartell) of the sequel to Mr. Kaplan's popular earlier volume Posers.

How to do it: Simply pour the contents of the "middle" half-full glass into the "middle" empty glass.

CURE ALL?

See if you can complete a mathematical cure for nervous tension: Take —— shady creek, —— fishing pole, and —— get the b——. Insert a number in each of the blanks.

Answer: One, one four, eight in that order.

BOTTLED UP EMOTION BETS

Bettor A says a full quart bottle contains 25 per cent more liquid than does a fifth (4-5ths of a quart) bottle. Bettor B says A is talking nonsense, a full quart measures 20 per cent more than a fifth. Bettor C insists they are both wrong; that a full quart holds 10 per cent more than a fifth. Who's right?

Answer: Bettor A's contention (25 per cent) is correct.

A message from the Premier to the people of British Columbia

My Fellow Citizens:

In asking your support for the Social Credit team in the September 12 election, I am deeply aware of my own responsibility to you and also that of the Government I lead. Simply stated, that responsibility is to seek at all appropriate times your approval of the programmes and policies we undertake on your behalf. Under the parliamentary system, it is the duty of a Government to govern; but it is also the duty of a Government to refer its past actions and future plans directly to the people when a turning-point is reached in the affairs of the Province.

1966 is one such turning-point, because it marks the end of the second seven-year period during which you have entrusted the management of British Columbia's affairs to your Social Credit Government. For each of those periods, your Government has followed a carefully-prepared plan of development to bring the Province out of its post-war rut and into the forefront of North American progress.

During the seven years beginning in 1952, your Government attacked on all fronts the isolation of poor communications which had stifled our progress for so long. By building thousands of miles of highways and hundreds of bridges and tunnels, by modernizing the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and extending it north and south; by planning and establishing the ferry system which is now the largest of its kind in the free world; and by doing all this within the framework of pay-as-you-go financing, we were able to provide for our people a vital and basic tool for development of the economy in every part of the Province.

While continuing and broadening these efforts, we began in 1959 to focus our attention on a second seven-year programme: the development of basic energies and a strong industrial base for British Columbia's growth.

The benefits of public power at lower rates; the massive hydro projects on the Peace and Columbia Rivers; the development of policies which have seen the expenditure of hundreds of millions of dollars by the pulp and paper industry; the stimulation of mining and the production of steel; improvement in rural life – these and dozens of other developments in dozens of other fields have broadened our economic base, created vast new payrolls and provided new employment opportunities.

Hand in hand with these basic programmes, there has gone a constant improvement in your Government's programmes for people. Under Social Credit administration British Columbia has consistently led the nation in benefits to the individual citizen: in hospital insurance coverage, in payments to old age pensioners, in the level of social assistance rates and now in medicare. New hospitals, new schools, new vocational institutions, new junior colleges and new universities are building everywhere.

Now we are on the threshold of another new era in the dynamic progress of our Province, an era which will see the greatest urban and rural development of our 100 years of history. To meet the requirements of this dynamic period, your Government has already put major new plans into force. We have pioneered in the creation of "instant municipalities". The Provincial homeowner grant, which began at $28 per year, is now $110 a year, and it will grow to $200 within the next seven-year period. This grant system was pioneered by the Social Credit Government of British Columbia; it has kept our home and farm taxes the lowest in all of Canada.

This year, your Government further anticipated the urban revolution by introducing the Strata Titles Act. This important legislation makes possible outright ownership of individual apartments; at a time when the pressures on available single-family building sites are increasing, all the rights and privileges of home ownership are therefore extended to the apartment dweller – and these rights include the right to the homeowner grant.

Recently, I announced another pioneering measure for social progress – probably the most important of its kind ever undertaken by the Social Credit Government. This is the home purchase plan, under which your Government will make substantial non-repayable contributions towards the down payment on this largest single purchase of any family's life. I believe it is impossible to over-emphasize the significance of this home purchase and building plan to the family unit, which is our greatest strength.

The Social Credit administration has endeavoured at all times to deal fairly with the financial requirements of municipalities. We have endeavoured also to give leadership and assistance in the construction of major traffic arteries, in urban renewal, pollution control, assistance to education and social and recreational programmes. We stand ready to extend and increase that assistance.

In carrying out the seven-year programmes of the past and planning the seven-year programme of the immediate future, your Social Credit Government has sought constantly to give true non-partisan service to all the people of British Columbia – service with special privileges to none and fair treatment for all. We believe deeply and sincerely that good government for British Columbia cannot be provided within the framework of allegiance to old-line and socialist parties which has so completely paralyzed the progress of Canada at the national level. It is a source of pride to me as your Premier, and an example of the non-partisan spirit in action, that there are in my own Cabinet former Liberals, former Conservatives and former supporters of the CCF party. These men, together with other members on the Government benches and many thousands of private citizens, have set aside partisan federal party loyalties to work in unity and strength for a better British Columbia.

It is in this non-partisan spirit that I ask your support of all Social Credit Government candidates in the forthcoming General Election. I am confident that having considered the record of the past, the attainments of the present and the aspirations of the future, you will once again grant us your mandate to keep British Columbia moving ahead on September 12th.

W. A. C. Bennett

Premier of British Columbia.

VERWOERD FUNERAL

Mourners Segregated

PRETORIA (Reuters)—Thousands of mourners, segregated according to their color, watched as the coffin of assassinated Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa was borne into a vast amphitheatre for his state funeral today.

Non-white mourners sat in a separate block of seats from whites as eight senior military officers carried the coffin into the open-air amphitheatre, in a blazing sunshine.

The non-whites included Paramount Chief Kaiser Matanzima, chief minister of the Transkei—first of the Bantustan or Negro areas set up under Verwoerd's apartheid policy.

Many other Negro dignitaries and representatives of the Indian and colored (mixed race) communities were also there.

The block of seats for the non-whites was close to the covered area where members of the Verwoerd family, cabinet ministers and other prominent whites sat. It formed part of the circular seating arrangements at the amphitheatre.

This arrangement conformed to Verwoerd's thinking on race questions that non-whites should be "separate but equal."

Waiting inside the theatre was his widow, Mrs. Betsie Verwoerd, pale but composed, wearing a simple black dress. The theatre was draped in black crepe.

In a front row of seats reserved for important mourners sat Ian Smith, leader of the white - supremacist Rhodesian regime. He looked pale and drawn. With him was his personal bodyguard.

CROWDS GATHERED

Dense crowds, gathered along the 3½-mile route of the funeral procession, stood at attention while the national anthem was played.

Most of them listened to the service with bowed heads.

Most people in the crowds were white but groups of Negroes, Indians and coloreds (people of mixed race) were also there.

'LOST MAN BUT NOT MESSAGE'

PRETORIA (Reuters) — The orator at the state funeral for assassinated South African Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd declared today: "We have lost the man but thank God we have not lost the message of his life."

Rev. J. S. Gericke, moderator of the largest of churches in South Africa and a close personal friend of Verwoerd, described the dead prime minister as "a man of God."

"No attack from outside . . . nor assassination can destroy the message of the testimony and the actions of a man of God," he said. "Even death cannot detract from it — it becomes the possession of generation after generation.

"Dr. Verwoerd's legacy is a determined nation," he said. "His people will face the world and the future with the same determination and good will which were the guiding principles of his life and work."

Fishermen Lose Vote

ALERT BAY (CP)—Neville Shanks, New Democratic Party candidate for Comox in Monday's provincial election, said Friday 500 commercial fishermen will be unable to vote because the government has refused to establish an advance poll in this area.

Socreds Fear Liberals Most, Says Perrault

By AB KENT
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — A cheering Liberal rally Friday heard provincial leader Ray Perrault describe the Social Credit government as "rich, sweet and overfed."

The Socreds fear Liberals as the real enemy in Monday's election, he said.

The organized event in North Vancouver's Canyon Gardens was Mr. Perrault's last major campaign effort. About 250 attendd.

Before a crowd containing prominent B.C. Liberals, other candidates and a cheering section of red and white-clad Perrault girls, the Liberal leader derided Premier Bennett's overflow rally in Vancouver Thursday.

The premier had singled out the Liberals for attack in what Mr. Perrault called the Bennett and Bonner circus performance at the Orpheum Theatre.

REAL ENEMY

"But the premier has identifie the real enemy—the Liberal party," the leader said.

"Nobody shoots at a dead duck and the Liberal party and its candidates are very lively birds indeed."

Mr. Perrault praised the record of the Liberal group in the legislature, naming veteran Gordon Gibson, who sat at the head table during his speech, Pat McGeer who introduced him to the rally, Fernie member Harry McKay and Alan Macfarlane of Oak Bay.

Mr. Bennett accused the government of trying to liquidate all opposition and end the policitical system in B.C.

TRAINED SEALS

In his most acid criticism of the government during this campaign, Mr. Perrault said the premier had called out his "carnival troops" to battle at the Orpheum.

"This circus is very strong in the trained-seal department," he said.

"Some were rising on signal, which proves some Social Crediters are willing to stand up for anyting."

The Liberal said the performance on stage Thursday was "complete with financial juggling act ..... and promises were flying like doves out of a hat."

But he found "something incongruous about the movie title displayed at the theatre—Modesty Blaise.

"More appropriate was the title being put up for today's feature—the Battle of the Bulge," Mr. Perrault said.

BULGING

"Because Social Credit is a rich, sweet, overfed government bulging with arrogance."

This was the first year any party had evolved sush a comprehensive program, Mr. Perrault said of the Liberal format.

"We wee a province standing at the start of a new political era for 10 or 15 or 20 years, not the seven-year itch of the Social Credit movement."

He claimed enthusiastic support for the Liberal platform from youth, business, property owners and municipalities.

He said men with jobs in jeopardy through lack of retraining programs would know how to vote, as would persons with retarded children unable to get proper care.

At one point the leader quoted Churchhill to emphasize the unimportance of past political feuds that might endanger the future.

"It is time for a new broom, a new plan and a new government" he said.

There was urgent need of men

GIBSON
... hits big business

Socreds Labelled 'Puppets'

By Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Big business got a blast Friday from millionaire Gordon Gibson, ex-MLA for North Vancouver, who spoke briefly at a Liberal rally in Capilano.

He said in his time in the legislature he had thought of Social Crediters as "32 puppets."

"But Premier Bennett himself is a puppet under Gunderson (Einar Gunderson, director of Crown corporations and the premier's confidant) and there is a group of men over him."

He said they are trying to give away the province with resources far more vast than Washington and Oregon.

They accept concessions and privileges in return for keeping the Bennett regime in power, Gibson thundered.

The premier wants a Bank of B.C., "not for the little people" as he has maintained, but to bail the province out of the heavy obligations the governmet has gotten it into, he said.

Forum Backs Strachan

By JIM HUME
Times Staff Reporter

DUNCAN — It was billed as an all-party election meeting sponsored by the International Woodworkers of America.

It finished up a tour-de-force for NDP leader Robert Strachan.

The small Knights of Pythias Hall here was jammed to the doorways minutes before the first candidate stood to speak.

Before the meeting was five minutes old late-arriving standees crowded the doorways to join the fun and vent their heckling spite on the candidates.

At least that was the original intention.

As it turned out the man to suffer most from the hecklers was Social Credit candidate Pat Rogers, 28, who had lots of energy but few answers to the tough labor-oriented questions fired from the floor.

Liberal candidate Joe Haddock fared better.

★ ★ ★

Steering clear of serious topics he kept the crowd laughing as he mocked Premier Bennett's "three-ring circus election campaign carrying its own cheering section" and "cabinet minister who slide up and down like plastic yo-yos at the premier's bidding."

"Did you hear him from the Orpheum in Vancouver the other night?" he asked. "He's going to get five seats here, three seats there, two seats somewhere else. I counted them up. He's going to have 61 seats in the next legislature."

Under redistribution there are 55 seats in the house.

But it was veteran politician Strachan who drew the sustained applause and the sympathy of the crowd.

★ ★ ★

"The candidate here (Mr. Rogers) says the Social Credit government does not practise intimidation," he snapped. "Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi have both stated publicly that the Cowichan-Malahat constituency would have more things done if the area had a government member.

"That is intimidation and either Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi are lying or he (Mr. Rogers) is lying. He can have his choice."

Once again Mr. Strachan stayed with his steady pounding of government policies on education, chronic care and the violation of dedicated parks.

"Mr. (Kenneth) Kiernan was minister of mines when the rape of Strathcoma Park started," he said.

★ ★ ★

"It was a Class A park then with mining and logging forbidden. Before he switched his portfolio from mines to parks he had seen issued hundreds of mining claims in that beautiful area.

"When he switched to the department of recreation and conservation one of his first

BENNETT ASKS SOLID MARGIN

MERRITT (CP) — Premier Bennett told a Social Credit campaign rally here Friday night that a minority government in Victoria next Monday could mean a halt to B.C.'s Growth and expansion.

He said voters shouldn't listen to opposition pleas for a minority government. What is needed is a majority government.

"For the first time in my 25 years in public life, the NDP and Liberals are not saying let us form the government; they only say don't give the premier too large a majority because he is arrogant.

"The powerful pressure groups — like the powerful press—if they don't get their way, they say the premier is arrogant."

He attacked NDP Leader Robert Strachan as lacking vision, courage and faith in the future of the province.

Check Your Card On Where to Vote

There are 12 hours in which to vote in Monday's provincial election.

Polls open in every constituency at 8 a.m. and close a 8 p.m.

All eligible voters — those on the voting list — have received cards telling them where to vote.

Because of redistribution of constituencies earlier this year, boundaries are different from the 1963 election.

The new boundaries do not always coincide with municipal boundaries.

Anyone in doubt should telephone the registrar of voters or the returning officer in each constituency.

The telephone numbers are: Registrar of voters, EV 2-6111. Returning officers — Victoria, 385-9761; Saanich, 479-1602; Oak Bay, 386-8464; Esquimalt, 383-7169.

The last chance to cast ballots at the advance poll ends at 9 tonight. Polling station for all local constituencies is in the United Church Fellowship Hall, 936 Balmoral.

On Monday, Victoria voters should remember they can vote for any two candidates because Victoria is a two-member constituency.

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are single-member constituencies.

PGE Workers Vote For Strike Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Non-operating employees of the provincially - owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway voted solidly for strike action and strike notice will be served on the line Monday, the employees' union said Friday night.

Monday is the day of the provincial election in British Columbia.

The spokesman said the 400 non-operating employees voted 97 per cent to strike for higher wages.

He said that while both sides would meet with a conciliation officer on Monday, strike notice would be served then and a strike could begin two days later.

The union claimed a government-supervised strike vote would not be required because the PGE did not comply with the Labor Relations Act when it failed to file a report of the dispute.

The strike vote was taken after PGE management rejected a conciliation board recommendation for a 50-cent hourly increase over two years, which the workers had accepted.

The PGE said it was willing to pay salaries on a par with the two national railways — but no more.

Britain Prepared To Yield?

LONDON (CP)—The British cabinet today was reported considering yielding in part to Commonwealth demands for tougher action against the rebel white-minority regime in Rhodesia. (See story Page 3.)

A morning session between Prime Minister Wilson and his ministers stretched into the afternoon amid speculation that Wilson might accept a compromise formula put forward by Canada's Prime Minister Pearson.

At the same time, other delegations at the conference of Commonwealth heads of government used a weekend adjournment to seek a consensus on a middle way. The Africans demand United Nations mandatory sanctions while the British line is that a UN-ordered economic embargo could cause wider repercussions, such as the withdrawal of South Africa from UN membership.

Pearson has proposed compromise answers to demands supported by all but a few of the 22 Commonwealth delegations for effective mandatory sanctions and a clear British assurance of African majority rule before legal independence is granted to Rhodesia.

Missed Voter Can Get Ballot

Any voter who believes his or her name should be on the voters' list, but has been omitted through error, can swear an affidavit before a deputy returning officer at the polls.

The vote will be accepted with the affidavit, but the registrar of voters is the final judge as to whether the vote is valid.

178 Hopefuls In Field

By JOHN MIKA
Times Political Reporter

The party leaders wind up the provincial election campaign with exhortations to their home ridings tonight.

B.C. voters will have a day of quiet to think things over a last time before casting votes Monday for 178 candidates to fill 55 seats in 48 constituencies.

They will be selecting the 28th legislature of B.C. since Confederation.

Their collective choice will decide the big question of which province B.C. will emulate: Newfoundland and its pro-government landslide or Manitoba's strengthening of the opposition.

Few expected the narrow defeats of the Quebec and Prince Edward Island governments, of course, but a similar result here would be a bigger surprise with even opposition leaders conceding they are fighting for the right to exist in the legislature.

POKER-FACED

The mass of the public has remained determinedly poker-faced since the election was called Aug. 5 with more than two years remaining in the government's term of office and no central issue.

But there has been a slight warming up of audience temperatures at meetings this week and an exceptionally heavy run in advance polling also suggests that the voters are not ignoring the elction.

In 1963, there were 202 candidates for 52 seats but redistribution and the drop from 44 to three Conservative candidates changed the picture this time.

Both the Socreds and NDP fielded 55 candidates each while the Liberals missed nominations in two ridings at the last minute.

Communists and independents, at six each, are both at double the strength of the Tory contestants.

In the lower Vancouver Island area, there are 16 candidates in the four ridings here:

VICTORIA — W. N. Chant and W. M. Skillings for SC; H. T. Allen and Mrs. Dorcas Blair for NDP; J. W. Porteous and F. D. Preston for Liberals; and E. L. Knott for Communists;

OAK BAY — C. M. Ennals for SC; M. V. Yarwood for NDP; and A. B. Macfarlane for Liberals;

SAANICH AND THE ISLANDS — J. D. Tisdalle for SC; E. W. Haw for NDP; J. M. Campbell for Liberals;

ESQUIMALT — H. J. Bruch for SC; J. E. Bartanus for NDP; D. A. Elrix for Liberals.

Premier Bennett began the race by making election speeches in a swing through the Kootenays in advance of his announced Aug. 18 campaign start in Campbell River. He has continued without letup for the hardest run he's made since the 1952 election that brought him to power.

Both NDP Leader Robert

U.S. Eyes Transport Shake-Up

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Both Canada and the United States have launched legislative proposals to cram their sprawling transportation industries under one federal roof.

But, if the American experience so far is any token, the bill facing the Canadian Parliament would have been derailed almost before it left the station.

President Johnson proposed to Congress March 3 that a cabinet-level transportation department be formed for the first time, administratively similar to Canada's.

His transport aims in other bills include:

—Government - authorized safety standards for cars, trucks and tires.

—State grants for improved driver education, auto inspection and other safety developments.

—A start next year on a supersonic air transport for 1974.

—Increased research into such diverse transport aspects as the cause of highway accidents, how to curtail jet-aircraft noise, faster forms of ocean vessels, separate roads for trucks and — a real political crowd-pleaser — ways to get to and from airports faster and speedier urban and inter-city travel.

The president's visions of his new transport department involved lumping together about 10,000 federal employees and a budget of nearly $6,000,000,000 annually. Former presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy had had the same dreams.

MAKES EXCEPTIONS

But political soundings in advance made him make certain major exceptions before presenting his program.

Still, much of the untidy growth of assorted regulatory agencies was to be covered — the federal aviation agency and the civil aeronautics board, certain commerce department responsibilities, the bureau of public roads, the maritime administration, the coast guard, the Alaska railway, the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, the Great Lakes pilotage administraion and other bits and pieces to boot.

The department would take over the work now being supervised by 11 federal agencies, with one key exception to the provisions written into the Canadian formula for a Canadian transport commission.

Freight rates, passenger fares or mergers would have been left to the interstate commerce commission, the civil aeronautics board and the federal maritime commission, acting independently.

This major concession, striping the bill of much of its power, testified to the power of the individual air, water, rail and road lobbies and their spokesmen in Congress who saw a unified transport command dulling their influence.

The House actually removed shipping from the bill, leaving it independent of any future transport department. More trouble is expected when the legislation goes before the Senate, with the airlines for one also seeking special exemption.

Japanese Fly to B.C. For Opening

Lt.-Gov. G. R. Pearkes will be key dignitary participating in formalities marking the official opening of the new $2 million plant of Titan Steel and Wire Co. Ltd. in North Surrey Sept. 16.

He will be joined by municipal, provincial and federal government officials in welcoming the start of the joint venture of Canadian and Japanese interests in a secondary industry.

Flying from Japan especially for the official opening will be several senior officers of Mitsui and Company and Kobe Steel Works, Ltd., major shareholders in the Titan company.

These include Noboru Inagaki, vice-president and executive director of Mitsui, and Yukuchi Tagawa, executive director of Kobe.

The mill is producing a wide variety of low and high carbon wire products which will replace much of the finished and semi-finished wire products previously imported from Japan by the Vancouver office of Mitsui and Company.

Milk Wholesale Price Raised by Farm Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Dairy farmers' demands for a manufacturing milk return of $4.25 a hundredweight were partially met Friday when J. J. Greene, agriculture minister, announced an immdeiate eight-cent increase to $3.33 in the base price.

The increase, to be passed on to the consumer through a two-cent raise in the minimum selling price of butter, brings to $4.08 the producer's at-the-farm return for his 3.5 per cent milk.

The previous return was $4, including a 75-cent net subsidy. The base price was raised to $3.25 last April 1, shortly after the announcement of the federal government's new dairy policy.

Mr. Greene promised a further 9.5 per cent increase in the base price this year provided Quebec and Ontario governments promise it will be fully passed on to farmers. Only Ontario, through its milk marketing board, now could guarantee this.

A second condition for the 9.5 per cent increase was equalization of differences in milk subsidies between Ontario and Quebec. Farmers in Quebec receive an additional provincial subsidy of 17.5 cents a hundredweight in the summer and 35 cents in the winter.

No such provincial subsidies exist in Ontario where farmers and government officials have claimed the Quebec subsidies disturb the free flow of milk between the two provinces.

Mr. Greene said removal of the provincial differences was in the interest of a sound national policy. Equalization could be achieved by either Quebec removing its subsidy or by Ontario launching a provincial subsidy on the Quebec level.

Ontario Agriculture Minister Stewart, who in July told dairy farmers massed at Queen's Park their problems were a federal responsibility, reiterated his earlier view that Ottawa should up the base price with 25 cents to $3.50.

"Never before has the Canadian consumer been better able to pay for the increase," said Mr. Stewart, who spoke before Mr. Green's announcement.

Mr. Greene said that paying more to cream producers would only increase inefficiency.

FARMERS CALL BUTTER STRIKE

OTTAWA (CP)—A two-cent increase in the price of a pound of butter, announced Fridaay by Agriculture Minister Greene, is inadequate and leaves no alternative but to strike, a spokesman for the Ontario Farmers' Union said.

Walter Miller, OFU vice-president, said following Mr. Greene's announcement, a strike by the farmers would take the form of a withdrawal of all dairy products from the consumers.

ATLANTIC ACCEPTANCE HEARINGS

Old Cow Caper Costly

By GORDON GRANT

TORONTO (CP)—Used cows . . . race horses . . . adventure in the Bahamas . . . restaurants . . . discount stores . . . loans without collateral . . . trips to Paris . . . fat profits.

These ingredients in one pot apparently are a recipe for disaster.

The mixture was concocted by Atlantic Acceptance Corp. and whipped up by the royal commission investigating the finance company's downfall in June, 1965.

The commission, under Mr. Justice Samuel Hughes of the Ontario Supreme Court, in six months of public and sometimes bizarre, hearings has taken evidence from 113 witnesses and heard millions of words of testimony.

The hearings reopen today following a summer recess and officials say they expect to be taking evidence until early 1967.

Atlantic collapsed when it couldn't pay a $5,000,000 debt—at the time its assets were listed at more than $145,000,000. The commission wants to find out, among other things, why such a large and apparently well-based company went under because of a paltry $5,000,000.

TWO FACTS EMERGE

The facts are clear:

1. Losses could be a smuch as $64,800,000.

2. C. P. Morgan, founder and president of Atlantic until its failure, and accountants William Walton and Harry Wagman have been mentioned more frequently in evidence than any other persons.

Mr. Morgan, according to testimony, was the central figure in Atlantic's operations and Mr. Justice Hughes has commented:

"I realize a man's judgment is never uniformly right, but it seems impossible to believe his judgment could be so uniformly wrong in all these enterprises."

Mr. Morgan's evidence has not been made public—he gave it from his bed prior to entering a Toronto hospital with a blood disorder.

One of the most unusual operations of Atlantic was its dealings in new and used cows. The company financed Valley Farms and Enterprises which sold cows to farmers, sometimes having to repossess for non-payment.

After two unprofitable years, the cow caper went kaput.

But Valley Farms, run on the instruction of Mr. Morgan, wasn't through. It went into the race horse business. The nags didn't treat the company well, either, and in three years $10,700 went down the drain, of which $7,000 was on racing operations and the remainder on buying and selling operations.

Another unusual facet of Valley Farms was that it gave $177,571 to Morgan, Walton and Wagman as repayment of loans which they didn't make and it didn't receive, a chartered accountant testified.

In line with its odd operating methods, the company also bought $125,000 of debentures in a company which was in receivership and wrote off the amount as an operating expense.

When the farm went bankrupt it owed Atlantic $1,300,000.

From the farm in eastern Ontario, the commission traced Atlantic's dealings to The Bahamas where the company had an $11,000,000 stake in the luxurious Lucayan Beach Hotel and various other operations associated with the hotel.

Albert Shepherd, commission counsel, said Atlantic might be alive today had it not been for its "adventure in The Bahamas."

Atlantic's money was tied up in the unprofitable venture with no quick way out. Mr. Shepherd said that had the investment been more liquid, the $5,000,000 debt could probably have been paid.

SHARE OFFERING

It has long been and still is the objective of OSSIE (Oswood G.) MACDONALD, President of Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. N.P.L.) to establish a COPPER SMELTER and allied industry on Vancouver Island.

To do this substantial proven ore reserves are required.

1. To establish such ore reserves it is necessary first to own or control large areas where favorable geological and structural conditions exist for large tonnage copper mineralization.

These conditions exist in the 35-mile Sooke belt as demonstrated by the SUNRO operation of Cowichan Copper Co. Ltd. (N.P.L.) at Jordan River in the centre of this belt, 43 miles northwest from Victoria on Vancouver Island.

MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. was incorporated early in 1963 by Ossie MacDonald and it now controls thousands of acres of ground in this favourable Sooke belt.

2. To establish such ore reserves it is necessary, secondly, to explore these large areas locating mineralization or indications thereof.

For over 3 years now, exploration and development has been carried out by MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. in these areas in the way of geological mapping, soil sampling, prospecting, trenching and the running of geophysical surveys.

3. To establish such ore it is necessary, thirdly, to develop by means of diamond drilling the areas of mineralization that have been discovered and thus define the grade and tonnage.

WE ARE NOW AT THIS STAGE

To finance this, MACSAN EXPLORATIONS LTD. (N.P.L.) is making an offer directly to the public of 300,000 shares at a price of 60c each.

VERWOERD FUNERAL

Mourners Segregated

PRETORIA (Reuters)—Thousands of mourners, segregated according to their color, watched as the coffin of assassinated Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa was borne into a vast amphitheatre for his state funeral today.

Non-white mourners sat in a separate block of seats from whites as eight senior military officers carried the coffin into the open-air amphitheatre, in a blazing sunshine.

The non-whites included Paramount Chief Kaiser Matanzima, chief minister of the Transkei—first of the Bantustan or Negro areas set up under Verwoerd's apartheid policy.

Many other Negro dignitaries and representatives of the Indian and colored (mixed race) communities were also there.

The block of seats for the non-whites was close to the covered area where members of the Verwoerd family, cabinet ministers and other prominent whites sat. It formed part of the circular seating arrangements at the amphitheatre.

This arrangement conformed to Verwoerd's thinking on race questions that non-whites should be "separate but equal."

Waiting inside the theatre was his widow, Mrs. Betsie Verwoerd, pale but composed, wearing a simple black dress. The theatre was draped in black crepe.

In a front row of seats reserved for important mourners sat Ian Smith, leader of the white - supremacist Rhodesian regime. He looked pale and drawn. With him was his personal bodyguard.

CROWDS GATHERED

Dense crowds, gathered along the 3½-mile route of the funeral procession, stood at attention while the national anthem was played.

Most of them listened to the service with bowed heads.

Most people in the crowds were white but groups of Negroes, Indians and coloreds (people of mixed race) were also there.

'LOST MAN BUT NOT MESSAGE'

PRETORIA (Reuters) — The orator at the state funeral for assassinated South African Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd declared today: "We have lost the man but thank God we have not lost the message of his life."

Rev. J. S. Gericke, moderator of the largest of churches in South Africa and a close personal friend of Verwoerd, described the dead prime minister as "a man of God."

"No attack from outside . . . nor assassination can destroy the message of the testimony and the actions of a man of God," he said. "Even death cannot detract from it — it becomes the possession of generation after generation.

"Dr. Verwoerd's legacy is a determined nation," he said. "His people will face the world and the future with the same determination and good will which were the guiding principles of his life and work."

Socreds Fear Liberals Most, Says Perrault

By AB KENT
Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—A cheering Liberal rally Friday heard provincial leader Ray Perrault describe the Social Credit government as "rich, sweet and overfed."

The Socreds fear Liberals as the real enemy in Monday's election, he said.

The organized event in North Vancouver's Canyon Gardens was Mr. Perrault's last major campaign effort. About 250 attended.

Before a crowd containing prominent B.C. Liberals, other candidates and a cheering section of red and white-clad Perrault girls, the Liberal leader derided Premier Bennett's overflow rally in Vancouver Thursday.

The premier had singled out the Liberals for attack in what Mr. Perrault called the Bennett and Bonner circus performance at the Orpheum Theatre.

REAL ENEMY

"But the premier has identified the real enemy—the Liberal party," the leader said.

"Nobody shoots at a dead duck and the Liberal party and its candidates are very lively birds indeed."

Mr. Perrault praised the record of the Liberal group in the legislature, naming veteran Gordon Gibson, who sat at the head table during his speech, Pat McGeer who introduced him to the rally, Fernie member Harry McKay and Alan Macfarlane of Oak Bay.

Mr. Bennett accused the government of trying to liquidate all opposition and end the policitical system in B.C.

"There must be strong opposition to keep this vibrant system alive."

TRAINED SEALS

In his most acid criticism of the government during this campaign, Mr. Perrault said the premier had called out his "carnival troops" to battle at the Orpheum.

The Liberal said the performance on stage Thursday was "complete with financial juggling act ..... and promises were flying like doves out of a hat."

But he found "something incongruous about the movie title displayed at the theatre—Modesty Blaise.

"More appropriate was the title being put up for today's feature—the Battle of the Bulge," Mr. Perrault said.

BULGING

"Because Social Credit is a rich, sweet, overfed government bulging with arrogance."

This was the first year any party had evolved such a comprehensive program, Mr. Perrault said of the Liberal format.

"We want a province standing at the start of a new political era for 10 or 15 or 20 years, not the seven-year itch of the Social Credit movement."

He claimed enthusiastic support for the Liberal platform from youth, business, property owners and municipalities.

He said men with jobs in jeopardy through lack of retraining programs would know how to vote, as would persons with retarded children unable to get proper care.

At one point the leader quoted Churchhill to emphasize the unimportance of past political feuds that might endanger the future.

"It is time for a new broom, a new plan and a new government" he said.

There was urgent need of men

Socreds Labelled 'Puppets'

By Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER — Big business got a blast Friday from millionaire Gordon Gibson, ex-MLA for North Vancouver, who spoke briefly at a Liberal rally in Capilano.

He said in his time in the legislature he had thought of Social Crediters as "32 puppets."

"But Premier Bennett himself is a puppet under Gunderson (Einar Gunderson, director of Crown corporations and the premier's confidant) and there is a group of men over him."

He said they are trying to give away the province with resources far more vast than Washington and Oregon.

They accept concessions and privileges in return for keeping the Bennett regime in power, Gibson thundered.

The premier wants a Bank of B.C., "not for the little people" as he has maintained, but to bail the province out of the heavy obligations the government has gotten it into, he said.

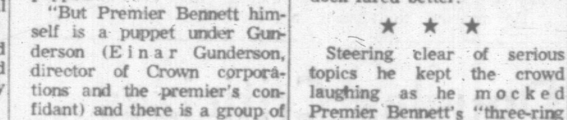
Clay Wins Over Game German

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay was given strong opposition for a few rounds by Karl Mildenberger before he stopped the game, aggressive German in the 12th round of their title bout tonight.

Clay, a 10-1 favorite, dropped the German three times and had him bleeding around both eyes and from the nose before British referee Teddy Waltham stopped the slaughter in the 12th round of the 15-rounder at Wald Stadium.

The unbeaten 24-year-old champion from Louisville, Ky., floored the aggressive European champion in the fifth, eighth and 10th rounds and battered him with both hands in most of the closing rounds.

A sharp right cross spilled Mildenberger just before the bell sounded to end the fifth round. In the eighth, a crisp left hook to the jaw dropped the 28-year-old challenger for the mandatory eight count.



Socreds talkin' about a landslide. Well, they got enuff rocks fer it.

Forum Backs Strachan

By JIM HUME
Times Staff Reporter

DUNCAN — It was billed as an all-party election meeting sponsored by the International Woodworkers of America.

It finished up a tour-de-force for NDP leader Robert Strachan.

The small Knights of Pythias Hall here was jammed to the doorways minutes before the first candidate stood to speak.

Before the meeting was five minutes old late-arriving standees crowded the doorways to join the fun and vent their heckling spite on the candidates.

At least that was the original intention.

As it turned out the man to suffer most from the hecklers was Social Credit candidate Pat Rogers, 28, who had lots of energy but few answers to the tough labor-oriented questions fired from the floor.

Liberal candidate Joe Haddock fared better.

★ ★ ★

Steering clear of serious topics he kept the crowd laughing as he mocked Premier Bennett's "three-ring circus election campaign carrying its own cheering section" and "cabinet minister who slide up and down like plastic yo-yos at the premier's bidding."

"Did you hear him from the Orpheum in Vancouver the other night?" he asked. "He's going to get five seats here, three seats there, two seats somewhere else. I counted them up. He's going to have 61 seats in the next legislature."

Under redistribution there are 55 seats in the house.

But it was veteran politician Strachan who drew the sustained applause and the sympathy of the crowd.

★ ★ ★

"The candidate here (Mr. Rogers) says the Social Credit government does not practise intimidation," he snapped. "Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gaglardi have both stated publicly that the Cowichan-Malahat constituency would have more things done if the area had a government member.

Once again Mr. Strachan stayed with his steady pounding of government policies on education, chronic care and the violation of dedicated parks.

"Mr. (Kenneth) Kiernan was minister of mines when the rape of Strathcoma Park started," he said.

★ ★ ★

"It was a Class A park then with mining and logging forbidden. Before he switched his portfolio from mines to parks he had seen issued hundreds of mining claims in that beautiful area.

"When he switched to the department of recreation and conservation one of his first

BENNETT ASKS SOLID MARGIN

MERRITT (CP) — Premier Bennett told a Social Credit campaign rally here Friday night that a minority government in Victoria next Monday could mean a halt to B.C.'s Growth and expansion.

He said voters shouldn't listen to opposition pleas for a minority government. What is needed is a majority government.

"For the first time in my 25 years in public life, the NDP and Liberals are not saying let us form the government; they only say don't give the premier too large a majority because he is arrogant.

"The powerful pressure groups — like the powerful press—if they don't get their way, they say the premier is arrogant."

He attacked NDP Leader Robert Strachan as lacking vision, courage and faith in the future of the province.

Check Your Card Where to Vote

There are 12 hours in which to vote in Monday's provincial election.

Polls open in every constituency at 8 a.m. and close a 8 p.m.

All eligible voters — those on the voting list — have received cards telling them where to vote.

Because of redistribution of constituencies earlier this year, boundaries are different from the 1963 election.

The new boundaries do not always coincide with municipal boundaries.

Anyone in doubt should telephone the registrar of voters or the returning officer in each constituency.

The telephone numbers are: Registrar of voters, EV 2-6111. Returning officers — Victoria, 385-9761; Saanich, 479-1602; Oak Bay, 386-8464; Esquimalt, 383-7169.

The last chance to cast ballots at the advance poll ends at 9 tonight. Polling station for all local constituencies is in the United Church Fellowship Hall, 936 Balmoral.

On Monday, Victoria voters should remember they can vote for any two candidates because Victoria is a two-member constituency.

Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt are single-member constituencies.

PGE Workers Vote For Strike Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Non-operating employees of the provincially - owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway voted solidly for strike action and strike notice will be served on the line Monday, the employees' union said Friday night.

Monday is the day of the provincial election in British Columbia.

The spokesman said the 400 non-operating employees voted 97 per cent to strike for higher wages.

He said that while both sides would meet with a conciliation officer on Monday, strike notice would be served then and a strike could begin two days later.

The union claimed a government-supervised strike vote would not be required because the PGE did not comply with the Labor Relations Act when it failed to file a report of the dispute.

The strike vote was taken after PGE management rejected a conciliation board recommendation for a 50-cent hourly increase over two years, which the workers had accepted.

The PGE said it was willing to pay salaries on a par with the two nationaal railways.

Leaders Await Verdict

By JOHN MIKA
Times Political Reporter

The party leaders wind up the provincial election campaign with exhortations to their home ridings tonight.

B.C. voters will have a day of quiet to think things over a last time before casting votes Monday for 178 candidates to fill 55 seats in 48 constituencies.

They will be selecting the 28th legislature of B.C. since Confederation.

Their collective choice will decide the big question of which province B.C. will emulate: Newfoundland and its pro-government landslide or Manitoba's strengthening of the opposition.

Few expected the narrow defeats of the Quebec and Prince Edward Island governments, of course, but a similar result here would be a bigger surprise with even opposition leaders conceding they are fighting for the right to exist in the legislature.

POKER-FACED

The mass of the public has remained determinedly poker-faced since the election was called Aug. 5 with more than two years remaining in the government's term of office and no central issue.

But there has been a slight warming up of audience temperatures at meetings this week and an exceptionally heavy run in advance polling also suggests that the voters are not ignoring the elction.

Both the Socreds and NDP fielded 55 candidates each while the Liberals missed nominations in two ridings at the last minute.

Communists and independents, at six each, are both at double the strength of the Tory contestants.

In the lower Vancouver Island area, there are 16 candidates in the four ridings here:

VICTORIA — W. N. Chant and W. M. Skillings for SC; H. T. Allen and Mrs. Dorcas Blair for NDP; J. W. Porteous and F. D. Preston for Liberals; and E. L. Knott for Communists;

OAK BAY — C. M. Ennals for SC; M. V. Yarwood for NDP; and A. B. Macfarlane for Liberals;

SAANICH AND THE ISLANDS — J. D. Tisdalle for SC; E. W. Haw for NDP; J. M. Campbell for Liberals;

ESQUIMALT — H. J. Bruch for SC; J. E. Bartanus for NDP; D. A. Elrix for Liberals.

Premier Bennett began the race by making election speeches in a swing through the Kootenays in advance of his announced Aug. 18 campaign start in Campbell River. He has continued without letup for the hardest run he's made since the 1952 election that brought him to power.

Both NDP Leader Robert

FBI Comes Calling In Canada

SARNIA (CP)—Mrs. E. L. McKegney of Sarnia said Friday she was questioned for an hour by a United States secret service agent Aug. 26, a month after she wrote a letter to President Johnson opposing U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Police Chief James Torrance confirmed that an agent from Detroit, L. S. Bates, had been man when he questioned Mrs. accompanied by a city police-McKegney.

RCMP Sgt. J. T. Fraser said Bates had not talked to the RCMP.

Chief Torrance said it was "quite in order" for his men to co-operate with U.S. agents who want to question Sarnia residents.

Mrs. McKegney said Bates asked questions about her background, her weight and age, her political leanings, and whether she had ever been in a hospital.

THREAT MISSIVE

She said he told her that her letter constituted a "threat" against the life of the president.

Mrs. McKegney said she had not kept a copy of the letter, but could not recall that it contained any threats.

Mrs. McKegney is a member of the Sarnia Committee to End the War in Viet Nam, formed several months ago.

Missed Voter Can Get Ballot

Any voter who believes his or her name should be on the voters' list, but has been omitted through error, can swear an affidavit before a deputy returning officer at the polls.

The vote will be accepted with the affidavit, but the registrar of voters is the final judge as to whether the vote is valid.

"Such persons must have lived in the district at least six months," a spokesman for the registrar's office said today.

Nova Scotia Blocks Phone Takeover Bid

HALIFAX (CP)—A bill severely limiting the voting rights of shareholders of Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., received third and final reading in the Nova Scotia legislature this morning and was sent to the lieutenant-governor for Royal Assent.

Passage of the bill blocked a takeover bid of Maritime by Bell Telephone Co. of Canada, but the final battle could be fought in the Supreme Court of Canada.

Progressive Conservative Premier Robert Stanfield introduced the bill at a special session of the legislature Friday to limit the voting powers of shareholders in M. T. and T. and thus prevent any individual group or company from gaining control of the Nova Scotia utility.

The legislation would limit a person, group or company with more than 1,000 shares in Maritime to 1,000 votes at meetings of the utility. Proxy voting would not be affected.

The bill would also obligate shareholders to state their ownership.

Share transfers would also be recorded. Another section states that 45 days' notice will be required for a special meeting, instead of the present 10 days.

QUESTIONS LEGALITY

Gordon Cooper, counsel for Bell, told the committee meeting Friday night there may be a "serious constitutional question with respect to the validity of this legislation."

He added that it was too early yet to have a definite opinion as to whether or not there is a constitutional question.

If the constitutionality of the legislation was challenged it would go before the Supreme Court of Canada, which would then decide whether or not the subject matter fell within the jurisdiction of the province.

James A. Hobbs, an executive vice-president of Bell and a director of both Maritime and New Brunswick Telegraph and Telephone Co., appeared before the committee on Bell's behalf.

He said the bill will ease the fears of the Montreal-based company that foreign interests would attempt to take over the Maritime utilities, "but only for the time being."

He added that Bell viewed with considerable concern and misgiving what it considers the deprivation of its right to vote shares it has held for some years—Bell held six per cent of the outstanding common stock of Maritime before the takeover bid—and also of its right to vote shares acquired more recently.

VOICES CONCERN

Mr. Hobbs said Bell was motivated in the takeover bid solely out of concern that the Maritime companies might fall into the hands of foreign interests.

He named three companies—Continental Telephone Co., General Telephone and Electronics which operates in Canada as Anglo-Canadian Telephone, and International Telephone and Telegraph.

All three are United States companies and the first two have figured in recent takeover bids in Ontario and Quebec, Mr Hobbs said.

Under questioning, the Bell vice-president said his company reached a decision to make the takeover bids in July. New Brunswick Tel and Tel directors were informed of the bid on Aug. 17 and the Maritime directors Aug. 18.

He added that Premier Stanfield had been informed by "a director of the proposed takeover early in July and the director reported back to the Bell board on July 27 when the final decision was reached."

Premier Stanfield told the legislature earlier in the day the move to block the takeover was prompted by fears of a conflict of interest because Bell also owned Northern Electric Co., which manufactures telephone equipment.

Bell's takeover application comes up before the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa Monday and Nova Scotia will be represented at the hearing.

Waldo Predicts Sweep of Island

Social Credit candidates will sweep Vancouver Island with the exception of one seat, Victoria city candidate Waldo Skillings predicted Friday night.

The one seat the Socreds can't capture is Cowichan-Malahat, the riding of New Democratic Pary leader Robert Strachan, Mr. Skillings told a meeting of 18 persons in Oaklands Elementary School.

He forecast that Alan Macfarlane, the Liberal candidate for Oak Bay, would lose his seat to Socred Dr. Charles Ennals.

"People don't need to feel sorry for the incumbent Oak Bay member," Mr. Skilling said. "He will go back into private practice and be elevated to a judgeship in a few years."

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, also running as Socred candidate for Victoria city, predicted his party would capture 45 out of the 55 seats.

Mr. Chant said the federal government would not have had to postpone its medicare plan if it had followed British Columbia' example of eliminating net debt.

He promised that Greater Victoria will soon have a vocational training school.

"When we started the Victoria Law Courts building, our critics said it would never be anything more than a hole in the ground but we did it in about four years."

Mr. Skillings said B.C. needs a forceful government because there are bound to be "trying times ahead."

"There is nothing wrong with having a large budgetary reserve. The people should applaud the government because no money is being wasted.

"For example, if I give my wife the housekeeping money and she goes and blows it all in one week, my sons and I have to eat hamburger for the rest of the month.

"You can't run a home or government that way."

Court Ruling Comment Cut From Papers

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Editorial comment on Friday's high court ruling here that the 1965 Rhodesian constitution and the government of Ian Smith were not lawful was censored from both Rhodesian daily newspapers today.

The newspapers—the Rhodesia Herald here and The Chronicle in Bulawayo—carried splash reports of the judgment.

Their editorial columns inside were completely blank to indicate where comment had been censored.

The high court judgment had said that although the regime of Smith was illegal, it was nonetheless the only effective government in Rhodesia
